STATE BOARD ACCEPTS THREE, REJECTS TWO DEMANDS MADE BY WALLACE TO SETTLE ROAD CONTROVERSY

Britain Considers Parley Breakdown Italian Challenge

England Tense as Full Cabinet Is Summoned To Formulate Policy in Situation Viewed "As Dangerous as in 1914."

KING GEORGE MAY CANCEL VACATION

Italian Delegate to Paris Meet Scoffs at League, Threatens To Resign If Geneva Body Is Critical.

By HAROLD P. BRAMAN.

LONDON, Aug. 19. — (AP) — The British cabinet, faced with the necessity of deciding quickly half a dozen momentous problems arising from the failure of the tri-partite conference in Paris on the Italo-Ethiopian crisis, was summoned to meet in extraordinary session Thursday as ministers tonight converged on London from widely scattered vacation points.

King Takes Hand.

Confronted by a situation considered by many as the most serious threat to world peace since 1914, King George personally took up the matter, summoning Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary, to Sandringham.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin hurriedly made preparations to quit Aix-Les-Bains, where he arrived only yesterday to begin his vacation.

Acting Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was rushing toward London tonight.

Prospects were the situation was becoming so grave it may interfere with the king's own vacation.

Eden Returns.

Anthony Eden, minister for League affairs, returned to London tonight from Paris, personally bringing word of Premier Benito Mussolini's uncompromising stand which wrecked the Paris talks.

Immediately after his arrival, light gleamed at No. 10 Downing street—the foreign office—where officials finally faced a quick showdown on a problem grown increasingly grave since June.

Eden was met by newspapermen at the Croydon air field to whom he said:

"We must go on. I am afraid I can say nothing. You know pretty well what happened so far. We must go on, considering what has happened. I wish the results could have been better. That is all I can say now."

Diplomatic circles interpreted the Italo-Ethiopian situation as an Italian challenge to Great Britain's prestige in the Mediterranean and in Africa; as a threat to British lines of com-

Soldiers of Fortune Flock to Ethiopia

The following is the first in a series of dispatches mailed by Pierre Van Paassen, The Constitution European correspondent, from Addis Ababa. When war between Italy and Ethiopia became imminent, Pierre Van Paassen flew back to Addis Ababa for The Constitution. He had already made a tour of the kingdom in the spring.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

ADDIS ABABA (By Mail)—All the world's adventurers, the footloose and the soldiers of fortune who accept no discipline but that of danger, seem to be enlisting in the army of the Negus. How they manage to get here to Addis Ababa, how they avoid all the exasperating man-traps and formalities at different frontiers, is a mystery. The call for men has gone out and men who are willing to fight and face death in a hundred ways are not to be held back by customs officers or the immigration officials of intervening countries.

They are pouring into Addis Ababa, ex-Russian officers who were the companions of Denikine and Wrangel; deserters from the French Foreign Legion who have walked through deserts and lands infested with wild beasts and murderous tribes; fugitives from justice in Syria, Palestine and Turkey; gangsters from Constantinople; cutthroats from Bagdad; shady

POLITICAL TIE-UPS UNDER EYE OF JURY

County Probe To Extend To Organization of Present Fulton Commission.

The political alliances of the majority faction of the county commission will be taken up by the July-August grand jury today in an effort to determine how Dr. C. R. Adams came to be elected chairman of the board, it was understood last night.

Harold Sheats, city attorney of East Point, who with Commissioner George F. Longino, objected to Dr. Adams' appointment at the beginning of the year, has been summoned to testify before the jury at the regular session at 10 o'clock this morning.

Additional evidence concerning the conduct of the county's business by the majority faction will also be studied today, George W. McCarty, foreman of the grand jury, said.

Contrary to Custom.

At the first organization meeting of the commission this year, Dr. Adams was named chairman and Commissioner Ed L. Almand was made chairman of the public works department, in variance to the established custom whereby seniority is followed for the most important positions on the board.

Commissioner J. A. Ragsdale, who was vice chairman of the board in 1934, was to have been chairman in 1935, according to the usual procedure, and Commissioner Longino, who was chairman in 1934, ordinarily would have been elected chairman of the public works department.

But the majority faction, composed of Dr. Adams, Almand and Commis-

President Will Speak To Country Saturday

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—A presidential address to the nation, embracing opportunities for a recounting of his stewardship and a reply to opposition critics, today was scheduled for next Saturday night.

Informed quarters looked for the chief executive to use the occasion to review the work of the session, probably touch on his ideas for the future and possibly give his comparison of present and past conditions.

CONGRESS STAMPS OKAY ON 5 BILLS WITHOUT DEBATE

Guffey Bill Is Whipped Through House, Rail Pensions, Farm Debt Aid Given Approval.

By HARRY FERGUSON.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(UP)—Hammering bills through to passage at the rate of one every half hour, congress put on its final spurt today for adjournment this week.

Controversies which have held congressional committees in deadlock for three months melted away, and legislators who were too weary to talk let bills go through without debate.

Between noon and 4 p. m. these things—which ordinarily eat up months—occurred:

1. The Guffey bill, setting up a private NRA for the bituminous coal industry, squeaked through the house by a margin so narrow that it left New Deal lieutenants limp and perspiring. It was sent to the senate where its fate is doubtful despite the fact that 500,000 miners are threatening to strike on September 16 unless the measure becomes law.

Banking Bill Finished

2. Congress completed action on the omnibus banking bill, which centralized federal jurisdiction over currency and credit, and sent it to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature.

3. The house and then the senate, 20 minutes later, passed the Crosser bill providing pensions for railroad workers who have had 30 years' service or have reached 65. This complet-

NAZIS URGE HARSH JAIL TREATMENT

Reich Also Will Punish Prisoners Who Violate Spirit of the Law.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—(AP)—"Severity" for prisoners as a nazi tenet was demanded by Franz Guertner, minister of justice, today at the opening of the eleventh quinquennial penitentiary congress.

"If criminal law is to represent atonement from wrong done the community," he told the 400 delegates from 50 nations, "and hence defend and protect the national community from evil doers, the logical result is severity in the treatment of prisoners so the punishment may be appreciable to the evil."

It should "produce checks in the prisoner which will prevent him from again incurring punishment," he added.

Guertner also announced that the nazi reich has definitely rejected the ancient legal principle: "Nulla poena sine lege" (No punishment unless a law is infringed).

Instead, he said, it has substituted the maxim "Nulla crimen sine poena," under which punishment is meted out regardless of the incompletion of a law.

Explaining what he meant by "severity," the nazi minister said it "has to do with order, subordination and obedience, but it should be accompanied throughout by humanity, which grants the prisoners all their vital needs in so far as this is compatible with the imprisonment."

The nazi theory, he went on, contemplates helping the prisoners "find their way back into the national community" and giving them "the right attitude toward it."

As for the shift in legal principles, Guertner asserted:

"National socialism makes the serious claim that all behavior deserving punishment shall meet with its just reward; that no one shall succeed

Plane, Three Persons Are Missing in West

DENVER, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Governor of Indiana and Colorado today organized a three-state search for a private airplane carrying three passengers, including an Indianapolis business executive, after it was revealed the ship has been missing since Thursday on a flight from Helena, Mont., to Denver.

In the ship were Burnside Smith, president of the Aero Mayflower Transit Company of Indianapolis and of an insurance firm; his pilot, Dick Arnett, manager of an Indianapolis airport, and Arnetts' bride of three weeks.

The widespread search over the thousands of square miles of the Montana, Wyoming and Colorado mountain country was started after Blease Greenlee, secretary to Governor Paul McNutt, of Indiana, called Governor Ed. C. Johnson of Colorado by telephone and told him the plane had not been heard from nor sighted since it left Helena about 2:30 p. m., Thursday.

Penniless Artist Finds Riches in Post Tragedy

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Isador J. Muller tonight mentally dipped his artist's brushes into a pot of gold he found at the end of a rainbow arched through the clouds of poverty and Wiley's Post's death.

Muller is the painter and possessor of what is believed to be the last portrait of Post.

Those who sought out Muller after the tragedy in Alaska found him penniless and facing eviction.

But a nation, grieving over death, also helped one living in despair.

Tonight Muller's rent is paid, he has $150 and promised commissions totaling $2,750.

The story of his plight brought a telephoned offer of the $300 life savings of a Greenwich, Conn., chauffeur and his wife.

Gratefully Muller went to Greenwich and was handed the money.

Back in New York, he was summoned to a New Jersey amusement park where the owner offered $300 for a portrait of himself.

When her husband came home, Mrs. Muller told him one woman had left $50 and that three commissions totaled $650.

But what about the portrait of Wiley Post?

"A man on Long Island offered me $1,800 for it today," Muller said. "But I told him he'd have to wait until I heard from a Mr. Davenport who was here first and said he would try to raise $1,400 to buy it for his Oklahoma city as a memorial.

"I think it would be nicer if the Oklahoma people bought it."

HOPSON IS FORCED TO BARE PROFITS AT SENATE PROBE

Executive Received $654,000 From Service Company From $5,000 Investment, Auditor Says.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—A reluctant recital of bulky but roundabout personal profits from power companies was drawn from Howard C. Hopson, utilities baron, today by the senate lobby committee.

Between threats of senate punishment for answering questions "with arguments instead of facts," the committee elicited, as well, an account of efforts to influence newspapers against the administration public utilities bill.

In addition, it added to its record of the campaign against that legislation, testimony that Hopson early suggested an "appeal to the emotions" featuring the contention that the measure would jeopardize the savings of "widows and orphans."

Flushed, hesitant and hoarse, Hop-

MRS. ALEXANDER QUITS PARTY POST

Successor to Democratic National Committee Woman To Be Named Soon.

From California, whre she has been residing for the past several months, Mrs. Edgar Alexander yesterday tendered her resignation as democratic national committeewoman for Georgia. The resignation was accepted immediately by State Chairman Hugh Howell, who announced that he would call a meeting of the democratic state committee for an early date to name Mrs. Alexander's successor.

A number of prominent women have been mentioned for the post, chief among them being Mrs. Susie T. Moore, of Tifton, a former member of the state senate, and Mrs. C. Z. Harden, of Ashburn, wife of a present member of the senate.

Inasmuch as Governor Talmadge, who also is serving as national committeeman, completely dominates the state committee it is generally conceded that whomever he selectes will get the post.

Chairman Howell would give no in-

Amazing Career of Crime Unfolded By Alabaman Following His Arrest

Secret service agents, G-men, parole officials of two states and city detectives of Atlanta are striving today to unravel the amazing career of Walter W. Poore, whom they dub the "forger extraordinary" and whose criminal career is steeped in forgeries, automobile thefts, swindlings, parole violations that are spread across the criminal dockets of Georgia and Alabama.

Poore last night returned from Atlanta to Kilby prison at Montgomery, Ala., to finish out a parole term there, which is just a beginning of the penalties he will have to pay for the crimes to which he has confessed.

Well-groomed and well-educated, Poore has the poise of a successful banker. After confessing to City Detective George Barrett, who captured him in Atlanta Saturday that the "world is so full of dumbbells that a smart guy doesn't have to work," Poore told of his crimes after saying with a gesture of resignation:

"I want to clean up the slate. Wipe everything off. Start life fresh."

Secret Service Enlisted.

The story he told caused Detective Barrett to enlist the aid of George H. Brodnax, operator in charge of the secret service in Atlanta; W. A. Rorer, special agent in charge of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Atlanta; officials at Kilby prison, Montgomery, federal penitentiary officials in Atlan-

POST AND ROGERS END FINAL FLIGHT AMID DISORDERS

Crowd Joins in Melee as Photographers and Police Clash; Rose Bowl Funeral Set for Rogers.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Will Rogers and Wiley Post came back to Los Angeles tonight at the end of the tragic air journey Rogers had said in his whimsical manner would probably be to "just somewhere."

The big transport plane, which brought the bodies of the actor humorist and his aviator companion in death from Seattle skimmed down to a gentle landing on the Burbank airport at 6:20 p. m., Pacific standard time, just as the day was fading into night.

Into the waiting hangar the funeral plane was guided, its idling motors reminding spectators of muffled drum beats.

By the great iron doors of the hangars, the ground crew waited, tense, alert. Clotted in little groups by the runway fence were several hundred onlookers. They faced a cordon of uniformed police.

Scuffle at Hangar.

Motors roared. The ship moved forward into the hangar. The doors clanged shut.

The stillness suddenly was broken by the discovery of a photographer concealed in the rafters above the ship. Several moments of confusion followed until police caught him and destroyed his apparatus.

Meanwhile, other photographers, "shooting" through the glass windows from the outside of the building, clashed with police when the officers attempted to move them away. Spectators jumped over the fence to join the fray.

This delayed the removal of the bodies, shrouded in gray on stretchers, for nearly a half hour. A large black hearse waited.

Ironic Coincidence.

By a strange coincidence, this was the same hangar from which Wiley Post four times attempted to conquer the substratosphere.

It had been for him the scene of hope and defeat and determination. Here, hovering over his ancient Winnie Mae, he had tolled in the still hours between midnight and dawn.

Here, too, Rogers had been a frequent visitor, attending Post in his lonely vigil, driving out the care of

ATLANTA DELUGED BY 1.5-INCH RAIN

Streets Flooded in Downtown Area and Traffic Paralyzed Over an Hour.

A deluge let loose on Atlanta yesterday afternoon, paralyzed street car traffic for two hours in one spot, one hour in many others, forced automobile drivers to scurry to hilltops for safety and within 50 minutes checked an inch and a half of rainfall on the weather bureau's official instruments.

Activities along the streets were brought to a standstill as the rain poured down with a ferocity unusual even in August. The sewerage system was overwhelmed and huge lakes collected in depressions while rivers of water raced about seeking outlets.

At Simpson and Newport streets, street railway records show the heaviest tieup. Crews on the Marietta line sat idle for two hours before the floodwaters receded enough to let traffic move.

Began at 3:40 P. M.

Weather bureau records show that the heavy rain began at 3:40 p. m., and continued until 4:30 p. m. Even the conservative meteorologists at the

Fund Row Still Unsolved, But Letter Paves the Way For Further Negotiations

Wallace and Wilburn Letters On Highway Fund Controversy

The text of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's letter to the State Highway Board setting out provisions for settlement of the highway controversy follows:

"Dear Mr. Wilburn:

"Under date of June 25, 1935, a letter was addressed to the State Highway Board of Georgia as to the adequacy of engineering and inspection on road projects financed with federal funds. In the meantime rules and regulations have been issued for the conduct of the work under the emergency relief appropriation act of 1935.

"The major purpose of this legislation is to provide employment. It is the desire of the administration to proceed with consistent dispatch in the establishment of the programs of projects and the placing of work actually under way. In my letter of June 25 certain requirements as to the engineering organization of the board were brought to your attention. I am restating these so there can be no doubt as to the object sought.

Reorganization Demanded.

"1. The reorganization and establishment of an adequate and acceptable headquarters engineering organization competent to handle and direct the engineering, administration, de-

The text of the letter of the State Highway Board, accepting three and rejecting two of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's provisions for settling the highway controversy follows:

"Dear Mr. Secretary:

"Your letter of August 17, with inclosures, received.

"Immediately upon receipt of your letter I called the other two members of the highway commission and we held a conference on the matter.

"You have outlined the five points which you wish considered by the Highway Board of Georgia before the expenditure of the $19,000,000.

"Before answering each of these paragraphs specifically, we would like to call your attention to the fact there is a small balance left of the first section of the appropriation for 1934 which has not been approved by the Federal Bureau of Roads, and there is approximately one and one-half million dollars of the third section of the 1934 appropriation which has not been approved or disapproved by the Federal Bureau of Roads.

Works on Projects.

"The Highway Department of Georgia went to considerable expense locating these projects, making blueprints, and doing other necessary work to prepare them for the inspec-

$12,424,944 PAID FOR GEORGIA LEAF

Income Almost Doubles That of 1934 as Pounds Sold Total 61,297,205.

By The Associated Press.

Sales on Georgia tobacco markets last week totaled 20,209,579 pounds with a value of $3,465,244.71 and brought poundage and money value for the first three weeks of the year to figures approximately double those for the entire season of 1934.

The Department of Agriculture's report issued yesterday showed the leaf sold last week for an average of 17.14 cents a pound.

Sales for the first three weeks totaled 61,297,205 pounds as against 33,623,724 for all of last year and brought a total income of $12,424,944 as against $6,299,761 for all of 1934.

Sales the first three weeks of this year already have passed the total in poundage and money for all years since 1930 when 104,538,000 pounds brought $13,485,402.

Last week's average price of 17.14 cents was considerably lower than the 22.23 of the first week and 21.53 of the second but, with the season nearing an end, the quality of the crop was lower. The season's average price is 20.02 cents a pound.

Sales for the third week of last year totaled 6,898,032 for an average price of 14.38.

The Department of Agriculture yesterday announced revised figures for the average prices prevailing in the State Likely To Get 10 Million Road Fund

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Possibility of Georgia being allocated some $10,000,000 of work relief funds for improvement of secondary roads, over and above the $19,000,000 federal aid highway fund now in dispute, was seen here today by Representative B. Frank Whelchel, of Gainesville, after a conference with government officials.

In lengthy talks with officials of PWA he strongly urged a fund of at least 10 million dollars for development of farmer feeder routes which are not essentially provided for in the regular highway fund. While no definite commitment was given as to the amount to be allocated he stated afterwards he had been given assurance a program of some kind will be initiated in the state along the lines suggested.

Judge Whelchel declared that an intensive program for building and improving rural roads in the state should soon be inaugurated and that construction of the roads would greatly facilitate travel of farmers from "farms to markets."

"The roads program," he said, "is expected to afford work for a large number of people now unemployed, will aid the farmer in more economically marketing his products and will help local merchants by reason of increasing the purchasing power of their customers.

"This will be good news for all citizens of Georgia and I am most enthusiastic over possibilities of the program."

100 ARE RESCUED IN BERLIN BLAZE

Throng Trapped Atop 60-Foot Tower at Radio Exposition Grounds.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—(UP)—Firemen brought 100 men, women and children to safety tonight after they had been marooned by flames in a restaurant atop a 60-foot tower at the radio exposition grounds.

Flames licked at the ladders, smoke billowed from the flaming exposition hall below and sparks ignited the wooden walls of the restaurant as the rescue task was completed.

Thousands of other persons attending the exposition rushed to safety when a short circuit ignited the main building. The structure and two wings were destroyed, despite efforts of hundreds of fire apparatus which answered a general alarm throughout Berlin.

Several employes were burned while carrying radio equipment to the street.

Officials estimated damage at $2,500,000. It was announced eight persons were burned during rescue from the tower restaurant.

The exposition grounds was in an uproar with fire apparatus arriving constantly and adding to the din of sirens, gongs, roaring flames and human cries.

Long after the fire had been discovered authorities were unable to estimate casualties. Thousands were present when the fire broke out.

Firemen brought the flames under control after they had destroyed the main building and both wings. At midnight authorities believed no one had perished. Several employes were scorched while removing radio apparatus.

Highway Board Declines To Comply With Wallace's Demands for Complete Reorganization of Department, Wage Hike.

NEXT MOVE IN ROW UP TO WASHINGTON

Road Body Unanimously Backs Wilburn; Ball's Ferry Bridge Is Not Mentioned by Secretary.

The State Highway Board yesterday acepted three and rejected two demands of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace for settlement of the highway controversy.

The exchange of letters, completed following a conference between the highway board and Governor Talmadge, left the tangle unsolved, but the letter of the highway board to Secretary Wallace paved the way for further negotiations, which it is generally expected will ensue.

The board declined to comply with the secretary's demands that the highway department be completely reorganized this calling for an increase in the number of field divisions, to be increased from three to five, and that the salary of the engineering personnel of the department be restored to the 1933 level, a level somewhat higher than that now prevailing.

Three Provisions Agreed To.

The board agreed with Secretary Wallace that the federal highway fund should be administered from a statewide point of view rather than a sectional viewpoint, that the state highway engineer should act for the board on matters of enginering policy and that no payment for highway work shall be made until the work has been approved by the engineer in direct charge of that particular work.

The letter of the highway board was air-mailed to Secretary Wallace over the signature of Chairman W. E. Wilburn. It was written in the Governor' office and it is presumed that Governor Talmadge agreed with every statement of the highway board.

Highway Members in Accord.

It also was understood that the highway board members individually were in complete agreement on everything in Mr Wilburn's letter.

The two provisions which the highway board declined to agree to were the first two made by Secretary Wallace. The third, fourth and fifth provisions met with approval.

Contrary to general expectations

Columbia River Dam Is Favored in House

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The house tonight voted 199 to 126 to give congressional sanction to the $63,000,000 Grand Coulee dam project on the Columbia river.

The test came on a senate amendment to an omnibus rivers and harbors bill.

In accepting the amendment and the conference report, the house agreed to authorize $614,168,673 in river and harbor developments, for many of which the Public Works Administration already has allotted funds.

PASTOR AT BRUNSWICK CALLED TO CAROLINA

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Aug. 19.—(AP) Rev. T. W. Simpson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church here and moderator of the Presbyterian Synod of Georgia, has received a call to serve as financial secretary of Presbyterian College, located at Clinton, South Carolina.

A meeting of the congregation of his church will be held to consider the possibility of allowing Rev. Simpson a leave of absence for one year in order that he may be free to accept or reject the call to the South Carolina college.

HEAD OF CHICOPEE WILL ARRIVE TODAY

Strike at Gainesville Mill Awaits Parley of Leaders.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 19.—(AP) Striking employes of the Chicopee Manufacturing Corporation's cotton textile mill here were notified that N. L. Smith, of New Brunswick, N. J., the firm's president, and M. T. Grimes, general manager of the plant, would arrive tomorrow for a conference toward ending the controversy.

The strikers continued their picketing of the closed plant but there was no disorder. Spokesmen said two union leaders visited the mill village in an effort to organize the workers but were requested to leave. The mill is not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

The walkout followed a controversy over employment of a time service expert and the strikers said they were protesting over initiation of a "stretch-out" system of work.

"MISS ROME" IS NAMED BY AMERICAN LEGION

ROME, Ga., Aug. 19.—Miss Frances McAlister, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cary F. McAlister, will represent Shanklin-Attaway post of the American Legion as "Miss Rome" in the state Legion convention at Macon, August 22-24.

The winner at Macon will be given the title of "Miss Georgia," and will compete in the national Legion convention at St. Louis in September for the title of "Miss American Legion of America."

Miss McAlister was selected as "Miss Rome" at a contest held at the De Soto theater Saturday night. She will be accompanied to Macon by Mrs. Jether King as chaperon.

OGLES TO BE HONORED AT MEMORIAL SERVICE

ROME, Ga., Aug. 19.—A memorial service for the late Charles J. Ogles, for many years a leader of the fraternal life of Lindale, will be held by the Lindale Masonic lodge and the Lindale chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star Friday night at the Lindale Masconic hall.

Mr. Ogles was a past master of seventh district and Floyd county Masonic associations and was secretary of the latter association at the time of his death. He was honored many times by the grand lodge of Georgia with important appointments.

MOTORCADE TO OPEN CEDARTOWN HIGHWAY

CEDARTOWN, Ga., Aug. 19.—(AP) Civic clubs are sponsoring a motorcade from Cedartown to Piedmont, Ala., Wednesday, in celebration of completion of an improved highway between the two cities.

The Georgia portion of the road from Cedartown to Esom Hill has been open for some years. The Alabama portion recently was opened. The next effort will be for hard-surfacing of the route.

REMAINS OF WOMAN ARE FOUND IN FIRE

Body Located in Razed School Building Near Griffin.

GRIFFIN, Ga., Aug. 19.—(AP)—A coroner's jury late today returned a verdict that a white woman whose body was found in the ruins of a burned negro schoolhouse near here had been "killed by persons unknown."

Deputy Sheriff S. D. Corley, of Spalding county, said the fire apparently had been set to conceal the crime. The body was so badly charred that identification was impossible at present, Corley said.

The building destroyed was the Mount Pleasant school for negroes, two miles north of Griffin.

Near the ruins officers found a woman's ring and other trinkets. A pool of blood at the same spot indicated, they said, that the victim had been dragged from an automobile there before being placed in the schoolhouse.

STATE DEATHS

C. W. HUNT.

CALHOUN, Ga., Aug. 19.—C. W. Hunt, 63, prominent citizen of this city, died at his home here Sunday after a long illness. He is survived by his wife and six children, Mary K. Hunt, of Calhoun and Atlanta; Georgia Hunt, of Atlanta, and Ruth, John, Charlie and Frank Hunt, all of Calhoun. Funeral services were held at the home at 3 o'clock Monday. Interment was in the Chandler cemetery.

GEORGE H. JOHNSON.

ROME, Ga., Aug. 19.—Funeral services for George Hilliard Johnson, 76, former Rome citizen who died Friday night at his home in Knoxville, were held here this afternoon from the chapel of Jennings Funeral Home, with Rev. O. E. Rutland, pastor of North Broad Baptist church, officiating. Interment was in Oakland cemetery.

Mr. Johnson was in the insurance business here for many years. He moved to Knoxville about a year ago.

Surviving are three sons, Linder and Clay Johnson, of Rome, and Hilliard G. Johnson, of Knoxville; one daughter, Mrs. W. S. Dix, of Canton; one brother, James H. Johnston, of Rome, and one sister, Mrs. John S. May.

MRS. MAUDE RUSH.

ROME, Ga., Aug. 19.—Funeral services for Mrs. Maude Rush, 38, who died Saturday night at a local hospital, were held today from the chapel of the Emmett Cole Funeral Home, with Dr. Bunyan Stephens, pastor of First Baptist church, officiating. Interment was in Antioch cemetery.

Surviving are her husband, Frank Rush; one son, Walter Slaughter; her parents, Mr and Mrs. J. W. Blalock; five sisters, Mrs. J R. Knight, H. T. Gilleland, Mrs. Cleve Bobo, Mrs. John Locklear and Mrs. Louis Oaks, all of Rome; two brothers, J. W. Blalock, of Ducktown, Tenn., and J. L. Blalock, of St. Louis.

MRS. GEORGE A. THOMAS.

FAIRBURN, Ga., Aug. 19.—Funeral services for Mrs George A. Thomas, 38, who died yesterday at an Atlanta hospital, will be held tomorrow at 11 o'clock at the Fairubnr Baptist church, with Rev. L. E. Roberts and Rev. Jesse Henley officiating. Interment will be in Antioch cemetery.

Mrs. Thomas, whose home was in Fairburn, had been ill for several months.

She is survived by her husband, two sons, Roy and William Thomas; two daughters, Louise and Daisy Ruth Thomas, and one brother, Thomas Taylor, of Rome.

MRS. FRANK S. BARRON.

ROME, Ga., Aug. 19.—Funeral services for Mrs Frank S. Barron, who died unexpectedly yesterday at her residence on Second avenue, will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. from the residence. Mrs. Barron, wife of one of Rome's leading businessmen, was active in work of the Shorter College Alumnae Association and the First Baptist church.

Surviving are her husband, two sons, Alfred Lee and William F. Barron; one daughter, Mrs. A. C. Brennan, of Toronto, Canada; two sisters, Mrs. William Brinsdine, of Fort Valley, Ga., and Mrs. G. F. Bailey, of Kinston, N. C.

Much Cotton Held.

ROME, Ga., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Approximately 20,000 bales of cotton from previous years' crops are on hand in four local warehouses as the new cotton season opens. This is the largest carryover in many years, but local warehouses are amply able to handle the new crop, warehousemen say.

GAME PROTECTORS OPEN MACON MEET

Two-Day School Will Study Wild Life Conservation.

MACON, Ga., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Georgia's game protectors met here today for a two-day school.

The school, designed to aid Commissioner Zack Cravey's general program for building up of the fish and game supply of the state, will give the protectors opportunity for exchange of ideas, and study of various conservation problems.

Civic groups and other organizations and individuals attended a public meeting here tonight, at which W. T. Anderson, Macon newspaper publisher; R. W. Maynard, city attorney; Judge Earl Butler, of city court; Dr. J. W. Wainwright, of Millen; Richard Tift, of Millen; Dr. Clabus Lloyd, of Gainesville, and Lake Russell, Mercer University athletic director, spoke.

Attorney-General M. J. Yeomans also has been invited to speak during the conference.

The session will close tomorrow afternoon with a fish fry.

Autoist Injured.

CORNELIA, Ga., Aug. 19.—Frank Barrett, of Banks county, was badly shaken up yesterday when his automobile struck an unoccupied car and both dropped about 12 feet into an excavated lot. Both cars were badly damaged.

Rupture Disappears As If By Magic

Doctor's New Discovery Wins Applause of Thousands

Kansas City, Mo.—A doctor of this city, has discovered a newer rupture method that is so successful hundreds have thrown their trusses away—reporting all signs of rupture gone. This method does away with leg straps, elastic belts, binding springs and harsh pads. Every week more and more letters are received from users telling how they now go without any support. All who are ruptured should investigate this discovery at once. Mr. E. O. Koch offers to send the doctor's inexpensive method to any rupture sufferer for 30 days' use and make no charge if you are not pleased in that time. If you are ruptured be sure to write Mr. E. O. Koch, 1222 Koch Bldg., 2906 Main St., Kansas City, Mo., tonight for his trial offer.—(adv.)

2 YOUTHFUL NEGROES ARRESTED AS BANDITS

Three Persons Held Up and One "Taken for Ride" in 35 Minutes.

Two negro boys, 13 and 14 years old, were arrested early yesterday morning by police as bandits who had held up three persons within 35 minutes and had taken one man for a ride. Two other negroes escaped and the ride victim was freed.

The first holdup was at Magnolia and Maple streets at 2:10 o'clock yesterday morning. George Jones, negro, of Smyrna, Ga., was held up by the four negroes in an automobile and his watch, raincoat and a small amount of cash taken.

The next holdup occurred at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning in front of 37 Ashby street when X. L. Neal, living at that address, was held up by four negroes in a car. In this holdup the thugs got $5 in currency.

Fifteen minutes later Walter Sheats, negro, of 441 Rockwell street, was held up at Georgia avenue and McDaniel street by four negroes riding in a car. Sheats was forced into the car and a gun was held on him, he told police.

Bandit Car Sighted.

Radio Patrolmen J. H. Langley and C. H. Miller reported that they had been hunting the bandit car since the first holdup and sighted a car which answered the description of the bandit machine on McDaniel street. The officers gave chase and forced the machine into the curb.

They arrested two negroes who gave their names as Maxie Lee Harmon, 13, of a Haynes street address, and Lewis Lee, 14, of 487 Markham street. The officers freed Sheats, who was in the car. Two other negroes fled when the machine was forced to stop.

Investigation revealed that the machine had been stolen several days ago from R. G. Davis, of 644 Highland avenue, N. E. Harmon and Lee were held on suspicion of robbery.

Bandit Suspect Shot.

In another alleged attempted holdup at 5:10 o'clock yesterday morning, W. G. Dempsey, of 490 Boulevard place, N. E., told police that he shot the alleged bandit. He was driving east on Auburn avenue, he reported, when a negro whistled for him to stop his car. Dempsey said he stopped to see what the negro wanted and that the man asked him to drive him home, offering to pay for the service.

Dempsey said that he refused, telling the negro that there was a taxicab stand two blocks away. He said that the negro then made a move as if to draw a weapon from his hip pocket. Dempsey drew a gun and fired at the negro. He called police to report the occurrence and was instructed to come to headquarters. There he was told that a negro with a gunshot wound in the right thigh was in Grady hospital.

Dempsey identified the negro as the man who had accosted him. The negro gave his name as Roosevelt Williams, of an Inman street address. He was charged by police with atempted robbery.

FIVE ARRESTS MADE AND LOOT RECOVERED

Five arrests and 14 retreaded tires and two boxes of retreading gum recovered were written on police books yesterday by Radio Patrolmen C. P. Wright and R. D. Scott as the result of their investigation of the recent robbery of the Dobbs Tire Repair Company, 275 Marietta street.

The officers spotted five negroes riding in a taxicab on Auburn avenue early yesterday morning. When they gave chase, all but one of the negroes escaped. Andrew Bragely, 23, of 252 Butler street, was taken into custody, a pistol and seven of the tires were found in the cab.

Continuing their chase, the policemen following the other four negroes to a house on Hilliard street, where they finished making their arrests and recovered the remainder of the loot in a garage in the rear of the house. The negroes gave their names as Ed Smith, 25, and James Inman, both of a Merritts avenue address, and Will Jones, 35, of a Hilliard street address.

DETAILS ARRANGED FOR BOND ELECTION

Adequate Registration Facilities Provided; Committees Busy.

Atlanta's sewer needs were outlined yesterday to the Atlanta Rotary Club by Mayor Pro Tem Ed A. Gilliam, and the address was followed during the afternoon by council action empowering City Clerk J. Henson Tatum to employ additional deputies to administer the oath to prospective registrants, for the coming sewer and school bond election.

Council's action yesterday cleared the way for the vote September 18 and will be backed Wednesday night by the first general meeting of a committee of citizens boosting ratification of the $1,775,000 joint bond program.

Jones H. Ewing, co-chairman of the citizens' group, has called the session for 8 o'clock, and plans will be laid to take an aggressive campaign into every section of the city.

A move to raise the school improvements from $275,000 to $1,000,000 was sidetracked in council yesterday when friends of the schools told council it was too late to include any additional funds for that purpose, and they did not wish to be placed in the attitude of opposing the sewer bonds.

Alderman J. Charlie Murphy and Councilman Alvin L. Richards were the two leaders in the drive to raise the school funds to $1,000,000, but both told council they did not wish to press the fight further.

TALMADGE TO SPEAK AT ATLANTA REVIVAL

Governor Talmadge will speak at a revival meeting in the old Central Baptist church, at Cooper and Whitehall streets, at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, it was announced yesterday.

The Rev. James L. Delk, of Kansas City, Mo., revival leader, said he had asked the governor to speak on politics. A loud speaker will be installed in the church which will seat a crowd of 1,000, he said.

BANKS CLEAN DECKS

With the completion of a billion-dollar write-off of questionable paper, largely financial debris left over from the depression, the banks of America are now in the soundest position they have ever occupied.

A report of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation reveals that 14,124 of the insured banks in the country, this group representing all but 1,664 of the licensed banks in the United States, wrote off $1,130,000,000 in 1934, but that, despite this loss, assets of the banks increased from $40,610,000,000 at the beginning of the year to $47,370,000,000 12 months later, net earnings reached $445,000,000 and deposits increased from $31,300,000,000 to $39,000,000,000.

During the year, the report cites, doubtful and worthless assets of 7,456 insured banks not members of the federal reserve system were reduced from 10.5 per cent of $5,563,599,000 in assets on January 1, 1934, to 6.5 per cent of $6,034,584,000 at the end of the year.

The picture of a sound, expanding banking system painted by these figures is made more impressive by the record of crashing banks and depreciating assets for the year 1932, when 1,456 banks, with deposits totaling $715,000,000, closed their doors. In 1931 the loss to depositors was even greater, 2,294 banks, with deposits of $1,690,669,000, having failed.

In marking off their assets ledgers more than a billion dollars of practically worthless paper accumulated as the result of the four years of economic depression, the banks have cleaned house for the far-reaching program of business expansion which all indices now emphasize can be expected before long.

Atlanta's fine banks, headed by conservative and experienced financial leaders, weathered the depression without trouble, and can be counted upon to play a major part in the development of business in Georgia to new planes of prosperity.

WANTED—A G. O. P. MOSES

The results of the Lucas poll of republican presidential possibilities reveals no lessening of the schisms that became evident in the party ranks following the debacle in the general election of 1932.

The poll, taken among the more than 2,600 republican county chairmen in the country by Robert H. Lucas, director for the national committee under the Hoover administration, shows a definite lead for Senator Borah, but the western leader's 303 votes represent only a small plurality of the approximately 1,400 votes cast and the remaining thousand votes are widely scattered among various republican leaders.

Colonel Frank Knox, Chicago publisher is second with 218 votes; Governor Landon, of Kansas, third with 152; former Governor Lowden, of Illinois, fourth with 114; Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, fifth with 111, and former President Hoover trails the leaders with only 68 votes.

It is significant of the trend of opinion in the divided republican camp that all of the leaders in the poll came from western or central states, such eastern leaders Ogden Mills and Theodore Roosevelt receiving only a handful of votes.

Sweeping gains must be made in the west, or New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and the other New England states must be reclaimed, for republican success in the general elections next year—but a candidate the west might favor would be unacceptable to the east and no material gains could be expected in the west under the leadership of a candidate agreeable to the east.

The only hope for success will lie in the leadership of an outstanding figure and there is no reason to expect that such a leader will arise out of republican ranks during the 10 months or so before the campaign is launched next summer.

MORE TROUBLE FOR CHINA

The Chinese government, already beset by various troubles, will be fortunate if its woes are not materially increased as a result of the two bandit raids in the territory between Peiping and the Manchukuo border, in one of which several Koreans, Japanese citizens, were murdered, while a prominent British journalist was kidnaped and later killed in another raid.

The recent friction between the Chinese and Japanese, resulting in the Nanking government being forced to accept further limitation of its authority in the Peiping area, arose out of disorders in the so-called "neutral" territory between that city and the Manchurian border.

The present bandit outbreaks in this territory—the bandits being either soldiers or former soldiers in the Chinese armies—has already been designated as "serious" by Japanese military leaders, and the British government announces it has made "strong representations" over the murder of the Manchester journalist who was former secretary to David Lloyd George.

The Canton government is now busied with the attempt to extend relief to the huge area in which thousands lost their lives and millions of dollars in property was destroyed by the recent floods on the Yangtze, the imminent threat of widespread famine from drouths in other regions, the activities of Japanese, Russian and British agents in Kansu province, and the drive headed by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to put down the reds in the central portion of the country.

Only in the southern portion of China, where the Canton government is dominant, is there anything approaching good conditions. Here there is no internal discontent and taxes have been reduced while governmental service has been improved. Both farmers and merchants are in better shape than they have been for many years.

But the rest of the body politic of China is again plagued with ailments of various kinds, most of which arise out of the loose control exercised by the Nanking government over the vast territory nominally under its domination. Unless Japan and Britain evidence a more lenient attitude toward the recent bandit outrages than they have in the case of similar instances in the past, the situation will be further muddled for the so-called democratic government at Nanking.

A MODEL PRISON

The detailed story in Sunday's Constitution on the equipment and method of operation of the Effingham county chain gang camp, recently pronounced by the legislative inspection committee as the best camp in the state, emphasizes the fact that service on a chain gang, properly conducted, constitutes no more severe punishment than incarceration in a penitentiary.

On the contrary, the chain gang can have many advantages, so far as those confined within them are concerned, to the prison. The greatest task of prison wardens is to find work for those in their care and to see that each inmate gets health-giving outdoor exercise.

The average man who serves a sentence on the chain gang is physically and mentally benefited by the wholesome, muscle-building work to which he is put. The small sleeping quarters in chain gang camps can be made more healthy than the row upon row of iron cages in which inmates of penitentiaries are locked at night.

Prisoners are not mollycoddled in the Effingham chain gang, but they are given opportunity to rebuild themselves while paying the penalty for law violation. Firm discipline, instead of harsh treatment, has brought a minimum of trouble in the handling of the convicts.

Every chain gang in the state, however large or small, can be conducted on the same fine and humanitarian basis as the one in this comparatively small south Georgia county. In the long run, a properly conducted camp will cost less than one badly managed.

A section of Kansas has lately been so devoid of rain, the mudwasps are going to Oklahoma for building material.

In a country overrun with republican ex-postmasters, where does a California experimenter get the impression that suspended animation is new?

Taking everything into consideration, probably the steadiest job in Europe today is building pigeon holes in Geneva.

Let us turn now to the household pages and see if a way has been found to keep pork chops in a safe without spoiling.

Health Talk

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

Speaking strictly as a health teacher I admire and applaud woman's fearlessness in dress. That she gets along remarkably well without many clothes every one but her husband or father will admit.

It is not fashion alone that dictates her wanton baring of neck and knees, spine, sternum, et cetera. The modern woman sees pretty clearly through all this old hokum bunkem about scanty clothing and galloping consumption or undiscernible lingerie and rheumatism eventually if not this winter. Though dumb enough she has enough native perception to notice that consumption and rheumatism prevail inversely as the square yards of cloth used to dress a woman.

Women in this country are enjoying better health than their mothers or grandmothers ever knew, particularly in respect to bronchial troubles and tuberculosis. The sex in fact has proved so perverse about this that all but the veriest old fossils in the medical profession have left off warning the foolish young women of the bugaboos of rheumatiz, pneumonia and consumption.

I do not think it is the approach to nudity or the increasing scantiness of attire alone that explains the unquestionably better health and vigor of women today. In part no doubt they owe their physical well being to the discarding of corsets and the greater freedom for action, play, sport, outdoor pleasures their more hygienic mode of dress has given. Then, too, as the bolder members of the sex come to sneak smatterings of knowledge of physiology despite all the tender care taken by the ghost of Pinkia Lydeham to protect the delicate creatures from such nasty knowledge, they acquire a less morbid outlook and are not so fond of the old fishwife fancies.

Especially wholesome and healthful, I think, has been the influence of teachings such as those of Dr. Clelia Duel Mosher, for many years medical advisor for Stanford University women. This distinguished hygienist, by her observation, study and practical instruction, has brought good health to many thousands of women who were destined for a lifetime of "female weakness" under the old pamper and coddle plan. Dr. Mosher's little book "Personal Hygiene for Women," published by Stanford University Press, Stanford University, California, is an ideal gift for any girl or woman who has not had a good break in education. That means practically every girl who attends school.

Mary, the grand old girl who wears the hats and makes us all like it, went out the other day to buy the king some wool underwear. So, even if the turgid days of red flannel have gone forever, they're still wearing nice comfy long-legged woolies in the north temperate zone. It is not so many years since I wore 'em myself, and if I had to live in the north temperate zone again I'd try to find more nice comfy long-legged wool or part wool underwear. If the queen can buy 'em for her man . . . but one would require courage even to ask for such things in a modern shop. I nearly went off my nut trying to find a razor with which a man could shave here a year or two ago; and again the dealers thought of calling the wagon 10 years ago when I tried to buy oxfords in mid-winter up north, and again two years ago when I tried to buy some boots or high shoes in early summer. I suppose if one attempted to stroll on the boulevard with bare feet the cops would find some strange excuse for making a pinch.

New U. S. Coins.

Half-cent pieces with holes in the center, and square one-mill coins soon may be jingling in American pockets, but though they may seem a novelty in this country, such odd forms of coins are far from being new to the rest of the world.

"Coins with holes, the form suggested by President Roosevelt for the proposed new half-cent piece, already are widely used in many countries both in Europe and the orient," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Square, Scalloped Coins.

"Square coins, the shape suggested for the one-mill piece, were minted for use in some military prison camps during the World War. These coins, which had rounded corners, were issued to an especially large extent in Germany.

"Another coin of unusual shape, in use today in Iraq, is round with a delicately scalloped edge, and is about the size of an American quarter dollar.

"Coins with holes punched in their centers have been produced in China, Japan, Siam, Palestine, Rumania, Norway, France and British New Guinea.

"The largest 'coins' in the world also have holes in their centers," continues the bulletin. "These are giant stone discs, as much as 12 feet in diameter, often seen standing in front of houses on the tiny island of Yap, in the South Seas. These coins, weighing hundreds of pounds, of course are not circulated, but serve to indicate their owner's accumulated wealth.

"The size of the proposed new American coins has not yet been determined, but there are comparatively few coins in circulation today much smaller than the American dime, which is about 11-16th of an inch in diameter.

Greek Coins.

"Perhaps the smallest coins that ever achieved any considerable circulation were small silver pieces of ancient Greece, which were only about one-third the diameter of an American cent. The American one-dollar gold piece and three-cent piece, both now discontinued, were smaller than the present dime. The Czechoslovakian five-heller piece and the half-cent piece of Netherlands both are smaller than our dime.

"The proposed one-mill coin will be the smallest unit of value ever minted in this country, athough copper half-cent pieces have been coined in America before.

"Several different types of coins have been issued by the United States in the past which are now discontinued. In addition to the one dollar gold piece and half-cent piece already mentioned, there were the three-dollar gold piece, the trade silver dollar, slightly heavier than the regular silver dollar and designed for trade purposes in the orient, the three-cent piece of both siver and nickel, the bronze two-cent piece, the large copper cent, and the nickel cent.

Mistaken Identity.

On Sunday, while an elder was standing at the collection plate an old lady arrived, dropped a penny into the plate, and walked briskly into the church. Two minutes later she returned, lifted her penny out of the plate, and went out.

"What do you mean by this strange conduct, madam?" cried the elder.

"Oh," said she. "I've jist discovered I'm in the wrang kirk."

How Odd.

"It seems to me I've seen your face somewhere before."

"How odd."

"It certainly is."

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

BY PAUL MALLON.

BUTTERED BREAD WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Sullen democratic senators were growling about the tax bill a few days back, threatening to upset it. A New Deal political missionary pulled them off in a corner one by one. From a distance he looked very much like Senator Pat Harrison, the finance committee chairman. What he said to them substantially was this:

"Whether you like it or not, your political fortunes are entirely in the hands of the President. You will be elected or defeated next year, not on your record here, but solely because he is elected or defeated. If you vote to discredit any part of his program, you are voting against yourselves."

The power of such a bread-and-butter argument will be apparent to all who have the instinct of self-preservation. It turned the trick. The incipient rebellion was forgotten.

POLITICAL FUEL Down underneath, the house leaders were strongly against the Guffey coal bill. Speaker Byrns will never admit it now, but every insider knows he was personally opposed to the legislation. So was Chairman Doughton, of the ways and means committee, who swallowed his personal views and championed the bill for the White House.

In fact, many of the southern democratic congressmen who voted for the legislation had very strong private misgivings. One said it was the hardest vote he ever cast. He has 15,000 miners in his district clamoring for the legislation, which he considers to be clearly unconstitutional. Also, the coal operators in that particular territory seem to favor it.

With the constitution on one side and the President and the miners on the other, it did not take this congressman long to decide which way to jump, even though he did so with reluctance.

ANOMALY Behind these two examples you will find the explanation for one of the most unusual of all congressional sessions, now closing. In general, Mr. Roosevelt got about 75 per cent of what he wanted. In general, congress privately resisted the great bulk of his program.

Few, if any, congressmen personally favored the President's tax ideas. The leaders tried to put the tax bill off until next session, and radically revised it several times. No one except congressmen from certain (not all) mining sections wanted the coal bill. Without presidential pressure, both measures would have been smothered overwhelmingly.

The same inner condition was noticeable, to a smaller extent, on the relief bill (prevailing wage, etc.), the bank bill and on practically every major measure except the social security bill. But with the exception of the house rebellion against the "death sentence" provision of the holding company bill, the resistance never reached the stage of an open break.

HOPE Note to the textile industry: The most influential New Dealers are already discussing and hoping to apply the principles of the Guffey-Snyder coal bill to the textile industry when, and if, possible. Essentially the coal bill provides an NRA code for that industry. That is what the powers-that-be think textiles need.

DISCIPLINING An evidence of the easy-going nature of the President is contained in the inside story of how he handled the embarrassing predicament of his secretary, Marvin McIntyre, who was publicly discovered hobnobbing with a utility lobbyist.

It was McIntyre's turn to accompany the President to Hyde Park this last time, although there were reports that McIntyre was hoping to leave for Mars instead. At least, he planned to ride to the train in his own car. The President suggested there was plenty of room in the No. 1 car and pulled down a jump seat, suggesting that a ride to the station would give them a chance to talk. Mr. Roosevelt talked about everything except what was on top of McIntyre's mind.

Apparently the President said all he intended to say on that subject when the secretary went in to confess all the previous afternoon. At that session, also, the President seemed to be in a mood to talk of other things. The only thing he told McIntyre was that he was finally being judged by the company he kept.

Apparently there is to be no resignation.

PUBLICITY Mr. Roosevelt tried hard to get some publicity for the social security legislation, after it was finally enacted, but failed. The trouble was that congress was doing too many more important things.

An eminent New Dealer noted this same defect with the handling of the entire program during the last 60 days, saying:

"The circus has too many rings. Even Barnum couldn't handle this many."

In Georgia Fields and Streams

BY H. A. CARTER.

WELAKA, Fla., Aug. 19.—The search for the garfish has been a success. They have been found everywhere I have had a chance to look for them. I have no idea what species I have now since I have not taken the time to examine them closely at all. There is enough material on hand, however, to work out the problems we had in mind coming down here.

The first large ones were found in Chassohowitzka river, down near the gulf. They were rolling at the surface of the water when the tide was flowing, the first time I went down. There were hundreds of them, too; they were breaking the surface every few seconds, for half a mile in every direction from the boat.

These were, I believe, a species of the alligator gar. I estimated their length at four feet, which now appears to have been conservative. I have seen others much larger than that since that first day on the dancing tide down Chassohowitzwka.

On the Weekiwatchee river, which also flows into the gulf, I saw a number of gars of another species. They are called the leopard gars because of their spotted hides. Some of these fellows were good for five feet, as were others of the species which were taken from the Withlacoochee river to the east. These Withlacoochee garfish are a menace to all game fish. To say that they must be controlled in the Withlacoochee basin is to be too mild about the matter. No program of restocking, however heavy, will succeed in re-establishing black bass in this river until the gars are brought under control. All that restocking would do would be to provide a banquet for the garfish; something that no one in this conservation age wishes to do.

Now, on the other side of the state, I find a spring known as the Welaka Sulphur spring—Mrs. Gardner will remember it—where the big gars are not common but still are far from rare. That is, they do not begin to approach the abundance of their spotted cousins in the Withlacoochee. They do not, as a matter of fact, constitute a menace to the sports fishing in the St. John's river, to which this spring contributes it flow of water.

Here is the aquarium there is a small specimen of comman gar, which for some reason seems to be the least common species of gar yet found in the state. That is a rather positive statement from one who has seen very little of the state so far, but you must take it as a statement of conditions that I have seen. If any change is noted in relative abundance of kinds of gars, I will be certain to have it in my notebooks, whence it will pass on to you.

There is one species of fish, interesting to me from a purely scientific point of view, that does not appear to be common here at all. That is the mudfish. I have seen very few of them but that is probably my own fault. I know they must be here in some numbers, but I have not found them nearly as common as gars. Amia is a friendly cuss and I enjoy his stupid expression a lot. I wish there were more of his kind available for the keen edge of my dissecting knife.

Difficult.

A quiet little man once complained to his minister that his life was unbearable because his next door neighbor played the trombone incessantly, and ended up with the question: "Can a man who plays the trombone morning, noon and night be a good Christian?"

"Oh, yes, such a man might possibly be a good Christian," said the minister smiling, "but I'm sure his next door neighbor couldn't."

The World War 20 Years Ago Today.

August 20, 1915—Novogeorgievsk, great fortress northwest of Warsaw, fell to the Germans.

"So important was that victory," it has been written, "that the German emperor and many magnificoes came from Berlin to be present at the surrender. Powder magazines were still exploding, the main tower of the fortress was in flames and a Red Cross flag was still flying while the kaiser addressed several thousand troops assembled on the Polish plain. As he spoke, 2,000 cavalry horses would neigh at the proper time to punctuate his grandiose sentences, such as 'You my landstrum troops, are crowned with the oakleaves of victory.'"

That same day, in the Alexander palace outside of Petrograd, the question of deposing the czar's uncle, Grand Duke Nicholas, from supreme command of Russia's forces came up at a family gathering. At first the czar, his mother and the Grand Duke Dmitri were entirely opposed to deposing Nicholas.

"It was then," we learn from memoirs of General Kommisarov, the contemporary chief of the Russian secret state police, "that Rasputin rose from his place and, embracing the czar, explained 'In the name of the Almighty you must take over the command of your armies yourself, as only by this means can Russia and the Romanoff dynasty be saved.'"

The enormous influnece this illiterate fanatical schemer exercised is shown by the fact that the czar immediately sprang to his feet with the remark the matter was finally decided—he would immediately assume supreme command. (Once Rasputin boasted that if he had not been ill in July, 1914, there would have been no war.)

FAIR ENOUGH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Flash Of Genius. From Cannes, France, Miss Elsa Maxwell makes print with her opinion that there are few gentlemen left in the world. Miss Maxwell is a robust lady, with a blue-print sense of humor, who happened on the American consciousness a couple of years ago as a faint, sharp twinge and quickly deepened into something apparently serious. Then, just when it seemed as if something would have to be done, she vanished from the scene as suddenly and mysteriously as she had arrived, like a symptom which goes away if ignored.

Miss Maxwell was on her way to become to the social of the present day what the late Harry Lehr was to the 400 of the '90s. Like the kindergarten teacher who sets the infants to cutting out paper dolls or playing face-tag at a clap of her hands, Miss Maxwell undertook to organize diversion for a class of idle and listless scions and scionesses, but found them too restless, frisky and hard in the mouth to be driven through their pleasures in the biddable manner of their forbears.

One of her triumphs was a tasty prank which was widely publicized as a scavanger hunt, but, on the whole, the attempt to regiment the folly of society aroused little enthusiasm among a set already accustomed to night life in the black-and-tan joints of Harlem and the whispered inuendos of the smut-singers in the cocktail stores.

Some May Not Agree. From her experience, Miss Maxwell doubtless feels herself qualified to select a meagre list of 10 gentlemen, within her understanding of the term.

However, her conception of the word is so narrow that other persons may quarrel with her definition, because she excludes all that vast class of males known as "gents" and all those rock-fisted American stalwarts who are quick to spring into action at the maiden's frightened cry of "Ain't there at least one gentleman present?" Miss Maxwell will learn through her fan mail that many an honest and chivalrous heart beats beneath a fadeda shirt, open at the neck, and that the surest challenge to the honor of many a rugged male who would be far from home at Syosset or Aiken is the foul asperion, "You are no gentleman."

Rather oddly, there are also circumstances in which those who would be quick to resent this charge would be displeased or contemptuously amused at being so addressed. A company of American troops, for example, gentleman all in their private moments, would mark the faux pas at once if their officer should address them as "gentlemen" instead of using the more masculine form "men," which contains a subtle compliment to their rough-and-tumble hardihood. A speaker addressing a meeting of striking coal miners or iron workers would put himself out of tune with his audience if he were to call them "gentlemen" in their mass character, although at a benefit ball the same individuals would be just as partial to the more elegant term and just as quick to sense a slight in its omission.

Merely Point of View. A Maine guide once charged that a tourist hunter from New York, certainly a gentleman from the cut of his hunting costume and the make of his weapon, was no gent because he had shot a moose which apparently was either down with serious illness or just arising from a sound sleep. The huntsman, with a considerable investment at stake, to say nothing of his social standing in the camp, resented this, explaining that the moose was neither ill nor drowsing but, on the contrary, was just crouching to spring.

The guide, on the other hand, chewed tobacco, used the double negative, ate beans off his knife, seldom took off his clothes and did not seem quite fresh to leeward. He was no gent for the purposes of Miss Maxwell's list, but in the woods, where other standards applied, he claimed to outgentleman a gentleman who knew his way unerringly through the mazes of a 15-folk dinner at The Ritz and what to do in case of asparagus—which is more than Adolph Hitler knows, though he can do no wrong.

It is an unfortunate subject which Miss Maxwell has raised, remembering that rags are royal raiment under certain conditions. Even Boni de Castellaine wore a dress suit as though it had been painted on and bowed neatly from the hips, but married strictly for money and considered useful toil to be beneath the honor of a gentleman. He never sullied his honor, what's more, and went to his Maker still with his fixed opinion of the great mass of American gents, who haven't wavered yet in their opinion of him.

Generous Enough for All. It is a good thing that definitions vary according to the preference of every class of men. Like the term "patriot," whose many meanings embrace Herbert Hoover and Huey Long, Teddy Roosevelt Jr., and Franklin D., the Liberty League and the New Deal, "gentleman" is generous enough to honor one and all from the head man on Elsa Maxwell's list to the man out of a job with feet on fire from trudging the streets who hops up to give an old lady his seat on the bus.

Boni, too, was jobless, but would he have given his seat to an old lady on a bus? Hell, Boni would never have been on the bus.

"In his presence," says the Talmud, "do not lavish all you can about a man's good qualities, but reserve that for his absence."

"Among other advice that R. Akiba gave his son, R. Joshua, were these: (1) For studying select a secluded place where you will not be disturbed. (2) Do not select as your residence a town whose authorities are men of learning; for such men may neglect the interests of the town rather than their study. (3) Do not enter anywhere, not even your own house, without first giving some indication of your coming. (4) Do not neglect your morning meal."

"If there be no law, there is no morality, and if there be no morality, there is no law; if there be no wisdom, there is no reverence, and if there be no reverence, there is no wisdom; if there be no understanding, there is no knowledge, and if there be no knowledge, there is no understanding; if there be no meal, there can be no study of the law, and if there be no law, there will be no meal."

It's the Lieutenant and Not the General Who Feels the Need of Salutes

BY ROBERT QUILLEN.

Many people long for wealth because they wish to "be somebody"

They are not unhappy for want of great houses, servants, fleets of cars and yachts.

They live in baleful discontent because they feel inferior, and they covet wealth because they believe it would enable them to feel important.

It is not wealth they desire, but self-respect.

To plan your life on the assumption that wealth is essential to happiness or decent pride is to invite and merit disaster.

There isn't enough wealth in the land to provide a surplus for everybody; the winning of wealth requires rare good fortune or a peculiar type of mind and conscience; and no fortune is secure against the moths that corrupt and the thieves that break through and steel.

As the sole and proper foundation of self-respect, wealth commends itself only to the unthinking and the simple.

There is another and better foundation, available to all. It consists in being respectable.

Consider the engineer of a locomotive.

He has no wealth, but he is content with himself and his world. He feels at ease in the presence of the rich and the great. His job is necessary and useful; he is a trained man not easily replaced; he knows his worth to the world, demands and receives respect, and therefore respects himself.

He isn't unhappy without wealth because he doesn't feel inferior without it.

You can enter any community in America, except the resorts of the social elect, and win universal respect simply by working at your job, speaking the language of intelligent and well-informed people, and behaving like one who respects himself and takes it for granted that the world will respect him as well.

If that were not true, middle-class people would be uniformly miserable.

The first essential is to deserve your own good opinion. Once that is achieved, you can face the world without misgivings and no mere money loss can break your spirit. You may enjoy wealth, if good fortune brings it, but you won't need it.

College degrees mean little to an inventor who has won fame and fortune without them.

SILHOUETTES

BY RALPH T. JONES.

Death, beautiful, clean, opened the door
To the greatest adventure of all:
Two of earth's greatest to new triumphs soar,
Freed of mortality's thrall.

The story that follows is sent in by "Pinch Hitter," who has contributed to this column before. He vouches for the truth of his anecdote but asks that the name of the city not be divulged. So, suffice to say it is not Atlanta.

The Parade Of Ladies of Night.

In this city, wherever it is, there is a by-way known as "Peacock avenue." It is, at night, the parade ground where the ladies of joy pursue their avocation.

Every night, as soon as dusk falls, one girl comes to this street and stands alone. She wears simple clothes and her face is untouched by cosmetics. She generally stands in the shadowed doorway of a shuttered shop. She speaks to no one unless they first speak to her and then her answers are brief. The police know her but never molest her. Each night, about midnight, she slips away as quietly as she came.

"Have You Seen Ruth?"

One night, curious, I paused before her and said "Hello, sister."

She turned sad and serious eyes on me and asked:

"Have you seen Ruth?"

It embarrassed me. I mean her manner. I stammered something and went on my way.

Later, I spoke about the strange girl to the policeman at the corner and he told me her story.

"She's Crazy," Declared Cop.

"She's a little crazy," he said. "Ruth was her older sister. Their mother and father both died and they were left without money and with no real friends to help them. Ruth supported both while the younger girl, there, went to school. Then Ruth lost her job and finally, desperate I guess, came to the streets.

"Of course it was wrong but Ruth said she didn't matter. All she cared about was that "the kid"—Mary, there—get a real chance in life.

"Then, one day, Mary found out what her sister was doing. She called Ruth some cruel names, bitter and scornful under the shock of her youthful ideals. Ruth disappeared.

"Charity takes care of Mary now, but she's gone a little loony by brooding over her missing sister. She comes here, to the street her sister used to walk and waits for Ruth to come back, every night.

"She told me once it would be all right if Ruth only came back and she could apologize for what she said."

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

At the Grand opera house tonight a meeting of the Joe Brown Club of Fulton County will be held and plans made for the big torchlight parade on Monday night.

And Fifty Years Ago.

Chief Connolly and Mounted Officer West threw a 100-pound weight yesterday for watermelons for the mounted department. The mounted officer bought a wagon load and the boys had a good time.

Here and There.

In four out of five cases, men marry women younger than themselves.

The American buys an average of six-tenths of one book a year, and reads two books a year from libraries.

The bacteria which causes food poisoning has been isolated, and bacteriologists now hope to develop a method of immunizing food against the newly-found bacteria.

The Russian government's gold stock had reached the level of that of the czarist government in 1915—$800,000,000. This figure is surpassed only by the United States, France and England.

Though Germany is violently anti-communist, it has the biggest trade with soviet Russia.

Stamp collecting is supposed to be profitable, yet the world's finest collection (Hind), which cost $1,130,000, brought $882,000 when sold at auction.

Sweden, where the Nobel peace prize is awarded, now is fifth among exporters of war materials in the world; it is playing an important part in German rearmament.

Stupid of Him.

Mr. Nurich was spending a few odd thousands to brighten up the walls of the castle he had just purchased.

In a dealer's shop he took a fancy to a work of art.

"Let me see, now," he said, "who painted this picture?"

"It is a lithograph," said the dealer coldly.

"Why, yes," Nurich hastily agreed. "I ought to have recognized his style."

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

By MOLLIE MERRICK.

(Copyright, 1935, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 19.—Eddie Cantor has told Aarons & Freedley that he can't appear in their show next winter, leaving the field open to Jack Haley. The pop-eyed comedian has time for only one picture a year. That work begins somewhere around September 12.

At present Cantor is off on a personal appearance tour and when his film, which will be called either "Shoot the Chutes" or "Follow the Crowd," is finished, the funny man will go on the radio for an hour with the popular Mr. Parkyakarkas, and this is a full-time job.

Ruth Weston is back in Hollywood once again, this time on a one-picture basis. She will play in Rachel Crothers' "Splendor" and when that is finished will go back to Broadway. Ruth was out here a few years ago on a long-term contract. She didn't get anywhere, although she has undoubted talent and charm. The stage was more kind and she is taking no chances this time.

Michael Curtiz, Hollywood director, saw a beauty in Paris ten years ago and signed her up for Hollywood movies. The girl was Lily Damita, and she made good in silent films, remaining a rage for quite some time.

A few weeks ago Michael Curtiz was making tests for "Captain Blood" and chose for the lead role a slim young man named Errol Flynn. A few days after his appointment to the role Flynn married Lily Damita.

The studio, discussing this interesting chain of events, added, "They're honeymooning still—happiest couple on the lot. He is never without her. She is at every one of his interviews."

"Gossip columns in the east prophesy their official split-up in the near future," I answered. This brought a fiery retort from Flynn, who says his Lily means more to him today than ever and that they will never, never part.

Spencer Tracy will be the star of "Toss Pot," the costume picture with locale in England, Hollywood and Rome, which was written by Daniel Moore and snapped up by movie men with this actor in view.

The role is that of an Irish soldier ad the period that of James I. "Toss Pot" can outdrink anyone and serves his king by drinking down the soldiers sent with dispatches and then, while they are lying in a stupor, calmly reading their dispatches and getting in first with the news. This is the first costume picture Spencer Tracy has been cast for, and the role should be ideal for him.

Daylight Saving.

The United States senate in 1919 followed the lead of the house in voting to override President Wilson's veto of the bill repealing the daylight-saving law.

So daylight-saving isn't recognized by the federal government today, and it is against the law in many places.

Evangelist.

Francis Asbury was born in Handsworth, Staffordshire, England, in 1745, destined to become a preacher at 16, Methodist pioneer in America; and one of the great evangelists of all time.

Erroneous is the popular impression that he was the first Methodist Episcopal bishop in America. Bishop Thomas Coke came to America in 1784 to consecrate Francis Asbury as joint bishop with himself over the American church.

Rev. Asbury was fined for refusing to take the oath of allegiance to the United States, and was a virtual prisoner for two years until authorities became convinced the refusal was occasioned by conscientious objection to all oaths.

Truth Will Out.

It was the first time she had been to dinner with them, and she smiled indulgently as she refused a whisky and soda.

"I've never touched it in my life," she explained.

"Why not try?" urged her host. "See if you like the taste."

She blushed and shyly consented, and he poured her out a mixture, which she delicately raised to her lips.

"Why," she cried. "you've given me Irish!"

DECISION NOT REACHED ON TURPENTINE LOANS

Naval Stores Control Committee Seeks Funds on Rosin Stocks.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Commodity Credit Corporation said today it had reached no decision on the request of the naval stores control committee that loans be made on turpentine and rosin stocks which were in accredited warehouses and ready to go under loans at the time the naval stores marketing agreement was suspended.

The corporation stopped loans upon suspension of the agreement and it was explained later that under the law loans were made only on commodities affected by AAA production control programs.

A study was being made, however, as to whether there was legal authority to approve loans in the warehouses, at ports and in the interior, at the time the agreement became ineffective.

Hay Ward, who handled the naval stores license for AAA, said the control committee had gone on record favoring an attempt to execute a new agreement. A subcommittee of the control committee now is drafting a proposed agreement, and when it is submitted to Secretary Wallace, both proponents and opponents will be given an opportunity to express their views at a public hearing. Then the industry itself will determine whether it will accept the new control program.

The old agreement was suspended when AAA found it was not enforceable under the AAA law. Officials said, however, the AAA amendments just approved by congress opened the way for a new and enforceable agreement.

BANDIT SLAIN BY BOY IDENTIFIED BY FRIEND

Police Have Theory Man Who Knew Negro May Have Been in Gang.

The negro bandit who was shot to death late Sunday night by Nick S. Arthur, 16-year-old son of his victim, during the holdup of Steve's Place, at 147 Butler street, was identified Monday as Nathaniel Harrell 24, of a Harris street address.

Police said they believe that the identification may have been made by one of the other bandits, who calmly walked into the undertaking parlors of Hanley Brothers and asked to see the dead man.

"I think I know who he is," Hanley employes quoted the negro as saying.

The visitor was taken to the room where Harrell's body had been placed, looked silently at the dead bandit for a moment and then said:

"Yes, that's Nathaniel Harrell. He's 24 and lived on Harris street."

Other Information.

The negro gave other information that led police to believe that he may have been well acquainted with Harrell's activities. The man then left the undertaking establishment without giving his name.

Harrell was shot through the heart while he and three other negroes were holding up Steve Arthur in the Butler street store. Nick Arthur, who was sleeping on the second floor of the building, was awakened by the threats made by the bandits to his father and silently secured a gun, went to an opening in the ceiling and waited his chance to shoot at the thugs when they got a safe distance away from his father.

He fired once and the bullet went through Harrell's heart. The negro fled into the street where he dropped dead. The three other negroes escaped. Police found a small amount of the loot on Harrell and a pistol lying near him in the street.

Griswold Funeral.

Funeral services for E. O. Griswold, 47, of 775 Argonne avenue, who was shot to death Sunday by Radio Patrolman J. E. Sims when Griswold is alleged to have attacked the officer, will be held at 11 o'cock this morning at the White & Company chapel, Conyers, Ga., with Dr. J. Walton Stewart officiating.

Griswold was one of three men shot and killed in Atlanta Sunday. The other was Wait Duffer, negro, who was shot by Radio Patrolman R. V. Paschal after the negro had knocked the officer to the ground and had reached for a brick to strike him.

FOUR MEN ARE RESCUED FROM WRECKED SHIP

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Norwegian motorship Belpamela wirelessed its Boston agents today that it had picked up four members of the crew of the wrecked New York schooner, Juneal, last night.

The message contained no further details and further information was not expected by the agents before the arrival of the Belpamela tomorrow with its cargo of sugar from Preston, Cuba.

From the known course of the motorship, it was surmised the rescue had taken place somewhere south of the island of Nantucket. Records indicated that the Juneal carried a crew of eight but Boston waterfront observers said it was possible the schooner might have carried a short crew.

Detroit Housewives Visit Capital, Demand Probe of High Meat Prices

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(UP)—Secretary of Agriculture Henry Agard Wallace tried politely to explain his cattle and hog production program to some Detroit housewives today but their only reply was that meat prices are too high. In the face of this feminine logic he grabbed his hat and departed as gracefully as possible.

"How about that investigation of meat prices?" Mrs. Mary Zuk, the leader, called after him.

Wallace closed the door behind him as if he had not heard.

There were five housewives in the delegation. The others were Mrs. Pearl Alterman, Katherine Mudra and Elizabeth Mooss and Irene Thompson, negro.

They described themselves as the Detroit delegation of farm women of the central committee against the high cost of living. They made a beeline for the office of AAA Consumer's Counsel Calvin Hoover.

Mrs. Zuk, spokeswoman, wasted no time in getting to the point. She said the housewives wanted:

1. Immediate investigation of Detroit meat packers.
2. Prosecution of packers found guilty of profiteering.
3. A flat 20 per cent reduction in all meat prices as of July 15.

Their argument was that the government was to blame for high meat prices because it had "destroyed millions of head of cattle, introduced the processing tax, and refused to aid the farmers during the drouth."

In addition, they complained, the money raised through the processing taxes had been "gobbled up by the bankers, loaners and mortgage holders."

"And," said Mrs. Zuk, "the packers boosted prices skyhigh."

While Hoover was facing this fire of charges Wallace arrived. He noticed that newspaper correspondents were busy taking notes.

"We can't have a frank discussion," he suggested to Mrs. Zuk, "with the press present."

"We would rather have an open discussion," replied Mrs. Zuk with a finality that settled that point.

"Is the government going to see that meat prices are reduced 20 per cent?" Mrs. Zuk demanded.

"Under drouth conditions it is impossible to guarantee future meat prices," Wallace said. "If prices are higher in Detroit than elsewhere, an investigation might accomplish something."

"Why does the government pay farmers not to raise little pigs?"

"The government is only concerned with not raising pigs for European consumption, a market that no longer exists," said Wallace. "Do you think farmers are making too much money?" he added.

"Not at all," said Mrs. Zuk, "but meat prices have gone up. The packers have made money. We don't think there is any excuse for these high prices."

Wallace reminded the women that congress has pending a resolution by Representative John D. Dingell, democrat, Michigan, to investigate meat prices, but he saw another barrage of questions was coming. He reached for his hat and left.

Mrs. Zuk was indignant when she was told Representative Clarence Cannon, democrat, Missouri, had suggested packers had inspired the group's protest against processing taxes.

"That's a dirty lie," she said, "and we intend to tell Mr. Cannon so. Our expenses were paid in pennies, nickels and dimes from Detroit housewives. It was money saved by not buying meat."

She marshaled her delegation and left for the White House, where she presented the demands to Marvin McIntyre, President Roosevelt's secretary.

JEWELRY WORTH $235 IS TAKEN FROM HOME

Thieves who ransacked the residence of C. B. Kinard, at 991 Moreland avenue, S. E., yesterday afternoon while Mrs. Kinard was taking her husband to work, got away with jewelry and other effects valued at $225 and $8 in currency, police were informed.

The loot included a shotgun and a pistol. Entrance was effected by cutting the glass out of the entrance door.

A chain grocery store at 496 Ponce de Leon avenue was looted of cigarets valued at $50 and a small amount of currency by thieves who gained entrance early Monday morning through a skylight in the roof, the manager reported to police.

In another foray on a box-car behind the Atlanta Beverage & Bottle Company at 485 Stephens street Sunday night, thieves carried away 12 cases of beer.

Other thieves were frightened away fro mthe resiednce of Mrs. H. Weisman, at 71 Georgia avenue, S. W., when she was awakened and switched on the lights.

A short time later Radio Patrolmen Buckett and Evans, cruising in the vicinity hunting the thieves, arrested two men who gave their names as Lawrence Powell and George Rogers, both of Capitol avenue addresses. Mrs. Weisman identified both men, police said. Both are held on charges of suspicion of robbery.

SCHOOL BODY ADOPTS SALARY HIKE REPORT

Between 300 and 400 employes of the maintenance and operation departments and the administrative offices will get salary increases aggregating about $850 a month if recommendations of the salary adjustment committee are approved at a special meeting of board of education tonight.

The committee last night completed its studies and decided to submit its report.

It also was predicted last night that the board will vote to pay $6,119.32 as the board's share of group insurance for 1,750 employes of the department in accordance with provisions of an act approved at the last session of the Georgia legislature.

A supplement to the report Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, filed at the last regular meeting is slated as an additional order of business at the special board meeting.

COBB COUNTY SAGA IS PUBLISHED HERE

Mrs. Mark Temple Is Author of "First Hundred Years."

"The First Hundred Years, a Short History of Cobb County," by Mrs. Mark Temple, of Marietta, has been published by the Walter W. Brown Publishing Company of Atlanta and is now on sale at Rich's and in Marietta. The book, a 900-page volume, is a scholarly history of the county written after five years of research work by the wife of a well-known newspaperman, Mark Temple, of the Associated Press Atlanta staff.

Mrs. Temple, who has lived in Cobb county practically all of her life, traveled hundreds of miles in and around the county to obtain the data for the history. Nearly 60,000 names were checked to obtain a list of the original settlers of the county. The book goes back to the settlement of that section of the Cherokee Indian territory and brings it up to the present day.

The authoress gives especial treatment to the county's part in the Civil War, tracing step by step the march of Johnston's and Sherman's armies and giving a detailed story of the fight at Kennesaw mountain and the battle of Chatham's Hill.

The book is fully illustrated, one of the most striking pictures being that of Sherman's army entering Marietta in 1864.

Mrs. Temple is the youngest daughter of Judge and Mrs. George F. Gober. She spent several years in publicity and social service work in New York and for a time served with the Red Cross in the west and southwest.

CHURCH TO BURN NOTE ON BUILDING IN PUBLIC

Money was given so generously to Sandy Springs Methodist church by the congregation Sunday that at 8 o'clock tomorrow night the last note on the church will be publicly burnt under the arbor where the annual camp meeting is in progress.

The Rev. S. A. F. Wagner, pastor, and Dr. Willis Jones, presiding elder of the Marietta district, will burn the note. Many leading pastors of the North and South Georgia conferences are attending the camp meeting, it was said.

Victim of Auto Smash

MISS BARBARA CHAFFEE.

MURDER CHARGED IN FATAL ACCIDENT

Jack Hair, 24, Ordered Held in Death of Miss Barbara Chaffee.

A warrant charging murder was sworn out yesterday by DeKalb county police against Jack Hair, 24, of 522 Lakeshore drive, N. E., in connection with the auto crash Sunday night which resulted in the death of Miss Barbara Chaffee, 21, of 824 Edgewood avenue, N. E.

The charge followed establishment of the fact that Hair had been driving the car at the time of the fatal accident, police said. A witness who had reached the machine immediately after the wreck informed them, they declared, that Hair had been under the steering wheel.

Luke Mizell, brother of Warner Mizell, former All-American football player at Georgia Tech, had told officers at the hospital immediately after the crash that he had been driving the car, but it was later revealed that he had been suffering from shock and did not realize that he had made the statement. He denied yesterday that he had been driving.

Funeral services for Miss Chaffee will be held at 9 o'clock this morning at the Sacred Heart church with the Rev. Father Edward P. McGrath officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery with Sam R. Greenberg & Company in charge.

Mizell suffered a fractured arm and ankle and lacerations of the face and Hair suffered a fracture of the jaw. Both of them are in Emory University hospital. The accident occurred at the intersection of Lullwater road and North Decatur road.

WITNESS MAY FACE CHARGE OF PERJURY

Boykin To Ask Indictment of E. M. Weldon in Brewer Trial.

An indictment charging perjury to E. M. Weldon, witness in the case of Patrolman C. W. Mauldin, who is under indictment for assault with intent to murder, will be sought today before the July-August grand jury by Solicitor-General John A. Boykin.

Weldon, it was said, testified in recorder's court under oath concerning the position of Officer Mauldin's pistol during the affray in which L. C. Brewer was shot and wounded by the policeman in a Fair street restaurant.

His testimony was not in accord with evidence of other witnesses, it was said. Mauldin was absolved of blame by the recorder's court on Weldon's testimony, but was subsequently named in a true bill by the grand jury.

The solicitor-general will also present 14 indictments for lottery offenses. The persons accused were said to be writers and pickup men in the "bug" game, and were arrested during the last two weeks by the lottery raiding squad of the solicitor's office.

POLICEMAN SUSPENDED BY CHIEF STURDIVANT

W. G. Scott Faces Drinking Charge; Several Transfers Are Announced.

Patrolman W. G. Scott was suspended by Police Chief T. O. Sturdivant yesterday on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer. It is alleged that the officer was drinking while off duty, but in uniform. Scott's suspension follows the recent order issued by Chief Sturdivant that no police officer be permitted to drink alcoholic beverages either while on duty or while in uniform off duty.

The order was issued following an investigation of alleged shakedowns by police officers of restaurants and speakeasy establishments.

Continuing the reorganization of the department, Chief Sturdivant announced further shakeups in the personnel of various units and established a new ruling on changes in the radio patrol watches.

"I find," he said, "that there have been periods of about 10 minutes at 8 o'clock in the morning, 4 o'clock in the afternoon and midnight when there has been no radio patrol crew available for immediate call. In the future radio patrols going off duty will answer alarms until they are actually relieved."

The shake-up involved a number of police units. Detectives D. L. Taylor and W. B. Martin, formerly on the holdup squad, were transferred to the homicide squad to replace Detectives A. G. Stone and S. B. McGarrity. Stone was assigned with Detective Pat Campbell to work junk shops and pawnbrokers.

Detective E. B. Blair, formerly of the auto theft squad, was transferred with Detective McGarrity to work on lottery cases. Traffic Patrolman G. B. Scoggins was transferred to the detective department to work with Detective W. W. Wallace on general assignments.

Detective E. D. Meek was transferred from general assignments to work with L. H. Satterfield on auto thefts and Patrolman S. C. Dillingham was assigned to the burglar alarm system.

KEEN EYESIGHT

Defective vision is an insidious handicap that no child can overcome—a handicap because it produces headaches, a dislike for school, poor marks, reticence, and a cross disposition—insidous because it can continue for years before its presence is discovered.

Only a complete examination with up-to-date equipment can reveal inadequacies of vision. An examination will assure him and will assure you that his eyes—whether he wears glasses or not—will give him their best in good vision.

WHO'D BELIEVE I WAS SKINNY AND LONELY A FEW WEEKS AGO
Posed by professional models

It's a shame to be SKINNY

When Special, Quick Way Adds 5 to 15 lbs., Amazingly Fast!

THOUSANDS of girls who were "skinny" and friendless have gained solid, normally attractive flesh this new, easy way—in just a few weeks!

Doctors now say the real reason why great numbers of people can't seem to gain an ounce is they fail to get enough health-building Vitamin B and iron in their daily food. But now with this new discovery which combines these two vital elements in little concentrated tablets, hosts of men and women have put on pounds of firm flesh—in a very short time.

Besides, thousands have gained a naturally clear complexion, freedom from indigestion and constipation, new health, strength and pep.

7 times more powerful

This amazing new product, Ironized Yeast, is made from special imported cultured ale yeast, the richest known source of Vitamin B. By a new process this super-rich ale yeast is concentrated 7 times—made 7 times more powerful. Then it is ironized with 3 kinds of iron.

If you, too, are one of the many who simply need Vitamin B and iron to build up, get Ironized Yeast tablets from your druggist at once. Day after day as you take them, watch skinny limbs and flat chest round out to normal attractiveness. Skin clears to natural beauty, new health comes—you're a new person.

Results guaranteed

No matter how skinny and rundown you may be from lack of enough Vitamin B and iron, this marvelous new Ironized Yeast should build you up in a few short weeks as it has thousands. If not delighted with the results of the very first package, money back instantly.

WARNING! Don't be fooled

Don't be deceived by the many cheaply prepared "Yeast and Iron" tablets sold in imitation of Ironized Yeast. These cheap imitations usually contain only the lowest grade of ordinary yeast and iron, and cannot possibly give the same results as the scientific Ironized Yeast formula. Be sure you get the genuine. Look for "IY" stamped on each tablet. Get Ironized Yeast tablets from your druggist today.

WOMAN PASTOR YIELDS CHURCH SHE CAPTURED

Four-Day Barricade Ends With Surrender to Officers; Courts To Decide.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 19.—(AP) The Rev. Mrs. Emma Hussung late today yielded to the coaxing of a constable, three deputies, a county patrolman and two city plainclothesmen, and quietly ended her four days' barricade of the Sunnydale Reformed church.

The woman minister's claim to leadership of the church headed toward a court fight. She submitted to arrest on a charge of trespassing on church property and breach of the peace, and was released on $100 bond.

Arrested with her, and also under bonds, were Joseph Sager and Ferris Compton, workers in the Volunteers of America, who had acted as her guards after she locked herself inside the church and declared she would hold it against all men.

Hearing on the charges was set for Wednesday. Hearing on Mrs. Hussung's writ of possession, which she obtained last week, was set for Friday.

After the Rev. Mrs. Hussung admitted the officers to the church she went to the pulpit, placed her hand on the Bible and offered a prayer. She had told the officers if they used bullets she would combat them with prayer.

The warrants against Mrs. Hussung's were sworn to by Walter Kallbreier, member of the present church board which had removed her as pastor.

MRS. JOHN P. FORT CALLED BY DEATH

Wife of Late Judge Fort and Former Teacher Here Passes.

Mrs. John P. Fort, sister of the late Judge William D. Ellis, of the superior courts of Atlanta, and a school teacher here for many years before her marriage to Captain John P. Fort, died Sunday afternoon at her summer home at Mt. Airy, Ga., after a short illness, according to advices received here yesterday.

She was widely known throughout the state for her activities in church, civic and school work. Born in Barnwell district, South Carolina, she came with her mother and father, Dr. and Mrs. William Ellis, to Atlanta in the early 70's.

She was married to Captain Fort in 1881 and moved to the family home near Albany. Later they moved to Mt. Airy.

Mrs. Fort is survived by six children, Mrs. Daniel H. Redfearn, of Miami, Fla.; Mrs. Arthur Codington, of Atlanta; Mrs. Hartley Anderson, of Birmingham; Dr. Tomlinson Fort, of Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa.; John P. Fort, of Chattanooga, and William E. Fort, of Cornelia, Ga., and 14 grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at the Episcopal church in Mt. Airy and the body will be taken to Albany for burial by the side of her husband.

YOUTH, 17, BOUND OVER IN ROBBERY ATTEMPTS

Pleading guilty of making two attempts at cracking a filling station safe 17-year-old Jack Butler, who gave his address as a downtown hotel, was bound over to the grand jury on a $1,000 bond yesterday in recorder's court.

The youth was arrested by Detectives Leo Nahlik and J. J. Chester, who discovered his identity after he had dropped his wallet containing telltale papers while making his second effort last week to crack the safe of the Gulf filling station at Piedmont avenue and Boulevard.

He first entered the station, it was brought out at the trial, last Monday night. Failing to gain entrance to the safe, he took a uniform belonging to the station operator. He later went through the pockets of the uniform and found a slip of paper bearing the combination to the safe, and returned Thursday night, according to detectives. He again was unsuccessful, and this time left his wallet containing the incriminating papers.

MRS. W. W. HARDEN PASSES SUDDENLY

Mrs. W. W. Harden, wife of Dr. W. W. Harden, prominent Atlanta dentist, died suddenly Sunday afternoon at the home of her sister, Mrs. P. H. Askew, near Nashville, Ga., it was reported here yesterday. She passed away several hours after complaining of feeling ill at noon.

Mrs. Harden had been a resident of Atlanta for more than 20 years, coming here from Tift county after her marriage. She was a member of the Primitive Baptist church and a native of Berrien county.

Surviving are her husband; a daughter, Mrs. Linnial H. Beam, of Atlanta; two sons, Alton F. Harden, New York, and William W. Harden, Miami, Fla., and several sisters and brothers. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Stop Chills and Fever!

Rid Your System of Malaria!

Shivering with chills one moment and burning with fever the next—that's one of the effects of Malaria. Unless checked, the disease will do serious harm to your health. Malaria, a blood infection, calls for two things. First, destroying the infection in the blood. Second, building up the blood to overcome the effects of the disease and to fortify against further attack.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic supplies both these effects. It contains tasteless quinine, which kills the infection in the blood, and iron, which enriches and builds up the blood. Chills and fever soon stop and you are restored to health and comfort. For half a century, Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic has been sure relief for Malaria. It is just as useful, too, as a general tonic for old and young. Pleasant to take and absolutely harmless. Safe to give children. Get a bottle at any drug store. Now two sizes—50c and $1. The $1 size contains 2½ times as much as the 50c size and gives you 25% more for your money.

Unnamed Beauty Salon Opens on Peachtree

Complete in every detail, this new beauty salon was opened to the public last Friday morning as one of the most exquisitely appointed salons in the southeast. One of the most outstanding features of this new salon is its spacious reception room. Leading off from this room, two arched passageways lead into the permanent waving and manicuring departments. A highly specialized beautician is here to advise patrons just how to correct various skin and hair blemishes. For the present this beautiful new shop is without a name. Until the new name is chosen it is being spoken of as the "New" beauty salon, 1705 Peachtree street.

City Council Meeting Harmonious As Major Measures Are Tabled

Sidetracking at least temporarily a move to ring the "curfew" on beer and wine sellers located outside the inner fire limits, city council yesterday held a harmonious session.

The ordinance aimed at wine and beer dealers would have prevented sales between midnight and 6 o'clock in the morning. It was sent to the police committee for further study.

Alderman I. Gloer Hailey's anti-jitter ordinance, however, was taken from the table and approved by vote of council. It bars unnecessary noises throughout the city after midnight and its provisions for the most part are parallel to ordinances already on the statute books.

Will L. Hancock, member of a citizens' commission, which aided in preparing the old ordinance, asserted the city already had adequate anti-noise ordinances if they were enforced properly.

School Measure Tabled.

The council reconsidered and tabled a measure providing for the raising of the school participation in the September 18 bond issue from $275,000 to $1,000,000. The action was taken after proponents of the measure told council it was too late to put the addition on the September 18 ballot.

A move to assess a $1.50 inspection fee against every person installing any automatic coal or coke stoker, gas burner or oil burner was referred to the sanitary committee of city council after it had been approved and was later reconsidered.

Opponents took the position that the fee charge should not be levied against Atlanta citizens and that some other method be devised.

Other Actions.

Among other major actions of council were the following:

1. Passed resolutions regretting the deaths of Will Rogers and Wiley Post. The measure was offered by Hailey.

2. Referred to the police committee a request by Foote & Davies Company that the city reimburse it for $500 taken in two robberies which they attributed to the fact that an obstruction is built in front of the old Gould building adjoining the company's properties. The city was blamed because it did not order the obstruction removed.

3. Repealed the ordinance passed several years ago requiring that all houses with non fireproof roofs be replaced.

4. Barred the use of air rifles, air pistols and sling shots inside the city limits.

5. Approved an ordinance prohibiting the parking of trucks more than 8 feet wide or 10 feet high on the streets unless the driver is actually present and in charge of it at all times. The move was labeled as an effort to reduce accidents.

Permits Revoked.

6. Revoked the permits of the Teenie Weenie Lunch Room, 1134 Euclid avenue, and W. T. Hood, 584 Edgewood avenue, to sell wine and beer.

7. Sent to the ordinance committee a move to require peddlers of fruits and produce to procure certificates that they are free of communicable diseases.

8. Approved purchase of a loud speaker system for the city council chamber for $275, but it was held up in the aldermanic board.

9. Referred to the ordinance committee a proposed ordinance by Alderman John Scott forcing the city to put sirens on all emergency cars, including ambulances, fire apparatus and police cars. The police committee, at its last session, turned down a proposal by Hailey that police radio cars be so equipped after Oscar H. Pendley, secretary of the police department, cited the fact that radio car arrests in Detroit fell "to nothing when the sirens were placed on them, and immediately went up again after they were taken off." Hailey is the author of the anti-jitters ordinance.

The aldermanic board in addition to holding up the loud speaker purchase refused to approve $100 for B. Graham West, city comptroller, to attend the annual convention of Municipal Finance Officers of America at Knoxville October 21-23; a contract which would have allowed the Gulf Refining Company the right to sell gasoline at wholesale prices at Candler field for the next five years for which the company was to pay $10 a year to the city, and a contract between American Airways, Inc., and Georgia Flying Service, Inc.

MAN ARRESTED HERE IN KILLING OF NEGRO

John Fox, wanted, according to H. N. Brady, sheriff of Troup county, in connection with the death of Fred Guffie, negro, whose mutilated body was found on the highway near Hogansville, was arrested yesterday morning by Detectives W. D. Martin and D. L. Taylor and Patrolman A. Douglas Poole in a house at 182 Woodward avenue.

Arrested with Fox was Forrest Ewing, 27, who escaped January 7 from the chain gang at Baxley, where he was serving a 15-to-20-year sentence following his conviction on a robbery count.

Ewing, according to police, has escaped on two previous occasions from the chain gang and has been captured on both previous breaks in Atlanta by the same officers. Following his first escape he was retaken here by Patrolman Poole. The second time he was captured by Detectives Martin and Taylor. This time all three officers united in effecting the capture.

MRS. ROBERT F. MORRIS DIES AT STAUNTON, VA.

Mrs. Robert Foster Morris, sister of Dr. S. L. Morris Sr., pastor of the Morningside Presbyterian church, of Atlanta, died Sunday night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Hunter Blakely, in Staunton, Va.

In addition to Mrs. Blakely she is survived by six other daughters, Mrs. T. F. Abercrombie, wife of the state director of public health; Miss Janie Morris, of Atlanta; Mrs. R. L. Ariail, Sylva, N. C.; Mrs. Boggs Kennedy and Mrs. John Ryan, Wichita Falls, Texas, and Mrs. Harry Lee, Detroit, Mich.; a son, James Hervey Morris, Clarendon, Texas; and her brother, Dr. Morris.

Mrs. Morris, before her marriage, was Miss Mamie Cowan, of Abbeville county, South Carolina.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Presbyterian church of Willington, S. C.

JOHN M. ARCHER RITES WILL BE HELD TODAY

Funeral services for John M. Archer, 78, formerly a prominent resident of Jonesboro, who died Sunday at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. G. W. Moore, 539 Crew street, will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Jonesboro Methodist church with the Revs. W. J. de Bardeleben and Watson officiating.

Mr. Archer had been active in Clayton county and Jonesboro civic and business affairs until his health failed several years ago. He then came to Atlanta to make his home with his daughter.

He is survived by two other daughters, Mrs. J. F. Brown and Mrs. W. M. River, and two sons, W. C. Archer, of Atlanta, and L. L. Archer, of Indian Springs. Burial will be in the Jonesboro cemetery.

GEORGE'S AMENDMENT TO BE AID TO FARMER

Georgia farmers will profit millions of dollars as the result of an amendment to the national tax act which was sponsored by United States Senator Walter F. George, he announced yesterday.

The Georgia senator introduced the amendment which puts a tax on vegetable and animal oils coming into this country from the Philippine Islands, as well as the levy made against the oils from foreign countries.

"The great value to the farmers of the south lies in the fact that cottonseed oil will not be subject to the extensive competition of the various vegetable oils of the Philippines," Senator George stated. He said farmers throughout the country would benefit to the extent of "tens of millions of dollars" through his amendment.

LEGIONNAIRES IN TENN. HEAR QUIMBY MELTON

Veterans Urged Not To Lose Sight of Object in Fight for Bonus Payment.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Official business sessions of the 17th annual convention, Tennessee department, American Legion, got under way here today with the report of Leonard Sisk, Nashville, state commander, and a speech by Quimby Melton, Griffin, Ga., national vice commander, as features.

Sisk reviewed the work of the department during the last year and Melton's speech dealt with the question of payment of the soldiers' bonus.

Melton warned Legionnaires not to lose sight of the main objectives of the Legion program in their fight to obtain payment of the bonus.

Melton urged immediate cash payment of the bonus, but warned Legionnaires not to quarrel among themselves as to how it should be paid.

He charged that "the communists, the Economy League and organized crime" and certain politicians would like to see the American Legion break up over a division on the bonus question.

"Before the bonus was brought up in congress," he said, "rehabilitation of the wounded, care of the widows and orphans of veterans, child welfare and national defense were set out as the aims of this great organization. They will continue to be so."

Declaring that there are in the United States 10,000,000 aliens who have shown no desire to become citizens of this country, Melton advocated their immediate deportation.

"This country's schools and colleges," he said, "are annually turning out American citizens for whom there are no jobs."

He estimated 4,000,000 aliens who have not sought citizenship are holding jobs that might be filled by Americans.

Guy May, Nashville, state adjutant, called the convention to order and turned over the gavel to Sisk.

DOYAL PROTESTS GOTHAM TAG RULE

Revenue Chairman Writes New York About Order To Stop Cars.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 19.—(AP)—A protest by the Georgia State Revenue Commission against orders issued to New York state police to stop all automobiles displaying Georgia license tags was the subject of a sharp crossfire of comment between motor vehicle officials of both states today.

Carroll E. Mealey, New York state deputy commissioner of motor vehicles, revealed that the order resulted from a discovery that New York state motorists, whose registrations had been suspended, were buying Georgia's $3 license plates and putting them on New York state cars.

Mealey's declaration was contained in a letter to Paul H. Doyal, chairman of the Georgia State Revenue Commission, at Atlanta, Ga., replying to a communication written by the latter on Saturday and received here today.

The Georgia official said he was "shocked" by dispatches saying that Mealey had asked police throughout the state to stop all cars bearing Georgia registration and ascertain if the operators were actual residents of Georgia, alleging that Georgia was conducting a mail order business in $3 registration plates, and that letters inclosing quantities of blank applications were being sent out by the Georgia officials.

ZIONISTS REJECT FRAUD CHARGES

Small Number of Votes From Chicago Cancelled at Congress in Switzerland.

LUCERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 19. (Palcor Agency)—Allegations of irregularity in the American elections for delegates to the world Zionist congress were rejected today by the court of honor of the world Zionist congress. It decided the protest registered by the Jewish state party was untenable.

The court of honor yielded only slightly to the charges of fraud in the voting in the United States by canceling a small number of votes from Chicago. This will not, however, affect the total of the election returns from America.

So extraordinary is the demand for tickets to the opening tomorrow night of the first session of the congress that it was today decided by the arrangements committee to have an overflow meeting at a theater adjacent to the congress and art palace to which the entire proceedings will be broadcast.

Long queues were sitting waiting at the congress box office to purchase tickets for individual sessions and for the entire period of the two weeks during which the congress will be held.

"AN AMERICAN INSTITUTION"

POLITICAL ALLIANCES STUDIED BY GRAND JURY

sioner Edwin F. Johnson, who is the acknowledged leader of the group, deserted the custom and relegated Longino and Ragsdale to a back seat. These two formed the minority and were given only unimportant committees to head. Johnson was named chairman of the police committee, which is considered a "political plum" in the set-up of county government.

Departure Protested.

Attorney Sheats protested the departure from the usual course at the time, and claimed for Ragsdale the honor of the chairmanship.

Yesterday he was notified to appear before the jurors and it was understood his testimony would concern this situation.

The grand jury last week referred to records which showed that senior members of the board have always been named to chairman the two most important positions. Adams, Almand and Johnson are all new members on the board, having taken office at the beginning of this year.

It was reported that the jurymen will seek to find the reason for the majority faction's departure from precedent.

Inexperience Cited.

In special presentments returned by the jury Friday expressed the opinion that Dr. Adams was not qualified to hold the position of chairman of the commission, and that Almand had not the experience necessary to property disburse the public's money through the public works department. "Both these gentlemen are completely dominated by Commissioner Johnson, whose sole purpose apparently is to buld up a political machine," the jurymen stated. It was pointed out, however, that Dr. Adams and Almand were apparently well intentioned, only inexperienced in handling governmental business.

The exhaustive investigation was begun early in July after Longino brought charges of extravagance and waste in expenditures and that the majority bloc was "running a political job racket with the county pay roll."

Retrenchment Asked.

Subsequently in special presentments the jury recommended a program of drastic retrenchment back to the level of 1934.

It advised that nearly 50 employes (whom Longino termed political parasites) should be discharged and that salaries should be reduced the $192,000 a year which they were increased this year. And also that the commission should keep within its budget, which the jury pointed out is now already exceeded by more than $182,000.

It likewise recommended that the commissioners patch up their differences and work together harmoniously. It was thought yesterday that the deep inquiry into the motives of the majority faction in forming the controlling alliance was a step in this direction by the jury itself.

MERCHANT IDENTIFIES MAN WHO ROBBED HIM

With the identification yesterday in the police lineup of S. T. Dillard as one of the trio which last Tuesday held up and robbed a grocery store on Hill street at Georgia avenue, Detectives Martin and Taylor said they plan to seek grand jury indictments against Dillard and Johnny Edwards, his alleged companion, who was identified several days ago as a member of the three-man holdup gang.

Identifications were established in both cases by Andrew Floyd, manager of the chain store. The two men, Floyd said, were members of the trio which robbed him and two other persons in his store last Tuesday.

BODIES OF POST, ROGERS BORNE TO LOS ANGELES

these sleepless nights with his unfailing humor and encouragement.

Tonight, all that remained of these two men—who died together in their crash of Post's plane near Point Barrow, Alaska, Thursday—lay under the shrouds.

In two hearses, escorted by 20 motorcycle policemen, the bodies were taken from the great plane here to the Forest Lawn mortuary in Glendale.

Only 12 days ago Rogers and Post, their every move followed by hundreds of amused and excited persons, left Seattle on a "vacation flight" to Alaska.

Halt at Seattle.

Crowds gathered again in Seattle as Crosson, in his big twin-motored Pan-American plane, came in to a speedy landing at Boeing field and taxied quickly into a hangar guarded by police.

Many had waited through the night at the airport for the arrival of the plane.

The sorrowing Crosson talked little. "I just haven't much of anything to say."

He was asked if he warned Post and Rogers against making the flight on which they crashed to death 15 miles south of Point Barrow. At first he was silent. Finally, he said:

"I just bade them farewell."

The windows of the funeral plane were covered at Seattle. The hangar's windows also were papered. A mortician's ambulance remained outside after the hangar doors were closed.

Post's face bore a gash over the left eye and other smaller scratches. His limbs were broken, an observer inside the building reported. Rogers' face was crushed.

Two Accompany Bodies.

Colonel Clarence Young, Pacific coast manager of Pan-American Airways, and Amon Carter, of Fort Worth, Texas, a close friend of the Rogers family, greeted Crosson's ship at Seattle.

The two were on the big silver liner which continued with the bodies southward. Crosson went aboard the plane briefly. He left just before it roared down the runway.

As Rogers and Post were carried home, legions of friends in California and Oklahoma turned to honor their memory.

Los Angeles will not see Wiley Post again, for an airport here was only a scheduled stop in the trip to Oklahoma. But the body of Rogers will lie in state from 7 o'clock tomorrow morning until just before funeral services at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Until noon Thursday the body will rest under the pines and olive trees of Forest Lawn cemetery, Glendale. A few yards away the funeral services will be held in a chapel, Wee Kirk o' the Heather.

The chapel permits an attendance of only 125. The services, to be conducted by the Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher, long an intimate friend of Rogers, will be attended only by the closest friends.

Mass Service Planned.

A great public service will be held at Hollywood Bowl, where 20,000 persons will gather.

For a while Rogers will rest in a receiving vault at Forest Lawn, not far from two of his friends, Florenz Zeigfeld and Marie Dressler. There sleep others who have known fame and love of the public—Lon Chaney, Charles Mack, Ernest Torrance, Jack Pickford, Russ Columbo, Walace Reid and many others.

Later Rogers will go back to his native Oklahoma—to rejoin Post. Flags will be lowered. Every movie studio will be dark.

As Rogers and Post came home, Mrs. Rogers and the three children, Will Jr., Mary and Jimmie, were speeding from New York.

Will Rogers had an itching foot and liked to go places and see things. Today a saying he made many times was recalled. Always on his travels he was urged to stay over a day or two for some function, which would have been advanced from routine to sensational by his presence.

"Can't," was the inevitable reply. "I gotta go home."

Refinery Expansion.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Preparations are being made for construction and installation of two modern plants at the principal refinery of the Texas Corporation at Port Arthur, Texas, it was announced today. The two plants will involve a monetary outlay of about $3,000,000.

Auto Thief Faces Pen For Conscience's Sake

A nicely dressed young man who told police that he had never done anything wrong with one exception and that exception had preyed on his mind until he realized that he must make restitution for the sake of his conscience, yesterday walked into police headquarters declaring that he wanted to talk to someone about a stolen car.

"It wasn't my car," the young man said. "I stole an automobile and I want to serve whatever sentence they give me so I can get some sleep at night.

"Where is the stolen car now?" the amazed officer asked.

"The Atlanta police recovered it several months ago and returned it to the owner," the man said.

The stranger was turned over to Detective George Barrett, of the auto theft squad, and gave his name as Jack Ansley, 28, of Primrose street.

"I stole the automobile on June 8 from the Redman Motor Company in Homestead, Fla.," he said. "I'll plead guilty to the charge and I'd like to have a quick trial and get it over with.

Police records revealed that the car had been recovered nearly two months ago on Racine street by Detective Barrett and had been returned to its rightful owner. Transportation of a stolen car from one state into another constitutes a federal offense.

TIRED and PEPLESS

No wonder so many of us get up in the morning feeling as tired as when we went to bed—no wonder the world looks blue. If your stomach is full of a thing like vile, rancid vinegar, your food doesn't do you much good. You get only what comes from a sour fermenting mass. You can't help but lose strength, get nervous and feel exhausted all the time. If this acid gets over into the bowels, it upsets their action and you get constipated. Then toxic poisons get into the blood and start a lot of things like headaches, rheumatic pains, bladder irritation, etc.

Don't take salts or purgatives to clean out this sourness—they flush out vital body fluids and leave your system dry and inflamed without helping the cause. Try Placidan, the new medical discovery with the double action. Placidan WIPES out excessive acidity without disturbing the stomach juices. It forms a soothing coating over raw irritated membranes and helps stop the making of more burning acid. You get RELIEF at once from gas and acid indigestion. Take Placidan regularly for a short time and you'll soon rejoice at the astonishing return of vigor.

NOTE: Say NO if something else is offered to you as being "just as good." You have taken these substitutes before and they did you no good. Insist on Placidan.

Post as Child and Youth, With Winnie Mae

Wiley Post Deserted Life on Farm At Early Age To Study Mechanics

This article, first in a series of four, traces the early life of Wiley Post . . . the beginning of a dramatic career that took him around the world twice and brought him death in Alaska.

By FOSTER HAILEY,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

He was like any other baby, that squalling infant who was born to Mr. and Mrs. William F. Post, cotton farmer of Van Zanot county, Texas, November 22, 1898.

No one looking at his wrinkled, red little face that day would have dared predict that 35 years later he would fly the world, alone, in less than eight days. Wiley Post was five years old before the Wright brothers made their epic flight at Kitty Hawk, N. C.

In his boyhood on the farm, young Wiley did the usual chores around the house, "chopping cotton" in the fields as he grew older.

Liked to "Tinker Around."

His mother said he always preferred "tinkering around" with machinery to doing other work on the farm. Young Wiley never got over his early love of machines, the roar of an engine, the feel of steel under his hands. He never got the smell of hot oil out of his brain.

As a youngster he moved to Maysville, Okla., with his parents, sometimes playing hookey from farm work to hang around the local garage and help tinker with the then-developing automobile.

When he was 18, his father gave him a bit of land on which to raise his own cotton. With the proceeds of his first crop, the lad took a train for Kansas City and an auto mechanics school.

Returning home, he found the farm less attractive than ever, and enlisted in the army flying corps. But he had falsified his age and was booted out when it was discovered.

First Taste of Flying.

Meantime he had received his first taste of flying. A barnstorming pilot came through Maysville and, for 25 of young Post's hard-earned dollars, he took the youngster up and "gave him the works"—rolls, loops, falling leafs.

On that flight the die was cast.

Not long after, as he worked in the fields—his hopes for army service shattered—he saw a barnstorming pilot, L. L. Lewis, land his plane in a near-by field.

"I am going away with him and I'm never coming back," Post told friends.

He never did.

POWER HEAD IS FORCED TO BARE HIS PROFITS

son, master of the Associated Gas & Electric system, was a far different witness from the easy, self-confident big businessman, who in previous appearances seemed to enjoy matching wits with the committee.

Contempt Threat.

Frankly irritated by long, rambling answers and a disposition to argue with members of the committee, Chairman Black, democrat, Alabama, early in the session threatened to take Hopson's case to the senate. A contempt citation already hangs over him there.

The warning was repeated as the questioning proceeded and Hopson charged the committee with divulging private affairs and with not wanting "to get the whole truth into the record." Black demanded, but did not get, a retraction.

Hopson's profits were placed in the record by Senator Schwellenbach, democrat, Washington, who has spent weeks studying the financial setup of the Associated Gas & Electric system and companies owned privately by Hopson.

Over a 10-year period, the utilities man said, he received $654,000 from the Jones Operating & Financial Corporation. The company performed services for public utility operating companies, with about half its business, he testified, coming from companies of the Associated system.

In direct charge was E. J. Cheney. By agreement, half the profits were to go to him and half to a trust owned by Hopson's three sisters, Norma, Amy and Berle, to whom, he said, he had given that interest in the concern.

Agreement Revealed.

Schwellenbach produced an agreement between Hopson and Cheney, under which the latter's share was to be deposited to an account in Cheney's name at the Equitable Trust Company. Only Hopson could withdraw funds from that account. Of the sums deposited, Cheney was to receive half. Hopson's $654,000 came to him by that route.

While the witness vehemently remonstrated, Schwellenbach contended the arrangement was for the purpose of "concealment," and intended to keep the stockholders of Associated Gas from knowing that Hopson, an officer of the company, was profiting from services sold to the system's operating companies.

"You're trying to make me say say something that is not a fact," he shot back at Schwellenbach. "There was no deception about it."

"On the books your name does not appear as getting any money," Schwellenbach persisted.

Schwellenbach later contended that a Jones Company auditors' report showed as well that Hopson put only $5,000 capital into the company. Hopson's denial was indignant.

He insisted that he advanced sums from time to time to meet bills and payrolls.

Refuses to Swear.

Black leaped into the questioning with a demand that he swear he put more than $5,000 into the concern.

"I won't swear that I did or didn't," Hopson said. "The books will speak for themselves. But until I look at the books, I don't know."

In response to questions, Hopson told how Associated Gas advertising in the Miami Herald was canceled and then reinstated. Black sought to connect this with the publication of editorials favoring the utilities bill and later statements against it, together with the paper's publication of an interview with Hopson.

Questioning brought an account of how the paper first missed and later printed an Associated Press dispatch dealing with the statement of a utilities official. The copy was furnished by the Florida Power and Light Company, a few days after it had been printed elsewhere.

Correction of Stories.

Hopson wired his New York office to ask the Associated Press New York headquarters why the dispatch had been widely printed in some sections and not in others. It replied, he said, that some mechanical defect may have entered into the situation, but that the organization's intent was to give full, fair and adequate coverage.

"Whenever I read anything inaccurate or unfair I tried to do something to get it corrected," Hopson testified.

"How?"

"By having our people interview editors, proprietors, writers, the managers of the A. P., and say 'This is only half the truth; the rest of the story is so and so. We wish you would verify this and next time print all the facts.'"

Hopson readily agreed he had suggested the "widows and orphans" campaign, because, he said, the battle over the bill had become an "emotional issue" with members of congress "stirring up passion and prejudice" instead of discussing the bill on its merits.

"I preferred an appeal to reason," he said. "But the other side stirred up the emotional issue and there was only one way to meet it—show that it worked both ways."

ATLANTA IS DELUGED BY 1.5-INCH RAINFALL bureau admitted that it was a heavy rain, "perhaps excessive."

Street car tieups were reported on the English avenue line, at Gray and Johns streets, one hour; Luckie-Waterworks line, Hemphill and Fourth street, one hour; Piedmont-Park Lane, at Twelfth street, one hour; Buckhead-Oglethorpe, at West Peachtree and Third streets, one hour; West Fair line, at Roach street, one hour and on the Decatur line at DeKalb and Candler, one hour. A few tieups at other points for a shorter length of time were reported but these were the ones that caused concern to trolley passengers and street railway operators.

The rain will go on today, and perhaps for several more days, said George W. Mindling, chief meteorologist of the weather bureau. No break is in sight for the rain clouds hovering over this section that have brought heavy downpours to Atlanta and many other sections of the state for almost a week

Rains Over Georgia.

Rain gauges through Georgia showed these figures from Saturday to yesterday morning:

Atlanta	1.18 inches
Savannah	3.10 inches
Thomasville	2.08 inches
West Point	1.81 inches
LaGrange	1.15 inches
Augusta	.30 inches
Hogansville	.36 inches
Gainesville	.32 inches
Rome	2.00 inches

As a bit of cheer, however, Mr. Mindling added the information that at Charleston, S. C., 6.80 inches have been recorded since Saturday and it is still raining there.

Yesterday's rainfall, according to O. M. Hadley, another meteorologist, was no record ofor Atlanta, where showers of that nature may be looked for in August. The record for Atlanta, according to Mr. Hadley, was on August 30, 1885, when 4.22 inches of rain fell in 24 hours. The record for short rains of yesterday's type was on August 20, 1914, when 3.03 inches fell inside of an hour.

Rome's rainfall of two inches over the week-end was badly needed there, according to County Agent J. V. Webb. Corn, cotton, truck crops and pasture land were benefitted, he said.

The chances are that most of the state has not been hurt, Mr. Mindling said.

munication with the empire and as endangering British control of Lake Tsana, source of the Blue Nile.

Seeks U. S. Aid.

At the same time it was understood the government has made an implied bid for American support in whatever steps the cabinet may feel necessary to safeguard peace.

Agreeing with the French belief the situation is potentially as explosive as it was in 1914, the diplomats wondered how the British government would meet Il Duce's challenge, particularly the lack of new assurance Lake Tsana's waters will remain inviolate.

With the life of Egypt and the Sudan depending on a free flow from the lake into the Blue Nile, Great Britain faces a problem loaded with dynamite.

New Anglo-French Front.

Creation of a new Anglo-French combination, replacing the "Stresa front," was considered here as Eden's sole but important triumph at Paris.

As a result, it was felt that whatever action is taken by the British government individually or by the League of Nations powers together likely will be stronger, now that France is working with England.

In Ethiopian circles it was felt Great Britain would raise its arms export ban quickly. The foreign office, beginning a new review of the ban, gave no indication of what it woul do, however.

The British press commented darkly on the possibility of hostilities in Ethiopia, and the belief was expressed in informed circles the life of the League itself may be at stake.

ROME HITS LEAGUE, THREATENS TO QUIT

PARIS, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Baron Pompeo Aloisi, of Italy, taking leave of the scene of the three-power peace parley today, confirmed the expressed feeling of French high officials an African war is both inevitable and imminent by saying:

"I have no hopes for Geneva. I see no basis for further discussion. Italy does not want to leave Geneva, but, if we are led to the door, we will have to leave."

Before he spoke, officials already were predicting storm clouds for Europe and a return of "jungle law." One high official had said privately that Europe "faces a crisis like that of 1914."

French leaders had placed little hope in subsequent efforts of the League of Nations and Aloisi did not lull their fears Mussolini would not be daunted in his march to colonial power when he added:

"Diplomatic channels have little chance to settle our affairs with Ethiopia."

As for the League covenant's guarantee of independence and integrity for its member nations, he remarked:

"The League engaged itself to do a lot of things it has not done."

He also said Italy has not decided to send representatives to the League sessions starting September 4.

These comments had a depressing effect on the French, who were already alarmed at the collapse of the efforts to find a road to peace for these reasons:

First, the possible loss of Italian friendship;

Second, the threat to the existence of the League of Nations;

Third, the blow to French hopes of a united front by the former allies against Germany;

Fourth, the undermining of that respect for treaties upon which the whole system of international morality depends.

IL DUCE ABOLISHES COMMODITY EXCHANGES

ROME, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Grief and exultation were fused tonight in fascist Italy.

The funeral of Luigi Razza, minister of public works and the six companions who died with him in an Egyptian plane crash on a flight to east Africa August 7, served only to accentuate Premier Mussolini's Sunday charge to his black shirt divisions:

"This is Italy's solemn hours!"

Mussolini himself, surrounded by high members of the fascist party and government officials, led the mourners.

Foreign powers likewise paid homage to the dead. The United States embassy was represented by Alexander Kirk, and a wreath from the British embassy was among the elaborate floral tributes.

The official gazette decreed the increase of the air corps personnel by 16,248 men, including 500 officers and pilots, 1,860 non-commissioned officers, 10,988 soldiers attached to the air force, 1,500 reserve officers and 1,500 non-commissioned officers, bringing the total to over 40,000 men.

New evidence of the nation's intense activity in marshaling her economic resources was contained in an official decree announcing abolition of all commodity exchanges.

The order drew the kingdom's economics even more closely within the control of the corporate state, which has left no stone unturned to insure that the military front in east Africa shall have adequate economic support at home.

SELASSIE UNMOVED BY PARLEY BREAKDOWN

ADDIS ABABA, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Thousands of bare feet, moving with military precision, pounded out Ethiopia's answer to the threat of Italian invasion today as high aids of the "king of kings" declared:

"If war must come, we will be prepared. Throughout the centuries Ethiopia has never been conquered. She shall not be vanquished now."

Within the shadow of the American legation and elsewhere in the capital the thousands of unshod recruits drilled tirelessly. The raucous tones of Hubert Julian, "The Black Eagle of Harlem," who is one of their drillmasters, could be heard above the din of traffic.

Presumably to allocate funds for the purchase of munitions, directors of the Ethiopian National Bank met late today in special session under the chairmanship of the emperor.

(A report the emperor, his hands tied by European arms embargoes, had placed a large munitions order with the Colt Firearms Company, of America, was denied flatly by officials of the concern, at Hartford, Connecticut).

Quantities of arms and munitions, reported reaching Ethiopia through the Sudan, were said to be far short of what was needed.

Emperor Haile Selassie received with his usual serenity news of the breakdown of the Paris tri-power conferences.

He remarked merely Paris did not have the last word in settling the bitter Italo-Ethiopian quarrel, while a high official added:

"We still place all our confidence in the League of Nations. We are sure that England, with her traditional patience, determination and resourcefulness, will find a solution or a compromise."

The Addis Ababa National Bank refused tonight to grant foreign merchants further advances on goods.

Authorities of the French railroad which is Addis Ababa's only modern means to transportation with the rest of the world, stressed confidence they would be able to maintain service between important towns even if railroad bridges are bombed between the capital and the frontier.

This could be done, they said, by relays at the points where the bridges might be wrecked, with a sufficient number of coaches and locomotives being maintained at those points.

Ritchie in England.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Former Governor Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, arrived today for a fortnight of "vacation and fun" in England, and said he was unconcerned with any thought of running for governor again or being a presidential possibility.

in slipping through the meshes of the law; that, on the contrary, every one committing an act deserving punishment shall receive the due punishment regardless of the incompleteness of the law.

"Experience teaches us that no legislator can foresee or regulate in advance the facts in every case which he would threaten with punishment if he were all knowing and all foreseeing.

"Punishment must also be awarded in cases where a legislator has left a gap which he would have filled if he had thought of it."

Thus, he continued, the new nazi penal code, effective September 1, "entails a complete revolution in the domain of the doctrine of illegality and a complete rearrangement in the relationship of the judge to the law."

"Besides the law, the right can also be recognized from the idea of right which underlies the law and which, perhaps, has not been quite completely expressed in the law."

signs, construction, and maintenance operations, with like reorganization of the field personnel to provide adequate and competent engineering and inspection on projects under construction. With regard to the field organization, five divisions are the minimum that can be regarded as adequate to handle the work.

"2. The revision of the rates of compensation and field expense allowances to the extent necessary to secure and retain the services of competent personnel for all engineering and inspection work, re-establishment of approximately the 1933 rates being regarded as necessary for this purpose. Federal highway funds are available for the payment of salaries and expense allowances of resident engineers and assistants engaged upon projects financed with federal funds.

State-Wide Viewpoint.

"3. The establishment of the policy of administering the highway work to be undertaken with federal funds for the state as a whole, and not from the standpoint of the districts or sections of the state in which individual members of the board may reside.

"4. The adoption by the board of a formal resolution establishing the policy of authorizing and empowering the chief engineer to function on all engineering matters for the board, and authorizing and empowering the division engineers and resident engineers to enforce the terms of the specifications and contracts without fear or favor.

"5. The board shall adopt and adhere to a definite policy that no payments shall be made on contract work or on force account work which involve federal funds until, and unless, such payments shall have been approved by the engineer in direct charge of the work and by the chief engineer.

Competent Personnel Sought.

"The purpose and intent of the second requirement are to establish rates of compensation which will insure retention of competent personnel. Since the duties and responsibilities of the various field positions are quite definitely established in the field of highway work rates which are reasonably comparable to the average ot similar positions in the neighboring states would be considered as satisfactory in lieu of the approximately 1933 rates stipulated in our previous letter.

"The attitude of the administration with respect to this whole matter is reflected in a letter addressed by the President to Hon. E. E. Cox, United States representative from Georgia, under date of August 15, copy of which is attached for your information.

"Since it is important that final determination be reached in this matter I request that I have a decision by the state at as early a date as possible.

"Very truly yours,

(Signed) "H. A. WALLACE, "Secretary."

Howto Relieve Headaches In Three Minutes

When you have one of those violent nerve-racking headaches, from inorganic causes, you can get soothing relief in three minutes with "B. C.," a reliable, pleasant-to-take remedy. "B. C." is prepared by a registered pharmacist, compounded on a different principle from most relief-giving agencies in that it contains several ingredients, so blended and proportioned as to accomplish in a few minutes what we believe no one drug formula can do in so short a time. "B. C." should also be used for the relief of muscular aches and pains, common colds and neuralgia; for reducing fever and quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit-forming drugs. Get "B. C." in 10c and 25c packages, wherever drugs are sold.—(adv.)

'UNCLE JIMMIE' DOYLE TO QUIT POLICE FORCE

James H. (Uncle Jimmie) Doyle, turnkey on the third floor of the city prison, will retire from the police force on September 1 after 38 years and 5 months of service during which time he has worked in every department of the police force with the one exception of the motorcycle squad.

He was 61 years old Sunday and celebrated his birthday with a dinner at the home of his daughter, the wife of Dr. E. L. Graydon. Mrs. Graydon celebrated her 31st birthday anniversary on the same day.

tion and consideration of the Federal Bureau of Roads.

"We wish to further call your attention to the fact that when we learned of an additional program for the Highway Department of Georgia, there were additional engineers and draftsmen employe . We went further and hastened the work as rapidly as possible, because we realized that one of the main contentions of the administration was to furnish employment.

"We wish to further call your attention to the fact that we welcomed any criticism, not only from the Federal Bureau of Roads and the administration at Washington but from any citizen of Georgia on the competence of the Highway Department. When we received these critisisms, we always look into them. This is the only way that a competent force can be built up and maintained in a state.

Many Veteran Employes.

"We wish to further call your attention to the fact that over 75 per cent of the engineers, draftsmen and technical men now working with the Highway Department have been employed by the Highway Department for 10 or 12 years.

"In specific answer to your paragraph (1): We do not think that the highway department needs reorganization. It was reorganized in 1933 at which time the competence of each employe was scrutinized carefully and the state went to considerable expenses in trying to thoroughly familiarize the highway commissioners with the competency of the highway department.

"In reference to the portion of paragraph (1), which specifies 'to provide adequate and competent engineering and inspection on projects under construction,' we agree to this, and wish to state that at any time the Federal Bureau of Roads feels they need more inspectors or engineers on the projects, to communicate with us and we will let the Federal Bureau of Roads be the judges as to how many inspectors and engineers they need on the projects.

Opposes Hike in Divisions.

"In reference to the last sentence of paragraph (1), which reads as follows: 'With regard to the field organization, five divisions are the minimum that can be regarded as adequate to handle the work,' we have found that the number of divisions maintained over the state has no bearing whatever on the competence of the organization, or the quality of work that can be done by the organization. The reason that these were cut from six to three was due to the fact that each division required an office force—had to pay rent for buildings, and each wanted to maintain shops in connection with their division.

"We found that by cutting them to three we could eliminate one-half of the rent, half of the power and water bills, and other incidentals which amounted to considerable money. With this saving we furnished extra engineering force to the three divisions which we now maintain.

"In answer to paragraph (2); The Highway Department of Georgia feels that the salaries paid to its employes out of state funds is a matter of states' rights. This is an internal affair, which cannot be regulated by any board or bureau in Washington. In this statement, we are thoroughly in line with the democratic platform of 1932, which stated that it was impossible for any board or bureau at Washington to direct the internal affairs of a state. They cannot be familiar with the conditions.

Would Destroy Morale.

"If they attempted to direct what salaries are paid the highway employes of Georgia, it would destroy the morale of the employes.

"They would have no respect for the highway commissioners of Georgia, and would feel that all they had to do to get a raise in salary would be to make a kick to some employe of the Federal Bureau of Roads.

"In answer to paragraph (3), wish to state that we agree and concur with the provisions of this paragraph in full. We wish to state further that this has been the policy of the Highway Department of Georgia since it has been composed of the present board. Each individual project submitted to the Federal Bureau of Roads has always been passed on by the commissioners as a whole. All other matters affecting the Highway Department are passed on by the commission as a whole, in conformity with the laws creating the Highway Department of Georgia.

Concurs With Paragraph Four.

"In answer to paragraph (4), we wish to state that we concur with the provisions of this paragraph in full. The policies in this paragraph have been adhered to and maintained by the Highway Department of Georgia since composed of the present commissioners.

"In answer to paragraph (5), we wish to state that we concur with all the provisions of this paragraph in full.

"In conclusion, we wish to call your attention to an agreement entered into on September 7, 1933, between Honorable Eugene Talmadge, Governor of Georgia, and Honorable Thomas H. MacDonald, director of the Federal Bureau of Roads, copy of which is inclosed herewith.

"We wish to state that the Governor, immediately upon his return from Washington, transmitted this agreement to the Highway Board and requested that we live up to it to the letter, and in spirit.

"Since that time, we have tried to do this, and will continue to do so.

"We further wish to state that we know that this is the future wish of the Governor of Georgia.

"With best regards to you, we are,

"Sincerely yours,

(Signed) "W. E. WILBURN,

"Chairman, Highway Board of Georgia."

DEKALB POLICE CHIEF PATIENT IN HOSPITAL

Chief W. O. Parker, of the DeKalb county police department, was admitted to Georgia Baptist hospital yesterday for an operation on an enlarged spleen.

The police chief returned home Sunday after a week spent on the Georgia seacoast in an effort to regain his health. But an examination Sunday by attending physicians showed that an operation was necessary. His doctors said yesterday that they intended to make further examinations today and would operate today or tomorrow.

Chief Parker is the brother of O. J. Parker, chief of the Atlanta fire department.

Two Scientists Reveal Production Of Artificial Growth Regulators

First Synthetic Hormone Ever Manufactured Also Announced in San Francisco Before American Chemical Society; Acid Found in Sheep Wool Grease.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—(AP) Production of 20 milligrams of pantothenic acid—a powerful regulator of growth—was announced today before the American Chemical Society.

At the same time the society's ninetieth annual convention was informed that 200 drams of the first synthetic male hormone ever "manufactured" also has been produced.

Professor Roger J. Williams, of Oregon State College, in a report at the society's opening session, revealed the production of the acid. Dr. L. Ruzicka, of Zurich, Switzerland, told of making the synthetic hormone from grease of sheep's wool.

Although an amount of the acid weighing less than half a drop of water has been obtained, the Oregon scientist disclosed that much has been learned about the factor governing the growth of all forms of life.

He said he believed the fundamental facts in process of unfolding will have an important bearing in explaining growth and also in practical ways.

Professor Williams first reported discovery of the vital element to the Century of Progress meeting of the society in 1933. Two years have been required to produce the acid after its important function was discovered.

The acid, Professor Williams said, apparently is a universal constituent of all living cells—plant, animal and bacteria.

Minute amounts of the acid, he said, have a remarkable effect in stimulating the growths of various types of plants and single-celled animals.

From grease of sheep's wool the chemist has provided the man of medicine with an artificial male sex hormone with which he may be able to correct sex abnormalities and other physical and malcharacteristics, Dr. Ruzicka reported.

Dr. Ruzicka said 200 drams of the first synthetic hormone ever produced were obtained from chloresterol, gotten from the grease of sheep's wool. It has been named "androsterone," and preparations are under way to produce it in wholesale quantities in Germany and Switzerland.

GUFFEY COAL MEASURE IS APPROVED BY HOUSE

ed congressional action on the bill.

4. The senate, ordinarily more deliberate than the house, caught the fever and whipped through an amendment to the bankruptcy act designed to give relief to farmers burdened with mortgages. The measure was hurried over to the house where the judiciary committee already has approved a virtually identical bill.

Harbor Bill Voted.

A measure to authorize $614,000,000 in river and harbor improvements in every part of the nation cleared the next to the last hurdle on the way to the White House.

Only senate acceptance of a conference report adjusting differences with the house over the legislation was required.

It was only on the second roll call the administration was able to muster sufficient votes to pass the Guffey bill. The count was 195 to 168. The entire Georgia delegation of 10 was pitted against the measure which has been termed destructive to southern mintes.

In a stuffy, steaming room two veterans of congress cracked the lash across the backs of administration democrats. They were Chairman Pat Harrison, of the senate finance committee, and Chairman Doughton, of the house ways and means committee.

Before them they had two vital measures—President Roosevelt's tax-the-rich bill and the federal alcohol control measure. They were playing a wily, strategic game. The idea was to hold the tax bill out until the last minute for fear that as soon as house and senate had approved it, members of congress would bolt for homeward-bound trains.

Harrison and Doughton were dawdling over the two bills. It was reported that there was no serious dissension over the plan to attempt to redistribute wealth by increasing taxes on corporations and the rich.

Utilities Compromise.

Word seeped through congressional corridors a compromise was imminent on the stormiest bill of this session of congress—the utility holding company measure. Senator Barkley, democrat, Kentucky, stepped into the middle of the battle between house and senate conferees with a suggestion.

The senate conferees want to eliminate all holding companies that are found to be "unnecessary" from the standpoint of public interest. The house conferees merely want to regulate such companies.

Barkley's suggestion was the Federal Power Commission make a survey to determine which holding companies are necessary under the terms of the bill. It was understood this compromise had been rejected previously by the conferees, but the changed temper of congress today was believed likely to bring about a different result this time.

The house judiciary committee began consideration of the Walsh bill, already passed by the senate, which would make it obligatory for anyone who sells goods to the federal government to observe NRA hours and wages.

Pension Provisions.

Introduced by Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, and Representative Crosser, democrat, Ohio, the rail pension bill is designed to replace the law enacted last session and declared unconstitutional by the supreme court.

Taxes would be provided in a separate bill, on which the house ways and means committee is now holding hearings. This companion measure would levy a tax of 4 per cent on pay rolls against the railroads and 2 per cent on salaries of employes.

Pensions, based upon service and pay, would go as high as $120 a month, $35 higher than the maximum provided under the social security law. An amendment was added to the bill excluding rail employes from the general old-age pensions.

Aid for Farmers.

The farm aid bill is designed to replace the five-year moratorium law held invalid by a unanimous decision of the supreme court last spring.

The bill's fate in the house was questionable. Representative Lemke, republican, North Dakota, said he would press for action before adjournment, and forecast "only a handful" of votes in opposition. But the bill was not on the list of 11 approved at last night's White House conference.

The measure would permit farmers threatened with foreclosure to go into bankruptcy.

Courts could then permit the farmer to retain possession of his property for three years by paying a "reasonable" rental. The rent would defray taxes and insurance, and any surplus would go to creditors.

A creditor, dissatisfied with the appraisal, could demand an auction sale at which creditors could bid up the appraisal figure or the mortgage value, whichever were higher.

Both house and senate adopted by voice votes the conference report adjusting differences on the banking bill.

Peruchians at Height In Play of South Seas

The Peruchi players, in their fifth production at the Erlanger theater, made a decided hit last night in the romantic drama, "Aloma of the South Seas." The vehicle is one of the most spectacular ever offered by a stock company here.

Aloma is a play that runs the entire gamut of human emotions. The production was beautifully and artistically staged and the audience displayed its enthusiasm throughout the entire performance.

The Peruchi cast is augmented this week by five additional actors and a number of talented native dancers and musicians. The principals all give finished performances of the varied characterizations.

Special mention should be given Miss Adrienne Earle, as Aloma; David Bunn, as Nuitane, a native pearl diver, and Bob Perry, as Holden. This latter is a difficult part and Perry does well with it. Mrs. Peruchi furnishes the comedy as Hina.

Raymon King was excellent as Van Templeton. Paul Carpenter Jr., as Hongi, turned in an entirely pleasing performance and Bonnie Malloch, as Sylvia Templeton, also performed exceptionally well.

Aloma is easily the most entertaining and best-presented play the Peruchi Players have staged during their current engagement. The addition of the native dancers and musicians adds color and the tropical storm at the end of the second act was realistic. —L. P.

characters from the cesspools of iniquity of Egypt; Armenian mountaineers, who have never made peace with either Turk or Russian, and besides several pure-souled idealists, who are prompted by their sense of justice in the quarrel between Negus and Duce.

1,500 White Russians.

Fifteen hundred White Russian officers have been engaged by the Negus. They receive six months' pay in advance. Their trip is paid and they will have the pick of equipment. The night clubs and restaurants of Montparnasse, Montmartre and Grenelle, which employ Russian entertainers, will be empty and Paris will be short of taxi drivers if the Negus sends out another call, for besides the prospect of regular pay and glory, there is a good deal of sympathy for the Abyssinian emperor amongst the czarist Russians. In days gone by the czars were the protectors of the "orthodox Negus" and many Russians served in the army of Menelik the Great. A Russian colonel, Alexander Semenoff, commanded at Adowa when an Italian expeditionary force of 50,000 men under General Baratieri was annihilated by the Abyssinians in 1896.

Among the soldiers of fortune who arrived in Addis Ababa last week was an Irishman, Dennis O'Shean by name, from Armagh, who literally braved hell-fire by making part of the journey as a stowaway in the funnel of an Indian liner. He had managed to reach Port Said by working his way out of Liverpool. In Port Said he hungered for 10 days. Then one morning as he saw a steamer of the Messageries Maritimes, the big French steamship trust, lie off the shore taking in oil, he jumped into an Arab prow that lay near-by and row over.

Hid in Funnel.

Every ship is guarded of course while in harbor and only passengers and port officials can go aboard. But O'Shean started shouting so loud to the Arab workmen who were laying the oil pipes from the shore into the vessel, that everybody thought he was in charge of the work. "I used me choicest language on them guinnies," he assured me. In this way he got on board, waving his arms, cursing and hollering. Then he disappeared. He was not seen till the ship ran into Djibouti five days later, when to the stupefaction of all and sundry a voice calling for help was heard in one of the funnels.

Black as the ace of spades, O'Shean was hoisted on deck. But that was not the end of his Odyssey. "Still," he told me, "the 'froggies' let me wash and they gave me a meal. I was sick and weak. I had sat on a grill for five days and five nights in a cloud of hot soot and ashes. I was nearly cooked. It sure was hell itself. After they had fed me I was put ashore and shoved in the clink. I was told I would have to leave again with the next steamer Europe-bound."

"How did you get out of jail?" I asked.

Walked to Addis Ababa.

"I knocked a Somali soldier out and got into his outfit, but I left the poor lad his rifle. Without his rifle he woulda been shot the next day. Then I walked out of the gate and I did not see a soul. I hid in the bush along the railway tracks, after walking along the sea to a point where the tracks leave the shore. I figured if I followed them tracks I'd land in Addis Ababa in the end. I walked to the frontier of Abyssinia that way."

"How long did it take you?"

"Nine days!"

"And what did you live on?"

"I drank a lot of water!"

"How did you get across the border?"

Gets $1.50 Per Day.

"I left the tracks and crossed at another point to the south. Once in Abyssinia I returned to the railway and rode the bumpers into the next town. There I enlisted and ate again."

"How much pay do you get now?"

"Four thalers a day!" (About $1.50.)

"What's your rank?"

"Damned if I know. I teach them niggers to fire machine guns. It's a soft job and they learn fast."

"Are there any more Irishmen or English speaking soldiers with you?"

"Seven so far. All Englishmen. There'll probably be some more in when the next boat is in."

There are thirty million unemployed in the world. Among them are many expert military men and ex-soldiers. All the Negus asks is whether a man can handle a machine gun. But he does not send the money for the trip. You got to get to Abyssinia on your own hook. It's an arduous journey, especially in a steamship funnel pullman.

STATE ACCEPTS THREE OF WALLACE DEMANDS

the letter of Secretary Wallace made no mention of the controversial Ball's Ferry bridge project or any other project on which the highway board and Director Thomas H. MacDonald of the Federal Bureau of Public Roads are not in accord.

When the controversy between the state and federal governments over highway matters first arose, Secretary Wallace and Director MacDonald insisted upon reorganization of the department and also insisted that the board initiate a project for the building of the Ball's Ferry bridge.

"Smoke Screen" Charged.

At that time, Governor Talmadge, Chairman Wilburn and the other members of the highway board contended that the reorganization demand was a "smoke screen" and that the basic and only underlying cause of the dispute was the Ball's Ferry bridge, which was being advocated by Congressman Carl Vinson of the sixth Georgia district, a strong administration backer in the house of representatives.

Inasmuch as there was no mention of this or any other controversial project in Secretary Wallace's letter received here yesterday it was understood that there will be no further difficulty regarding this phase of the controversy. There was no mention of the project in the Wilburn reply to Secretary Wallace.

The two phases of the tangle on which there was no accord reached were considered a detailed explanation of his previous demands for increased efficiency in the highway department.

General Reorganization Asked.

Secretary Wallace asked for a general reorganization and the establishment of an "adequate and acceptable headquarters engineering organization to proceed with consistent dispatch." He also asked for reorganization of the field personnel asserting that "five divisions are the minimum that can be regarded as adequate to handle the work."

To this the highway board replied that it agreed to provide adequate and competent engineers.

But Chairman Wilburn and his associates disagreed with the proposed increase in the number of divisions from three to five, asserting in their reply to the secretary that "we have found that the number of divisions maintained has no bearing whatever on the competence of the organization, or the quality of work that can be done by the organization. The reason that we cut from six to three was due to the fact that each division required an office force—had to pay rent for buildings and each wanted to maintain shops for their division."

Savings Are Cited.

Further disagreeing with the secretary, the board said "we found that by cutting them to three we could eliminate one-half of the rent, half of the power and water bills, and other incidentals which amounted to considerable money. We furnished extra engineering force to the three divisions which we now maintain."

Answering the demand that the salaries be restored to their 1933 level, the board wrote:

"The Highway Department of Georgia feels that the salaries paid to its employes out of state funds is a matter of state's rights. This is an internal affair, which cannot be regulated by any board of bureau in Washington. In this statement, we are thoroughly in line with the democratic platform of 1932, which stated that it was impossible for any board or bureau at Washington to direct the internal affairs of a state. They cannot be familiar with the conditions.

"If they attempted to direct what salaries are paid the highway employes of Georgia, it would destroy the morale of the employes.

"They would have no respect for the Highway Commissioners of Georgia, and would feel that all they had to do to get a raise in salary would be to make a kick to some employe of the Federal Bureau of Roads."

The board's letter is expected to reach Secretary Wallace this morning and the next move probably will come from Washington.

FORGER DELUXE BARES AMAZING CRIME TRAIL

ta and parole officials of the two prisons.

Highlight of Poore's record was the detail that brought Operator Brodnax into action.

He had served a term at the federal pen here and was paroled. He went back to his old home at Oxford, Ala., and was arrested there for forgery. He was serving a two-year term for that crime when the Atlanta penitentiary sent him a check for 72 cents, covering one day's work in the duck mill at the pen. The check went to his home at Oxford and was forwarded to him at Kilby.

He held the check until he was released on parole from Kilby, raised it to $800.72 and cashed it on an unsuspecting bank at Anniston, Ala.

This story, which is being traced by Mr. Brodnax, will mean another charge of forgery against him after he has served the sentences now piled up against him.

Bought an Automobile.

With the money he collected from the raised check, Poore told Detective Barrett, he bought an automobile at Anniston, making a down payment. He drove the car to Atlanta. At Anniston, according to his story, he discarded a stolen automobile when he bought the new car and it was while hunting him for the theft of the stolen car that Detective Barrett found him Saturday night outside the Bankhead theater, at English avenue and Bankhead.

At police headquarters, he opened up to Detective Barrett, admitted his record, added the detail of raising the check, and then sat back to await the consequences.

Penalties to Pay.

Here is what he will have to account for before he is free again:

While he was serving the two-year term at Kilby for forgery, he was given a 60-day parole, but failed to return. Today he starts in to finish out that term.

When he was released from the Atlanta pen, he was given a two-year parole. His crimes since then constitute a violation of that parole and from Kilby, he will return to Atlanta to finish out that term.

Then, he must face the raised check item, a mode of crime that will carry him back to the federal pen for another healthy term.

Then, he must face a charge of the Dyer act, for transporting a stolen automobile across a state line. That means another long term.

Poore, who has served other jail terms for forgery and automobile thefts in the past, is described by Secret Service Operator Brodnax as "one of the smartest I've ever seen."

Department of Justice agents are checking Poore's stories of his recent wanderings for possibilities of additional violations of the national automobile act.

How to Relieve Athlete's Foot

The parasite which attacks the feet between the toes, causing rawness, itching, inflammation and destroying tissue can be killed with nothing less than "Tetterine," a pleasant-odored preparation that soothes instantly, giving quick relief from this acute, contagious condition. Healing and formation of clean, healthy skin promptly follows the use of Tetterine. Get a package from any drug store, try it and get your money back if not satisfied.—(adv.)

MRS. EDGAR ALEXANDER.

HORE-RUTHVEN NAMED AUSTRALIAN OFFICIAL

LONDON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Sir Alexander Hore-Ruthven was appointed governor-general of Australia today.

dication as to when the special meeting of the committee would be held.

Mrs. Alexander has served as national committeewoman for more than 11 years. She first was elected at the democratic convention in New York in 1924, was re-elected at San Francisco in 1928, and again at Chicago in 1932.

Whoever is selected to succeed her will serve only until next year, when the delegates to the 1936 convention of the party will make their choice for the four-year term ending in 1940.

Chairman Howell made public the following letter from Mrs. Alexander, a copy of which was sent to Postmaster-General James A. Farley:

"I have been in California for the past several months, having brought my young daughter here for her health. And since the climate has proven so beneficial to her, my stay here may be prolonged for some time to come.

"Owing to the fact that my absence from Georgia prevents my active participation in party affairs, I have decided that it will be best for me to withdraw from the national democratic committee.

"I am, therefore, herewith tendering my resignation as national democratic committeewoman from Georgia, to take effect immediately upon your receipt of this letter.

"It is needless for me to say that I regret the necessity of retiring from the committee, which afforded me an opportunity to serve the democratic party, and where I have formed so many warm friendships with those with whom I worked. I wish to assure you that I expect to retain my interest in party matters and when I can be of any service whatsoever to either of you, as a 'private in the ranks,' I trust that you will feel free to call on me.

"With every good wish for both of you, personally, and with best wishes for the success of the present administration, I am

"Sincerely,

"(Signed)

"MRS. EDGAR ALEXANDER,
National Democratic Committeewoman from Georgia."

Durham To Face Chicks in Opener of Important Series

BREAK O'DAY!
By Ralph McGill

Situations like this one come up in baseball:

The bases are filled. A lead has been wiped out and the game is about to blow up in the face of the pitcher trying to stop the rush.

The runners on base are cupping their hands and yelling things at the pitcher. They are assuring him most heartily that he is nothing but a bum and that he cannot get the ball over.

To make matters worse the runners are taking good, long leads, daring him to throw it.

And over at first and third the coachers are cupping their hands and saying that he is afraid to throw one in there.

It usually is a hot, muggy afternoon and the stands are filled with screaming, yelling people.

The count on the batter is three and two and the winning run is on third. And your catcher is squatting there calling for a curve ball low on the outside or maybe a fast one right on the bat handle.

Now, there is a situation which calls for a lad with plenty of the old stout stuff inside him. Because it requires a man child to wind up and chunk one right in there.

All of which brings me up to young Master Bobby Durham, who pitches for our Crackers, those athletes who are leading the parade.

There is a young male child who can look the toughest situation in the face, size it up and then chunk that baseball in there. He's almost beardless, having started shaving only last year. But no situation is too tough for him. And no set of base runners, champing at the bit and yelling at him, can fuss him one bit.

I think—considering the future—he's the best pitcher on the squad. And it's a squad of good pitchers. They called on him to save the second game of Sunday's double-header. And he did it, despite the fact there were two heart-breaking twists of the luck. He's won a dozen games. Others have won more. But give me the Durham boy when the going's tough. He rolls his own.

THE SHAUGNESSY SYSTEM.

One may read in the public prints of Nashville that Mr. James Hamilton, business manager of those Nashvilles, is beginning to wonder if the Shaugnessy system is worth while or not.

The Nashville fans, as well as others, have finally realized that finishing first does not win the pennant. And they are not packing them in during the closing weeks of the campaign as the owners had hoped.

All of which reminds me that during the 36 hours the Pelicans were leading the grand march in the Southern league, several baseball fans wrote, asking your reporter what he thought about the Shaugnessy system now that the Crackers were out of first place. They recalled a previous piece for the paper in which all artificialities, such as the Shaugnessy system, were severely indicted as being stop-gaps to aid owners who never had any intention of building a winning club. And they thought, the Crackers being out of first place, the indictment might not stand.

It does. The Shaugnessy system is unworthy no matter where Atlanta happens to be in the league standing. The team which wins the most baseball games in the normal schedule of 154 ball games, should win the Southern league pennant. And that stands no matter where Atlanta stands. The pennant winner is the team which wins the most games.

The Shaugnessy system probably will be retained. There are two or three owners in the league who make no effort to give their fans a baseball team. For some unknown, and incomprehensible reason, the league sustains them by split seasons, Shaugnessy systems and other patent artificialties. And also by gifts of money.

ATTENDANCE RECORDS.

It was Mr. Rudyard Kipling who wrote: "The cities are full of pride, challenging one another."

Mr. Farley's excellent mail service brings me three letters, each with an Atlanta postmark, but each, apparently, from some former Birmingham resident now seeing the light in Atlanta.

They charge, do these pleasant gentlemen, that Atlanta is having the benefits of night baseball and Sunday baseball in their efforts to surpass the Birmingham record of 299,000. Night baseball is not an extra benefit. Sundays are.

But I would remind the gentlemen that Birmingham's record included the Dixie series attendance, unless I have been misinformed. And Atlanta is seeking to draw more than 300,000 in the regular schedule of 77 home games. The Shaughnessy system play-off attendance, which it seems likely we shall have, will not be figured into the total, unless so designated. With that extra attendance it should run well past 300,000. And 77 games are just 77 games whether played on Sunday or at night.

THIS CIVIC RIVALRY.

This civic rivalry is a dangerous thing.

One former resident of Birmingham, in writing about his baseball reactions, says: "I was born in Birmingham but first saw the light of day some eight years later when my parents took me to Montgomery on a visit.

"I recall," he continued, "that my uncle would never go out of doors when he was in Birmingham. He always said he could stay in doors and achieve the same result with burnt cork.

"I am all for the Crackers and hope they will win the pennant in the play-off."

At any rate, the attendance this year is going to be better than 800,000, maybe closer than that to the 1,000,000 mark. And Atlanta is going to supply about 35 per cent of it, the other seven cities making up the remainder. The greatest attendance the league ever knew was in 1925, when Atlanta won the pennant and supplied most of the attendance.

And this year the league would not have survived as an eight-club circuit but for Atlanta. At least two owners have told me the checks received here kept them going. We are, of course, glad to do it. Our town is our town and we like it.

THE SMELLING SALTS, PLEASE.

Our swimmers, meeting the Japanese in Japan, were completely swamped in a team match last week. It was something of a shock seeing our best swimmers finishing not even second, but third, fourth and worse in some events.

Jimmy Foxx Hits His 23d Home Run

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Jimmy Foxx's 23d home run of the season with a man on helped the Philadelphia Athletics today to an 8-to-4 victory over Chicago in the second game of a double-header. The White Sox took the opener, 7 to 2, behind John Whitehead's effective pitching.

GIANTS BEAT REDS IN TENTH; CARDS ARE IDLE

Bartell Drives in Ott With Winning Run With Single.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(UP)—The New York Giants scored a 10-inning victory over the Cincinnati Reds today, 4-3, and increased their National league lead over the St. Louis Cardinals, who were idle, to three games.

New York tied the score, 3-3, in the eighth when Ott walked, advanced on Koenig's sacrifice, and scored on Mancuso's single. In the tenth Ott walked and Koenig singled. Tony Freitas was replaced by Don Brennan, who walked Mancuso, filling the bases. Bartell then beat out an infield hit, Ott scoring the winning run. Chief Euel Moore made his debut with the Giants by relieving Clydell Castleman in the seventh, and received credit for the victory. He allowed only one hit in four innings. Babe Herman hit a homer with one man on for the Reds.

The Chicago Cubs, who are virtually tied with the Cardinals for second place, held their ground three games behind the Giants by nosing out the Phillies, 2-1. Billy Herman's double with the bases filled in the eighth drove in both Chicago runs. With two out, the Cubs started the rally when Mickey Haslin threw wild on Jurges' grounder. Joe Bowman held the Cubs hitless for six innings, but was charged with the defeat, snapping a six-game winning streak. Clyde Shoun, Cubs' rookie southpaw making his first major league start, allowed seven hits in seven innings and received credit for his initial victory.

No other games were played in the National league.

VOLS 2-3; BARONS 4-2.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 19.—Nashville and Birmingham split a double-header here today, the Barons taking the first game, 4 to 2, and the Vols annexing the nightcap, 3 to 2. The fifth inning was the Barons' big frame in both games. They scored their four runs of the first in that inning and repeated with two runs in that inning in the second game.

Mahoney Deplores German Attitude

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Judge Jeremiah T. Mahoney, president of the Amateur Athletic Union and a member of the American Olympic committee, tonight said it was his opinion that unless conditions in nazi Germany were radically changed at once, the United States should not compete in the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin.

Seeks Place

Charlie Yates, recently crowned king of the western amateurs, will start swinging his clubs at East Lake today in an attempt to qualify for the national amateur for the third straight time. He will lead a group of 16 Atlantans in the trials. He is shown above holding one of his many cups.

Tommy Sullivan Is New Macon Pro

MACON, Ga., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Tommy Sullivan has been named manager and professional instructor at the municipal golf course on Jeffersonville road.

Installation of Sullivan in the post is part of a Junior Chamber of Commerce plan to increase interest in the course. The pro learned golf in his home town of Titusville, Pa., under the late William R. Jolly, from St. Andrews, Scotland.

YANKEES BEAT LEADERS, 7 TO 5; SELKIRK STARS

Gets Five for Five; Tigers' Lead Cut to Seven Games.

DETROIT, Aug. 19.—(UP)—The New York Yankees reduced Detroit's lead in the American league to seven games today by defeating the Tigers, 7-5, before a crowd of 35,000 at Navin field.

George Selkirk was the hero of the Yanks' victory, making three singles and two doubles in five times at bat and driving in four runs. The Yanks collected 16 hits off Sorrell, Hogsett and Sullivan. Walter Brown, who relieved Johnny Broaca in the fifth, was credited with the victory. The large crowd necessitated ground rules, with the result that several fly balls fell for doubles. The Yanks made six doubles, and the Tigers five.

Cleveland tied Chicago for fourth place when the Indians defeated Washington, 11-5, and the White Sox divided a double-header with the Philadelphia Athletics. Johnny Whitehead pitched the White Sox to a 7-2 victory over the A's in the opener, allowing nine hits. Chicago bunched five of its nine hits with a walk and an error to score six runs in the fifth off Dietrich. Jimmy Foxx hit his 23d homer with one on in the second game, which the A's won, 8-4.

Hal Trosky's 18th homer with the bases loaded featured a six-run rally in the eighth, which enabled Cleveland to defeat Washington. Averill also hit a homer, and Galatzer hit two triples and Vosmik two doubles.

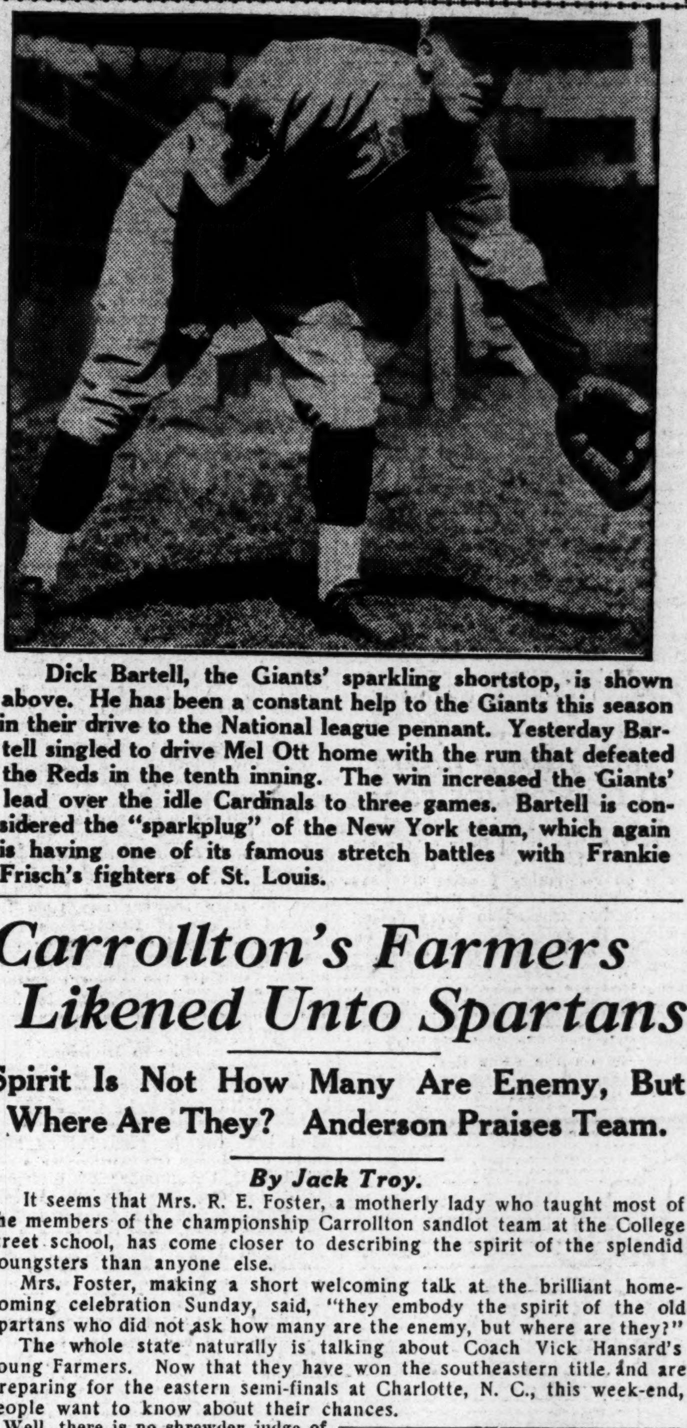
Sandlot Tourney Begins Wednesday

The sandlot baseball elimination tournament, sponsored by the FERA, gets under way at Rose Bowl field Wednesday.

There are 16 teams entered. Six from Atlanta, five from East Point, four from Fairburn, and one from Roswell. Eight games are scheduled the first day, starting at 9 o'clock in the morning. The four winners meet Thursday with the semi-finals Friday morning and finals that afternoon.

Rache Bell and Roy Moran will be in charge of the games.

Bartell 'Busts' Up Game



Dick Bartell, the Giants' sparkling shortstop, is shown above. He has been a constant help to the Giants this season in their drive to the National league pennant. Yesterday Bartell singled to drive home Mel Ott with the run that defeated the Reds in the tenth inning. The win increased the Giants' lead over the idle Cardinals to three games. Bartell is considered the "sparkplug" of the New York team, which again is having one of its famous stretch battles with Frankie Frisch's fighters of St. Louis.

Carrollton's Farmers Likened Unto Spartans

Spirit Is Not How Many Are Enemy, But Where Are They? Anderson Praises Team.

By Jack Troy.

It seems that Mrs. R. E. Foster, a motherly lady who taught most of the members of the championship Carrollton sandlot team at the College street school, has come closer to describing the spirit of the splendid youngsters than anyone else.

Mrs. Foster, making a short welcoming talk at the brilliant home-coming celebration Sunday, said, "they embody the spirit of the old Spartans who did not ask how many are the enemy, but where are they?"

The whole state naturally is talking about Coach Vick Hansard's young Farmers. Now that they have won the southeastern title and are preparing for the eastern semi-finals at Charlotte, N. C., this week-end, people want to know about their chances.

Well, there is no shrewder judge of baseball talent than Frank B. Anderson, athletic director at Oglethorpe and one of the veteran college baseball coaches of the south.

Anderson has been following the fortunes of the Carrollton team since before they entered the district meet at Rome.

"It's one of the best little teams I ever saw," said Frank Anderson last night. "Those boys are as good as the Inman Park Cardinals of 1929. Maybe they are a bit better.

WELL BALANCED.

"They form a well-balanced club, with a punch at the plate and a strong defensive. I look for them to go a long ways."

Anderson is particularly impressed with the ability of four players, namely, Alton Nixon, pitcher; Cotton Todd, second baseman; Charley Roberts, third baseman, and J. L. Webb, left-handed hitter who plays left field.

"Both Webb boys are good," Anderson added. Charlie Webb plays center field.

"Yes, sir, it's a fine young ball club. There are five good hitters. I like the way they stand up to the plate and meet the ball. They're not like a lot of youngsters who go up there and try to "kill" the ball. And they can field."

Anderson thinks it would be a mistake if Nixon were not selected to pitch the opening game at Charlotte. "I like that youngster. He not only has a lot of stuff but he has plenty of nerve. Strange crowds don't worry him."

STAGE FRIGHT.

It seems that a couple of the young Farmers have been bothered with that common malady known as "stage fight," but have just about conquered it with the experience now gained.

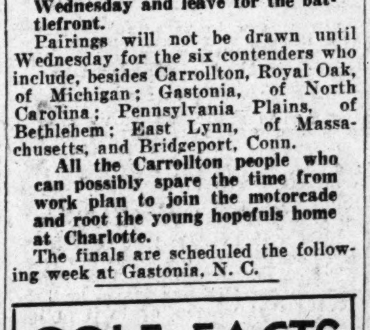
So it's on to Charlotte for the Carrollton Farmers and they have the fullest confidence of their supporters and in themselves. They'll form a motorcade early Wednesday and leave for the battlefront.

Pairings will not be drawn until Wednesday for the six contenders who include, besides Carrollton, Royal Oak, of Michigan; Gastonia, of North Carolina; Pennsylvania Plains, of Bethlehem; East Lynn, of Massachusetts, and Bridgeport, Conn.

All the Carrollton people who can possibly spare the time from work plan to join the motorcade and root the young hopefuls home at Charlotte.

The finals are scheduled the following week at Gastonia, N. C.

GOLF FACTS



Yesterday I made a pupil understand my instructions for the first time. I have given him lessons off and on for about four years. His game improved somewhat but not as I claimed it should. He insisted that heretofore he had not understood my instructions.

Now that he understands what I want him to do he has no trouble doing it. He is hitting the ball very well so that the results seem to bear out his contention.

The attitude of pupil toward teacher was ever so in golf. But it isn't so with a child in school. He learns by doing what he is told to do. Golfers would profit if they'd do the same. It isn't a coincidence that the pupil in mention did for the first time yesterday exactly what he was told to do. The player has a mind of his own and a deeply rooted hunch that he must work out his own salvation in golf. So, he spends most of his time on detours.

T. H. S., DECATUR START PRACTICE

A record crowd of more than 125 football candidates greeted Coach Gabe Tolbert Monday afternoon at the Henry Grady field as Tech High called its first workout of the year. And were the coaches pleased with the fine looking young prospects.

The heavy rain cut short the work, but Coaches Tolbert and Tom Alexander gave the candidates plenty of instructions for the coming season.

Daily practices have been ordered throughout the remainder of the practice and regular season. The workouts will be held at 3 o'clock each afternoon.

The boys were beginning to "bear down" in today's workout, for Tech High will play its first game with Marist on Septemer 13, just four weeks from Thursday night.

Uniforms will not be issued until the latter part of the week, for there will be no scrimmaging for at least another week and probably not then if the weather is hot.

A captain will be elected within the next few days.

Large Squad At Decatur.

Decatur High had one of its largest squads in recent years to greet Coaches Sullivan and Townsend Monday morning when the first practice call was sounded. Another workout was held at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, but due to the heavy rain, only limbering up exercises were held.

The Decatur coaches outlined the season's work and announced that two workouts will be held each day during the first two weeks, with single practices carded for the remainder of the season.

Clark Is Named Simon's Assistant

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Appointment of Augustus Clark, of Macon, Ga., a Tulane athlete, as assistant to Claude (Monk) Simons, new director of athletics at Transylvania College here, was approved today by the college executive committee.

A contract was ordered forwarded to him today and Simons, who discussed the proposition with Clark before recommending him, said he felt sure the offer would be accepted.

Clark was a letterman in football and basketball at Tulane in 1934 and 1935, and also played baseball and took part in track athletics. He was a teammate of Simons at Tulane. If he accepts, he will replace Alfred Reece, who has resigned to become educational director of a Kentucky CCC camp. Clark was graduated at Tulane last June.

'LITTLE GIANT' TO SEEK 13TH WIN OF SEASON

Crackers Elated Over Double Victory and Expect To Stay on Top.

By Jimmy Jones.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 19.—Our Crackers made a triumphant entrance to Memphis today, following their four-out-of-five conquest of the Little Rock Travelers and indulged a badly-needed day of rest and repose preparatory to engaging the Memphis Chickasaws in the first game of an important three-game series tomorrow.

All of the players, including Manager Eddie Moore, were elated over the double-header victory of Sunday which hoisted them back to the top of the league, a position they were forced to vacate temporarily in favor of the fast-driving Pelicans last Friday after leading the league for all but two playing dates since the first month of the season.

They were glad to be back at the pinnacle again, for the Crackers are a front-running ball club. Shaugnessey system or not, they are determined to lead the rest of the pack under the wire.

BUSTER CONFIDENT.

"I think we're going to get started again and stay up there," Buster Chatham, the Cracker captain, stated. And this sentiment was re-echoed among the other players. Manager Moore himself felt decidedly better over the situation. He visited a local doctor today to have the stitches taken out of the wound he received over his left eye when Harry Kelley accidentally let fly a bat during batting practice in Atlanta on the last day there.

When the club got to Little Rock, Eddie's eye was completely closed. But now it is much better and if the little skipper should have to step in there again and lend a hand during the closing stretch, he can do it.

Moore was well pleased with Big Joe Hutcheson in his debut with the club over at Little Rock.

"The big fellow is going to help us plenty, not only from a standpoint of power, but the psychological effect he will have on the opposing pitchers," Moore pointed out.

"He'll get walked a whole lot, but he'll be a threat every time he comes up with men on base," he added.

PALM MOVED UP.

In this connection, Moore revealed that he had moved Joe Palmisano, the catcher, up a notch higher in the lineup. Palm is now hitting sixth, just behind the Five H men—Hamel, Hill, Hooks, Hutcheson and Harris.

"Joe is a good little man when it comes to driving in runs. He's been hitting good lately and now, when they walk Hutcheson intentionally to get him out of the way, we'll have three dangerous hitters coming up in Harris, Palmisano and Lipscomb."

Moore likes this lineup very well and thinks it ought to go to town from now on behind the Crackers' good pitching.

Bobby Durham, the little giant, who baffled the Travelers in the series opener at Little Rock and who has won 12 games for the club, will seek his thirteenth victory in the series opener with the Chickasaws tomorrow.

Moore plans no more changes in the lineup.

The return of Harry Kelley, who finally scored his eighteenth victory Sunday after dropping five straight, has cheered the Crackers, also. Kelley thinks he has found himself again now. He usually has at least one bad losing streak during the season. But this one had him worried. He still hopes to get 24 victories, which would beat his last year's mark by one. Kelley feels he is sure to get 24, the play-off included, but wants to notch that many by the end of the regular season on September 16 if he can.

GO FISHING.

Most of the Crackers took advantage today to accompany Kelley on a fishing trip over at a lake in his native Arkansas, which is just over the river. Several of them returned in time to attend the wrestling match featuring Danno O'Mahony, the new champion, here tonight as guests of Charley Rentrop.

Bill Schmidt will pitch Wednesday's game and "Bud" Thomas, who scored his eighteenth win last Saturday night, giving the Travelers three hits, will work the final game of the series Thursday.

The team returns to Atlanta for the series opener with Birmingham on Friday night, which game was moved up from Monday. It will be ladies' night.

The Crackers hope to take the series here and that with Birmingham, which would put them in great shape to receive the Pelicans on their last invasion of the city August 28.

The Atlanta club, although it got knocked off the top due to New Orleans' phenomenal winning streak, nevertheless has won its last three series, taking three out of four from Memphis and two out of three from Nashville at home and four out of five in Little Rock. That is winning baseball, regardless of what the Pelicans do.

Gadsden Advances In Semi-Pro Meet

WICHITA, Kan., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Clinton, Okla., eliminated the Holy Name Club of New Orleans from the national semi-pro baseball tournament here today by a score of 3 to 2.

Gadsden, Ala., state champions, eliminated Oceanside, Cal., 20 to 3.

Hutcheson Not To Wed Until Season Is Over

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 19.—Joe Hutcheson, the newest member of the Cracker ensemble, has decided to give Dan Cupid the slip for the remainder of the season.

The big slugger announced today that he and Miss Christine Holt, attractive blonde of Water Valley, Miss., had agreed to put off their wedding until after the season is over.

The ceremony was originally set for today and a number of their friends who planned to attend were disappointed when it failed to come off.

Hutcheson is the third member of the Memphis team to become a Cracker in the last year. The others are Harry Kelley, who came to Atlanta about this time last year, and Peck Hamel, who came in the Oana deal via Syracuse.

Joe Palmisano, catcher, also once played with the Chicks.

Over here the boys are now calling the Memphis team the Atlanta "farm."

Twenty Golfers Seek To Qualify Here Today for National

16 ATLANTANS AMONG ENTRIES AT EAST LAKE

Birmingham, Rome and Montgomery Send Stars Here To Play.

By Roy White.

Sixteen Atlanta amateur golfers will seek to qualify today on the No. 1 East Lake course for four places in the national amateur tournament September 9, at Cleveland, Ohio. In addition to the Atlanta entries, four visitors, Johnny Morris and John Thames, of Birmingham; Alvin Everett, Rome, and Files Crenshaw, Montgomery, also will attempt to win nominations from this district.

Charlie Yates, western amateur champion, and a representative from this district for the past two years in his only attempts to qualify, will head the Atlanta delegation. Others include M. M. Smith, John Terwilliger, Crawford and Brown Rainwater, Scott Hudson Jr., Tommy Barnes, Stanley Holditch and Ralph McClelland, from the Atlanta Athletic Club; R. J. Bicknell, John Owens, Charlie Black Jr., Charles Dannals and I. J. Osbun, from Capital City Club, and Jack Bothamley Jr. and Julius Hughes, former Atlanta open and amateur champion from the Druid Hills Club.

SHORT PRACTICE.

Everett, the Coosa Country Club champion from Rome, is a non-resident member of the Capital City Club and is entered as an Atlantan.

A heavy rain Monday afternoon cut short the practice rounds and soaked the course so that unusually low scores appear out of the question.

George Sargent, the East Lake professional, and other veteran tournament players, predicted a 100 score for the first nomination. And the other three are likely to be within five strokes of the leader.

Play will start at 9 o'clock with Muggsy Smith and R. J. Bicknell, runner-up in the city tournament last year, leading the way. Terwilliger, Thames and Owens will follow at 9:05 with the other threesomes scheduled to follow at five-minute intervals. Yates, Dannals and Brown Rainwater will start at 9:25 o'clock.

AFTERNOON ROUND.

The afternoon round will start at 2 o'clock and the players will follow the same order as in the morning.

Keith Conway, president of the Atlanta Golf Association, and Wimberly Peters, veteran tournament officials, will be in charge of the 36 holes qualifying for the United States Golf Association.

Recent rains have put the course in excellent condition. The greens will not be as fast, but there is plenty of grass on both the greens and in the fairways.

The markers have been moved back on the tees, so that the course will be tougher than at any time this year.

The pairings:

9:00—M. H. Smith, Atlanta A. C., Atlanta, Ga., and R. J. Bicknell, Capital City Club, Atlanta, Ga.
9:05—John Terwilliger, Atlanta A. C., Atlanta, Ga.; John Thames, C. C., of Birmingham, Birmingham, Ala., and Jack Bothamley Jr., Druid Hills G. C., Atlanta, Georgia.
9:10—Crawford Rainwater, Atlanta Athletic Club, Atlanta, Ga.; John W. Owens, Capital City Club, Atlanta, Ga., and Files Crenshaw Jr., Beauvoir C. C., Montgomery, Ala.
9:15—Charles H. Black Jr., Capital City Club, Atlanta, Ga.; Johnny Morris, Woodward G. & C. C., Birmingham, Ala., and Scott Hudson Jr., Atlanta A. C., Atlanta, Georgia.
9:20—Tommie Barnes, Atlanta A. C., Atlanta, Ga.; Alvin Everett, Capital City Club, Atlanta, Ga., and Dr. Julius Hughes, Druid Hills G. C., Atlanta, Ga.
9:25—Charlie R. Yates, Atlanta A. C., Atlanta, Ga.; Charles N. Dannals Jr., Capital City Club, Atlanta, Ga., and Brown Rainwater, Atlanta Athletic Club, Atlanta, Georgia.
9:30—Stanley Holditch, Atlanta A. C., Atlanta, Ga.; I. J. Osbun, Capital City Club, Atlanta, Ga., and Ralph McClelland Jr., Atlanta A. C., Atlanta, Ga.

ACE TOURNEY.

Tom Washington, Sr., who has made 24 holes-in-one, failed to hit the green once in five tries at the New York World-Telegram's "ace" tournament for those who have made holes in one. Charles Mayo Jr., and Edwin S. Knapp, Sr., each put three in the 10-foot circle. One of Babe Ruth's five tee shots found the green.

WANTS TO PLAY.

Van Lingle Mungo, the Dodger's pitcher who started as a kid outfielder, wants to return to the outer gardens so he can play every day and exercise his batting eye.

Baer Hits Comeback Trail With Vengeance

Former Champ Says He Will Beat Louis and Then Braddock—Hands Big Question.

By Edward J. Neil.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Aug. 19.—(AP)—The "Forgotten Man" of pugilism, Max Baer, has been found again, but you'd scarcely recognize him.

He's roaming the hills where Gene Tunney, who never was unprepared, practiced running backward for that night in Chicago when he had to retreat faster than Jack Dempsey could move forward, or get himself annihilated.

He's swinging an ax in the forests that cover the Adirondacks, crowding down on his mountain cabin. He rows daily over the same lake on which Tunney pulled a pair of oars and planned his fighting strategy. He squeezes hard rubber balls in his hands all day long to strengthen them, as Tunney did.

It's difficult to believe, unless you see it, but Max Baer at the moment is as serious about his profession as Gene Tunney, the most serious of all the heavyweights, ever was. He has hit the come-back trail with a vengeance.

GAVE TITLE AWAY.

For the first time since he gained fame as a prize fighter, he seems to be out of the spotlight, content to let the rest of the world sing the praises of Joe Louis, the dark thunderbolt, while he himself grimly prepares to demolish the negro on the night of September 24, probably in the Polo Grounds in New York.

"I practically gave my title to Jimmy Braddock," he said today after finishing five rounds of harder work than he did in an entire week at Asbury Park, N. J., where he tin-canned through six weeks of tom-foolery before losing the heavyweight championship to the Jersey Irishman.

"But this time—I'm not fooling. I'm getting ready to fight a world war all by myself if I have to. I can become the greatest man in the fight game again by knocking out Louis. I can get another shot at Braddock, and I can win back the title. I'm going to do all that. I'm going to tear Joe Louis apart."

Baer isn't fooling a bit. He's been here a week. He's worked like a savage. The palms of his hands are covered with callouses, healed blisters from chopping wood.

WIFE IN CHARGE.

His wife is here superintending food. His father, Jacob Baer, the original butcher boy of Livermore, Cal., is here with Max's mother. Max does as his dad tells him. So intent are the Baer forces on the comeback campaign that they've even brought Will McCarney up here as the general major domo and field marshal of the camp and training things in general.

McCarney goes all the way in heavyweights from Luther McCarty, who was killed by Arthur Pelky in the white hope days, to Max Schmeling whom he helped manage and train into the heavyweight title and final demolishment by this same Baer.

The great question mark as far as Max is concerned—his hands—has been answered already to the satisfaction of anyone who has seen him work out so far. He wears a specially built pad over the one sore knuckle on his left hand that remains of the injuries he suffered before and during the Braddock fight.

He smashed a heavy oversized bag around for three rounds today, hit it harder than he has done in the past year. He was punching meanly, savagely.

"It's early yet, but watch," he said. "I'll hit Louis like that. I'll hit him like I hit Schmeling, like I hit Carnera. I'll be the biggest man in boxing again. You watch and see."

MEDAL IS WON BY MRS. BARROW

Mrs. Ben Barrow with an 85 won medal honor Monday morning in the qualifying round in the annual Piedmont Park Women's Club championship tournament. Mrs. E. A. Brown and Mrs. J. C. Wright shared second place.

Mrs. Carlyle Fraser, the defending champion, was placed in the upper bracket and plays Mrs. Alfred Thompson this morning in the first round. Mrs. Barrow, the medalist, plays Mrs. I. M. Sheffield Jr., in the first round.

All matches will be played in the morning. Handicaps will not apply. Chick Ridley, Piedmont park professional, is in charge of the tourney.

The pairings.

Speer Faces Tough Foe In Cox

Those boos may change to cheers Wednesday night at the ball park when Frank Speer, the old Tech tackle, goes charging in against Joe Cox in the feature 90-minute feature.

Speer has violated all the rules since his recent return here. He roughed George Koverly to such an extent on last week's card that the fans were virtually up in arms against him.

Speer took the decision in straight falls, but had he used recognized tactics things might have been different.

MAY BE DIFFERENT.

The fans believe, at any rate, that things are going to be different this week regardless of what Speer does. Because Cox, the Kansas villain, is one of the roughest men in the game.

He is capable, the fans believe, of giving and taking with the best Speer has to offer. The latter has worked himself into a position of an ugly duckling, so to speak, with inveterate fans.

Outside of his fouling, Speer has shown himself to be a greatly improved wrestler. His year on the coast made a great change in his wrestling. He is recognized as one of the comers.

WYCOFF RETURNS.

Atlantans will welcome the return of Doug Wycoff, one of Tech's immortal tackles. Wycoff, who has been away from Atlanta since he got his start in the game, recently returned from Australia. He spent a year there.

Wycoff will meet Ellis Bashara, rugged French Canadian, in the 30-minute opener.

The one-hour semi-windup brings together Darno Ostopavitch, Lithuanian champion, and Dick Stahl, the massive German.

The card, as a whole, promises wild-eyed action.

Tickets are on sale at the Piedmont Hatters at popular prices.

CHENG, REESE ARE DEFEATED

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass., Aug. 19.—(UP)—One national emblem was lowered today at Longwood Cricket Club, battleground for the national doubles tennis championships, as young Guy Cheng, Chinese Davis cup player, was driven to the sidelines with his American partner, William Reese, of Atlanta.

Cheng and Reese, third-seeded "foreign" combine, were upset by the veteran Bostonians, Brooks Fenno and President Henry R. Guild, of the Longwood club, as eight favored American teams and invaders from France, Spain, Czechoslovakia and England hurdled the first round in humdrum fashion.

The upset was a mild one, for Cheng and the Georgia collegian had teamed together only a week and were not expected to go far.

FAVORITES WIN.

Honors for the day went to Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn, and to Roderick Menzel, of Czechoslovakia, and Enrique H. Maier, of Spain, top favorites for the title vacated by George Lott and Lester Stofen, American professionals.

Van Ryn and Allison swept through Thomas Perkins and Holmes Perkins, Bostonians, by scores of 6-0, 6-0, 6-1. Menzel and Maier, giants of the tournament, defeated Wilbur Hess, the Texan, and Hal Surface, of Kansas City, rated a strong combination, by socre of 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

The other all-foreign team of Jacques Brugnon and Martin Legeay, of France, advanced by the default of Amos Eno and Norcross Tilney, of Princeton. Malcolm Horn, an Englishman, teamed with Johnny Van Alen, of Newport, R. I., defeated the New Yorkers, Charles Mattman and Wesley Barnett, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4, 7-5.

Berkeley Bell and Gregory Mangin, indoor champions, trounced Robert Underwood and E. L. Nelson, of Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

FRANKIES ADVANCE.

Frank Shields and young Frankie Parker defeated Burtz Boulware, of Florida, and Robert Little, of Alabama, 6-2, 9-7, 3-6, 6-1.

Don Budge and Gene Mako defeated L. S. Patterson, of Los Angeles, and G. S. Phipps, of Denver, 6-3, 6-2, 6-8, 6-0.

Henry Culley, of Santa Barbara, Cal., and Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, S. C., defeated the veteran Watson Washburn, of New York, and Jess Millman, off Los Angeles, 6-1, 7-5, 4-6, 6-4. Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, and J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., defeated Phil Guibord and Robert Seeley, of Boston, 6-3, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1. Robert M. Byran, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and John McDiarmid, of Fort Worth, Texas, defeated Eddie Sutter, of New Orleans, and Ramsey Potts Jr., of Memphis, Tenn., 6-2, 6-3, 10-12, 6-3. Sam Lee and Henry Prusoff, of Seattle, Wash., defeated John Gow, of Boston, and H. H. Hyde, of Hartford, Conn., 7-5, 6-3, 6-4.

Only a few teams got under way today in the women's national doubles championship. Carolin Babcock, of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn., defeated Esther Edwards, of Hartford, Conn., and Margaret Anderson, of Richmond, Va., 6-0, 6-0; Mrs. John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, and Jane Sharp, of Pasadena, Cal., defeated Mrs. George Wightman, of Boston, and Josephine Gray, of Cincinnati, 6-1, 6-4; Gracyn Wheeler, of Santa Monica, Cal., and Katharine Winthrop, of Boston, defeated Mrs. Karl Pickhardt and Virginia Ellis, of Boston, 10-8, 6-3; Elizabeth and Louise Blackman, Detroit sisters, defeated Mrs. J. Bremer and Mrs. F. Godfrey, of Boston, 6-2, 6-2.

In feature matches tomorrow Brugnon and Legeay, the Frenchmen, oppose Bell and Mangin, while Menzel and Maier face Grant and Hall.

ENLOE DEFEATS DETROIT PLAYER IN PARKS MEET

Is Only Atlantan Surviving Play at New Orleans.

By Norman Walker.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Though several seeded players wavered in their victories, all favorites advanced to second and third-round matches in the opening play of the national public parks tennis tournament here today.

Barnard Welsh, slim hard-stroking defending champion from Washington, D. C., breezed through his second-round encounter with Ricard Uible, of Norwood, Ohio, with his hard forehand drive to the back court driving Uible breathless. Welsh won, 6-0, 6-4, 6-1.

TOUGH MATCH.

Second-seeded Arnold Simons, of Louisville, Ky., twice public parks champion and runner-up to Welsh last year at Minneapolis, had an easy time in eliminating Brent Baxter, of Cleveland, Ohio, 6-1, 6-1, 6-0.

Simons advanced into what the experts predict will be one of the toughest matches of the tournament. He is to play William Hughes, of Memphis, the Tennessee state champion, tomorrow. Hughes outclassed Felix McGivney, of Galveston, Texas, 6-0, 6-1, 6-1.

One of Atlanta's three entries survived the first day's play. Louis Enloe, Gate City champion, defeated Walter Kramer, of Detroit, 6-0, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4. Charles Britzius, Minneapolis parks champion, beat Bud Lindsay, of Atlanta, 7-5, 6-0, 6-0. Tom Tumlin defaulted to Dr. Irving Eison, of Philadelphia.

William Schommer, of Minneapolis, Ted Drewes, of St. Louis, and Ralph McElvenny, of Washington, seeded third, fourth and fifth in the tournament, advanced similarly. Schommer downed Ward Parker, St. Louis, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2; Drewes eliminated James Ratliff, Cincinnati, Ohio, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2, and McElvenny defeated Hobart Wrobbel, Detroit, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

RALLIES.

Dave Gillam, Pasadena, Cal., sixth seeded player, was given up for lost by the majority of experts after Johnny Thorn, New Orleans, had taken the first two sets, 6-4, 6-4, but Gillam blasted through with a terrific comeback to sweep the next three sets in a row and win the match.

Gillam exhibited an amazingly accurate baseline attack, mixed with some brilliant kills at the net, to take the three final sets summarily, 6-0, 6-3, 6-2.

Harris Everett, of Jacksonville, Fla., an unseeded player, battled to victory in another of the day's close matches in defeating Chalers Ratliff, Cincinnati, 6-2, 4-6, 6-0, 4-6, 6-4. Walter Smigel, Cleveland, downed a local hopeful, Louis Lange, 6-3, 6-4, 1-6, 6-1.

JAP SWIMMERS BEAT U. S. STARS

By Glenn Babb.

TOKYO, Japan, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Japan hurled a resounding challenge tonight for 1936 Olympic games swimming honors when its powerful team defeated United States stars 36 points to 27 in a three-day meet.

Three of tonight's four final events were won by the Japanese in a dazzling finale to an international meeting that saw the 800-meter free style world record bettered by six and two-tenths seconds.

As one the two preceding nights, the stadium surrounding Meiji shrine pool was jammed to its 15,000 capacity. In the royal box were the brothers of Emperor Hirohito, the Princes Takamatsu and Sumi.

In the relay, the concluding event, Nasanori Yusa, Ishi Harada, S. Makino and Hiroshi Negami, churned over the 800 meters in 8:52.2. The world record of 8:58.4 was set by the Japanese team in the last Olympics, August 9, 1932. The American team of Peter Fick, of New York Athletic Club; John Macionis, of Philadelphia, and Yale University; Art Lindegren, of Hollywood, and Jack Medica, of Seattle, was beaten by eight meters.

Negami, Rikkyo University ace, won the 800-meter free style in 10:02.4. It bettered the listed world record of 10:08.6 set by Makino over a 50-meter course in Tokyo, June 25, 1933.

Fick gave the United States its only victory of the evening by winning the 100-meter free style in 57.2 seconds. Yus and T. Arai, of Japan, trailed in that order.

In the 200-meter backstroke, Kiichi Yoshida, of the Saeki Middee school, won in 2:35.6. Danny Zehr, of Fort Wayne, Ind., was second, and Kentaro Kawazo, of Keiji University, third. Actually Taylor Drysdale, of Detroit, finished first, two feet ahead of Yoshida but the judges disqualified him on the ground he had turned illegally at the 100-meter mark.

America's chances were handicapped by the absence of Jim Gilhula, Detroit flash, who remained out of competition because of an ear infection.

Grid Stars Work On Defensive Play

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Pleased with the progress the college all-stars have made with the Notre Dame offensive system, Head Coach Frank Thomas and his assistants today turned their attention to developing a defense against the Chicago Bears at Soldier Field August 29.

While the all-star offensive was by no means a finished product, Thomas figured it was far enough advanced to permit bearing down on the other phase of the game.

The early part of the week will be spent on laying the foundation for a system calculated to stop Beattie Feathers, Bronko Nagurski and the rest of the Bears' powerful backs. Later, intensive polishing of the offense will be stressed.

Thomas has given no indication as to which four of his host of talented backs will start against the Bears, but expects to decide by the end of the week.

The Bears meanwhile have been busy with long forward pass drills. The attack has developed rapidly, but Coach George Halas still has to locate quarterbacks to replace Carl Brumbaugh and Keith Molesworth, and a tackle to fill the shoes of Link Lyman.

THE SPORT-LIGHT
By Grantland Rice

THE HAUNTING GHOST.

There is always one haunting ghost of golf—beyond traps, bunkers, ponds and heel prints. It is the ghost of a returning fault or frayed habit that insists on coming back.

I was talking to a well-known golfer a short while ago. "One of my earlier faults," he said, "was keeping too much weight on my left leg, due partly to insufficient body turn. I was locking my left side and this in turn locked my left wrist and wrecked any chance for correct balance.

"I worked on this fault for several weeks and about three months ago I decided that it was completely cured. My swing felt full and free again. I was playing much better golf than I had played in years. I was getting much more distance and much better direction. Then suddenly I went into a slump. My scoring jumped about six strokes or more for the round.

"I had no idea what was happening until about a week ago I chanced to be playing with a well-known pro. I told him I wanted him to watch my swing and tell me what the trouble was. He told me at the third hole. 'Your weight's all on your left leg,' he said. 'You are not turning your body at all—so you are falling back as you hit the ball.'

"There it was—the same old fault I thought I had cured—the same old ghost haunting me again. I suppose it is one of those subconscious things that steal up on you before you notice what has happened. All I know is that my game had suddenly blown up—for no reason that I could figure until I was told by an expert. For the time being I've worked out of it—but I still don't know just what day it will hit me in a tough match."

The Returning Point.

This happens to be the poisonous part of golf's returning ghosts. They come back generally at a tough part of a tough match. They report when tension sets in—and get in their deadly work.

I saw a certain young golfer recently, one of the best of the younger field, who felt sure he had cured the fault of over-swinging on short pitches. He was hitting the ball well until he came to the last three holes of a hard tournament match all square. Here, with a short pitch to make, he promptly fell back to his old fault, shoved the pitch into a bunker and lost the match with another error of the same type.

Chick Evans, with a better putting touch, might have won half a dozen national championships.

In a playoff at Merion for the amateur championship, I saw him miss a 14-inch putt to qualify.

I saw him do the same thing at Chicago on a 2-foot putt—and on each occasion I had the feeling, looking on from the green's edge, that the haunting ghost of other years had come back—and that he was going to miss. You could almost see the spectral outlines of that old fault moving along Chick's trail with a leering look as Evans studied the short putts.

SOFTBALL MEET ENTRIES CLOSE

Today is the last day to enter the southeastern states diamond softball tournament. All entries must be in the hands of the secretary, August Fisher, 160 Pryor street, Atlanta, on or before midnight August 20.

Pairings or drawings for positions will take place Wednesday. The starting games to be played on Saturday night, August 24, on Grady field, Tenth street and Boulevard. The first and opening game for the tournament beginning at 7:45 o'clock, Atlanta time, with appropriate ceremonies, the second game starting at about 9:15 p. m.

Late entries include the following teams: Spartanburg, Columbia and Anderson, S. C.; Charlotte, N. C., state champions, and three outstanding teams from Chattanooga, Tenn. These teams have remarkable records in soft ball, and will be hard to eliminate from the finals. Augusta, Ga., also will be represented by fast, strong teams. And several others that are expected to enter at last minute.

The Florida state champions, Waverly, are coming over 500 miles to uphold Florida's prestige in diamond ball play. That this tournament will be an unqualified success is now assured beyond all expectations.

The magnificent trophy given by Rich's, Inc., to the champion team and the beautiful silver cup given by Davison-Paxon Company, to the most valuable player, may be seen in the respective donor's window.

Martin Announces Schedule Change

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 19.—(AP)—President John D. Martin, of the Southern Association of Baseball Clubs today announced a schedule change to allow Memphis and Little Rock to play a Labor Day doubleheader at Little Rock September 2 at night, instead of in the afternoon.

The action, given the unanimous consent of league directors, was coupled with an announcement that games scheduled at New Orleans and Birmingham for September 3 will be postponed until September 4 when they will be played as parts of double-headers. Memphis will play in New Orleans, and Little Rock at Birmingham on that day.

President Martin said W. A. West, of the Birmingham club, had requested that ladies' season books and "Baron Jr." tickets be honored at Birmingham for the September 4 double-header there.

903 AMATEURS BATTLE TODAY FOR NATIONAL

Qualifying Tests Get Under Way for Cleveland Meet Sept. 9-14.

By Bob Cavagnaro.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The annual "zero" hour for America's amateur golfers will be reached tomorrow when a far-flung army of 903 goes over the top on 26 fronts for 176 places for the national championship to be played at Cleveland September 9-14.

The second straight all-match-play tournament will number 201 players, an increase of more than 20 over last year. Ten qualified last week in the far west and 15 others, comprising 10 former winners and five foreign entrants, are exempt from the 36-hole sectional qualifying tests.

W. Lawson Little Jr., the defending champion; George T. Dunlap Jr., winner in 1933, and Big Tony Torrance, of England, are among the leading players who qualify automatically, but tomorrow's play finds many other stars on the spot.

JOHNNY GOODMAN.

Johnny Goodman, who won the open crown two years ago, will take the test in the Omaha district, where 14 players are entered for three places. Goodman survived an even tighter squeeze there last year.

Dallas and Oklahoma City also offer some keen rivalry. Dallas has been apportioned eight places for 23 contestants, including Dave Goldman, Little's victim in the 1934 finals; the durable Reynolds Smith, of extra-hole fame; Leland Hamman, Ed White and young Charley Dexter Jr. Walter Emery, Zell Eaton and the long-hitting Harry Gandy are among the field of 16 seeking four places in Oklahoma City.

YATES TO COMPETE.

Only something on the order of form reversal should prevent the other headliners from making the trip to Cleveland next month. Charlie Yates, the Georgian, who holds the western amateur title, will compete in a field of 20 for four places at Atlanta. Gus Moreland and Jake Westland, 1934 Walker cupsters, are entered in the Chicago district, along with such able players as George Dawson, Don Armstrong, Johnny Lehman and Freddie Haas. Another internationalist, Johnny Fischer, will take the test in Cincinnati.

The New York district, with 23 places for 133 entrants, offers plenty of breathing room for Frankie Strafaci, newly crowned public links champion; Watts Gunn, Gene Homans, George Voigt, Dick Chapman, Willie Turnesa and Tommy Goodwin. Young Robert Carpenter (Bobby) Jones, of Detroit, who gained the headlines by eliminating the veteran Francis Ouimet in the first round at Brookline, will seek one of the six places in his native section.

MRS. LELA HALL IS TRAP STAR

VANDALIO, Ohio, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Lela Hall, of East Lynne, Mo., stepped into a man's game today and stole the show from her masculine opponents for the second straight year as the thirteenth grand American trapshooting program opened.

Mrs. Hall, about 24 years old, and weighing just a bit over 100, broke 198 out of a possible 200 targets to tie for the Class B crown, the highest score a woman marksman ever made in big league competition, and then won a shoot-off with Dr. L. E. Botts, of Wauseon, Ohio, and Dillie Craig, of Berry, Ky., to take the crown.

Walter Beaver, of Berwin, Pa., North American clay target champion and grand American handicap winner in 1933, set a world record for consecutive targets broken with 635. The old mark of 621 was set 10 years ago by Boyd Duncan, of Lucy, Tenn.

John Taylor, of Newark, Ohio, a professional for the last 31 years who turned amateur for this year's meet, copped the Class A championship with 200 straight.

The Class AA title, the highest in the sport, went to B. C. Butts, of Ferndale, Mich. Butts, who has been shooting but four years, broke 200 in a row to get into a shoot-off with Steve Brothers, veteran from Chestnut Hill, Pa., and "Russ" Elliott, of Raytown, Mo., and then defeated them in a 50-target shoot-off by breaking 50 more in a row. He ran his string to 375 in the shoot-off, having broken his last 125 in the 16-yard event yesterday.

FORMER JACKET MAY RACE HERE

Jim Snyder, former Georgia Tech and Oglethorpe football star, may pay a return visit to the scene of his schooldays in his new role as a knight of the roaring road, being seriously considered by Walt Killinger as the pilot of his Miller 255 during the 100-mile race at Lakewood on Labor Day, it was revealed yesterday.

Snyder forsook football for auto racing after finishing up at Tech, and at the wheel of Killinger's car turned in the fastest qualifying time against a field of stars at Roby Speedway Sunday before rain called a halt to the festivities.

Killinger, chafing at the performance of his car here July Fourth with Snyder, has definitely entered the machine for the century grind on Labor Day. He is dickering with Snyder, but should the former Tech gridster fail to come to terms, Killinger will bring Buzz Warek back to pilot the car. Warek did a good job of tooling the red Miller here on the Fourth, and with more power under the hood since installation of the new type Miller motor, should give the formidable field a tussle for first money.

Down the Alleys

George W. McKay, sensational Atlanta duckpin ace, won the top prize in the Individual Duckpin league as the circuit drew to a close Monday evening.

McKay's substantial margin of games won over his nearest contender was so large that he had no cause of worrying over what happened in the final night of bowling.

Dewey P. Bowen, who got away to a slow start, was runner-up as he won over Carl Tidwell. Tidwell placed third in the games won.

While only one member of the National league trio was seeing action yesterday, the American league's members of baseball six engaged in a lively scrap for circuit batting honors and ended the day with four players closely bunched. Joe Vosmik pounded out three hits in four times at bat to gain 4 points and go into a tie for first place with Roger Cramer, each with an average of .346. Cramer connected with three hits in a double-header to hold his ground. Only a point behind the pair trailed Hank Greenberg and Buddy Myer, the latter holding his own with one blow in four times at bat while the big Detroit first baseman was pounding out two hits to push his average up 2 points.

The standings:

PLAYER—	G.	AB.	R.	H.	Pct.
Vaughan, Pirates	103	376	89	153	.407
Medwick, Cardinals	110	448	95	165	.368
Vosmik, Indians	110	463	65	160	.346
Cramer, Athletics	105	466	73	161	.346
Greenberg, Tigers	111	461	94	159	.345
Myers, Senators	110	447	85	154	.345
Hartnett, Cubs	91	320	47	109	.341

BIG POWERS STUDY U. S. MANEUVERS

Greatest Peacetime 'Games' Get Under Way in New York.

PINE CAMP, N. Y., Aug. 19.—(UP)—As high military officials of foreign countries watched, America's air and land forces today began their greatest peacetime army maneuvers.

More than 36,000 United States army regulars and state national guardsmen were ready for the mythical enemy.

At the Watertown airport, designated the air base, 32 army and national guard planes warmed up for night "games."

Tomorrow night, the planes will "attack." Antiaircraft units equipped with modern weapons and powerful searchlights "dug in" to await the "enemy."

Military observers from France, Spain, Japan, Mexico and Cuba were on hand for the opening of the two weeks' maneuvers.

Lieutenant General Friederick von Botticher, Germany, was expected later in the week.

Brigadier General Jaun F. Azcarto, Mexico; Colonel W. T. Torr, Great Britain; Colonel Emmanuel Lombard, France; Colonel Tsi-ming Chow, China; Colonel Matsumato, Japan, and his two assistants, Major Yasuyuki Miyoshi and Captain Yasuto Nakayama, were at the camp today.

U. S. FUNDS ARE GIVEN TO BUILD POWER PLANT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt "with very great pleasure" today approved a $1,237,909 grant from Emergency Relief appropriation funds for construction of an electric power plant at Danville, Va.

The federal grant represented 45 per cent of the cost of the project. The remaining 55 per cent, $1,513,000, will be financed by a loan to the city, making the total cost of construction, $2,750,909.

The project calls for construction at the principles of Dan on the Dan river of a dam and storage reservoir, a diversion dam pipe line, tunnel and penstock to the hydro-electric power plant of 12,500-kilowatt capacity.

CITIZENSHIP IS DENIED WIFE OF CLERGYMAN

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—A petition for citizenship filed by Mrs. Gertrude Annas, wife of a Corning, N. Y., clergyman and mother of two children, was dismissed in federal court today because Mrs. Annas, although willing to uphold the constitution, would not promise to bear arms in time of war.

The clergyman's wife, born in Edinburgh, Scotland, the daughter of Rev. James L. Lockhead, a Methodist missionary in north Africa, said she did not want to fight in the event of war because her own youth had been overshadowed by war. Bombing raids by German dirigibles on London, where she was at school, she said, had made a horrible impression on her.

Mrs. Annas told, also, of being in charge of a war orphanage at Grenoble, France.

Favorite Sports of Atlantans Described by Sally Forth

By Sally Forth.

SUMMER sports seem to have reached a new peak of popularity and Sally was very curious to find out how Atlanta's charming young girls were indulging their athletic aspirations. So off she went for a tour of the younger contingent's popular haunts to see whom and what she could find.

Up at the Tate Mountain Estates on Sunday Mrs. Oscar Strauss Jr. and Bee Rich, both brown as berries, donned shorts and athletic skirts and hiked several miles over the picturesque country surrounding Connahaynee lodge.

And here in Atlanta, passing by the Harry Baylors home on Rivers road in Haynes Manor, she was quite surprised to see that that charming brunette daughter of theirs, Harriette Anne, has installed a badminton court in the yard of her home, and has acquired quite a little prowess in that intrepid game.

Sally sauntered through Piedmont park and, to her surprise, whom should she see playing tennis but Emily Inglis King, Chastaine Cook Post, Scott Meador and Susan Jones. These young ladies seemed to be a bit out of practice in the art of serving and receiving balls, but were so good-natured about it that they were having twice as much fun as they would have had otherwise. This diligent quartet is planning to get in practice by playing every morning, so Atlanta champs had best watch their step or they will soon have keen competition.

Jule McClatchey confessed that she was still rather worn out from her extensive bicycling at Daytona Beach, Fla. Jule went in for pedaling in a large way when she was there and is an expert at the art of handling bars.

At the Willis Timmons', Sally found their charming woodland home overflowing with the usual number of pop-callers, who always flock to this lovely home to receive the hospitable welcome these gracious people extend to their friends. At the time, Willis and Russell Timmons, Charlie Lipham and Ruby Billingslee, of Albany, who often visits Aline Timmons, were in the midst of an exciting and complicated game of tennis.

Sally hated to leave this hospitable place, but she felt that she simply had to see was going on at some of the clubs, or her tour would not be complete. The Driving Club was filled with hosts of beautiful young debs-to-be, who sought refreshment in the cooling waters of its crystal-clear swimming pool, and at Brookhaven Country Club, Betty and Jack Kalkhurst, Anne and Mary Russell Irby and other young Atlantans were splashing around in excellent style, possibly between a game of golf and lunch.

Sally, seeking other athletic attempts, arrived at the home of the Grover Middlebrooks just in time to catch Emma, Katherine Calhoun, Harriette Collier and Cora Gantt in the midst of a strenuous game of bridge. These lovely sub-debs looked so contented and comfortable beneath the shade of leafy trees that even Sally caught the contagion of its restfulness.

So bidding adieu to athletics, and regretting that she had insufficient time to investigate other summer rendezvous, she returned to her work with a mind pleasantly dreaming of the north pole, far away from the piercing rays of "Old Sol."

LOVE comes and goes. It's coming has constantly been described in glowing terms as being likened to the sun in a burst of glory enlightening the darkness, as a sail to a shipwrecked sailor, as the flutter of the wings of a dove, and many other expressions quite as startling.

It's going has also been described in terms less compelling. But one young Atlantan has contributed a description as adequate as it is unromatic. When asked what happened to his latest romance, he brusquely replied:

"Well, I saw I was getting in a rut, so I put it in low and side-tracked."

Sally can't help but wonder if "low" will get him into another rut.

NISBET LeCONTE is on the high seas, a passenger on the S. S. Deutchland, which reaches its New York port next Thursday. She traveled in Europe during the past three months under the chaperonage of Mrs. Inman Sanders. Letters tell of many thrilling experiences having been enjoyed by Nisbet, who will spend a joyous week sight-seeing in the metropolis after the steamer docks in the Hudson river.

En route to Atlanta, Nisbet will stop at Clayton to join a family house party at Kingwood, the summer home of the late George E. King, her maternal grandfather. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Haddock Jr., of Baltimore, are already at Kingwood, and at the conclusion of their visit there they will journey to Atlanta to visit their mother, Mrs. James T. William, before returning to Maryland.

Miss Kathryn Brooks Weds Mr. Tharpe.

Mr. and Mrs. James Leon Brooks, of Atlanta, announce the marriage of their daughter, Kathryne Chappell, to Robert Hollis Tharpe, of Memphis, Tenn., the wedding having taken place at 9:30 o'clock on August 17 at the First Baptist church in New Orleans, La., with Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of Druid Hills Baptist church, of Atlanta, officiating. Only the immediate families and a few close friends were present.

The bride wore an ensemble of atmosphere gray crepe, a Vionnet model, fashioned with a fitted jacket and fern green blouse. Her accessories were of matching shades. A real lace handkerchief which was carried by the bride's mother at her wedding, completed the outfit. She wore a shoulder bouquet of white orchids.

The bride's maid of honor and only attendant was her sister, Miss Leone Brooks. The bridegroom's best man was his brother, Mack Tharpe, of Atlanta. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Tharpe will reside in Memphis, Tennessee.

Miss Thompson To Wed Mr. Sanders

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The marriage of Miss Carroll Atelia Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Thompson, of Atlanta, Ga., to Walter Benjamin Sanders, assistant in architecture at Columbia University, will take place next Friday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in St. Paul's chapel, Columbia University. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. John S. Willey. The matron of honor will be Mrs. John Judson Rowland, of Atlanta, Ga. Kent Lytle Stuart, of Winnetka, Ill., will be best man.

Miss Thompson attended Wesleyan College, in Macon, Ga., and Oglethorpe University. Mr. Sanders, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Kelsey Sanders, of Los Gatos, Cal., is a graduate of the University of Illinois, and received the master of architecture degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1930. He has been teaching in the Columbia School of Architecture for five years.

Miss Florence Underwood Feted Prior to Marriage Tomorrow

Miss Florence Margaret Underwood, lovely bride-elect whose marriage to Gordon Adams will be a social event of tomorrow will be honored today at the luncheon to be given by Mrs. Charles Loridans, at Brookhaven, the Capital City Country Club. At the same time Mr. Adams will be central figure at the stag luncheon to be given by Dr. Newton Underwood, brother of the bride-elect, at his home on Avery drive.

This evening Dr. and Mrs. Henry Poer will entertain at a buffet-supper at their home on Piedmont avenue, for their cousin and Mr. Adams. Last evening Miss Mary Olive Whitehead entertained at an al fresco buffet supper at her home on Lakeview avenue, honoring Miss Underwood and her fiance, the guests numbering 40.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Victor Smith was hostess at tea at her home on Piedmont avenue, honoring Miss Underwood. Mrs. Alex Smith Jr., assisted in entertaining the guests who included members of the wedding party.

Prior to the tea Mrs. Thomas English gave a luncheon at her home on Clifton road, complimenting Miss Underwood. Covers were placed for Misses Underwood, her guests, Misses Elizabeth Houston, of Hampton, Va.; Mazel Uzzell, of Greensboro, N. C., and Mrs. Newton Underwood, Mrs. Henry Poer, Mrs. Charles Hurt, Mrs. Harris Purks, Miss Rachael Johnson, Miss Rachel Neely and Miss Mary Olive Underwood.

College Board Given Luncheon at Rich's

Prominent members of the college set of society composing the college board of Rich's College shop, were honor guests at the luncheon given Monday in Rich's tea room by Oscar Strauss Jr. The table was overlaid with a red and white gingham cloth and centered with a globe surrounded by school books, pennants and magazines. The place cards were in the form of miniature slates bound in red and white, and the school idea was further expressed in the miniature globe pencil sharpeners. For the fifth consecutive year 15 prominent young girls have been chosen for the board each one of these young girls representing the typical American college girl.

Guests were Misses Mary Ann Noland, Girls' High school; Julia Gatewood, Brenau; Mary Elizabeth Barge, Sweet Briar; Bobby Hightower, Washington Seminary; Jeaneane Massey, University of Georgia; Mary Collier, Agnes Scott; Peggy Roach, North Fulton High; Louise Donehoo, Georgia State College for Women; Dorothy Catts, Bessie Tift; Martha Carmichael, Oglethorpe; Dot Davis, North Avenue Presbyterian school; Sasa Smith, Sophie Newcomb; Jacqueline Howard, Wesleyan; Julia Clark, Shorter, and Paul Ludwig.

FEATHER IN HER HAT

By Julie Anne Moore

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Ann Rogers and Rita Manley, back in Elmville from college, get civil service jobs in Washington. Rita knows Bill Hudson, correspondent there for a New York paper. He is a friend of Mollie Winslow, special writer on the Globe, with whom the girls are to stay temporarily. Mollie receives a mysterious phone message that Fuhrman Wells, Senator Runbrecker's secretary, is lying murdered in the reflecting pool at the Lincoln Memorial. The next day the same voice phones that Runbrecker's son, Deane, is dead in the speaker's chair in the house of representatives with an ice pick in his heart. A third message states that the senator jumped off the Washington monument. The night of her arrival Ann goes with Bill to the airport for the arrival of his friend, Lee Monday, wealthy young aviator, who is making a blind flight from Los Angeles. There is nobody in the apartment when they return. Bill seems about to kiss Ann, then abruptly says good night. Lee comes, expecting to see Bill. Both are so tired they fall asleep sitting on a couch. When Lee wakes he does not rouse Ann. He sends orchids. Selma, Runbrecker's daughter, is jealous of the attentions shown to Rita by Carl Balmer, Department of Justice agent. The senator discharges Wells at Selma's request. At a dinner given by Selma a message is received that Wells is dead in the reflecting pool. The guests find Wells himself there, but following a sudden explosion he is dead in the pool, with wire twisted about his neck.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XII.

Washington from the air was only a memory now. They had flown directly to the capitol, circled the dome, followed Pennsylvania avenue to the White House and then swung off to the right and headed for Baltimore, Lee's seat was a little forward but by raising their voice slightly they were able to converse without difficulty.

"After Washington," said Ann, "Baltimore looks messy."

"Good town, though," Lee said.

"Oh, look! A train . . . looks like a toy, doesn't it?"

"Or a worm," said Lee.

They talked like that. Little outbursts from Ann. Calm amused rejoinders from Lee. To Ann it was all new; she was inexpressibly thrilled.

When she saw the clock on the dash, she laughed and called Lee's attention to it. Five o'clock. I thought aviators had to keep their clocks and watches right on the dot. "Oddly enough, she did not look at her own watch. They had been at the Washington airport at 3:30 which, she assumed, had been some 30 minutes ago. But as she had lost her sense of time, she had also lost her sense of direction.

They passed many towns. The first thing that caught Ann's attention when another came into view was the long wide avenue that ran through its center and on which a majority of white houses faced. She gripped Lee's arm as she said, "Can you see out this side, Lee?"

"Very pretty town," Lee said. "Lots of those in New England."

"That's what I mean." Suppressed excitement was in her voice. "It's laid out exactly like—like Elmville . . . Even the two churches. Oh—you've no idea how much it looks like home."

Her face was pressed against the glass, her whole body aquiver with the wonder of the amazing similarity. Lee watched her, smiling, fascinated by her utter naturalness. She was as unselfconscious as a child, and as eager and spontaneous in her every word and gesture.

Not moving, she cried, "I can even see the little house that would be ours . . ."

"We'll go down and have a closer look," Lee said. The plane inclined slightly and began a wide circle around the village below, but the altimeter still registered 3,500 feet. He was looking for something, a golf course, or a baseball diamond, or—

"That will serve," he thought as his eyes unexpectedly came to a wide, open field. "Rough, probably, but with luck a fair takeoff."

The nose of the plane was dropping, steadily. No longer was the town visible to Ann. She swung around.

"I know you think I'm being awfully silly, but you can't begin to understand how like home that place is. It's uncanny, Lee!"

Twice she saw the scattered houses slip by at a distance and each time they seemed larger and even more familiar.

"You're not going to land . . .?" It was a hope and a plea.

"Why not? We're in no hurry." The needle of the altimeter moved slowly to the left. He had deliberately come away from the town for this, a plan adequately rewarded by Ann's evident excitement. Curious, how he enjoyed watching her. Curious because he could not understand his own feelings toward her. There had been many girls in his life, there would be many more. But there had never been another quite like this unspoiled child, and he doubted there would ever be another . . . And yet, reasonably, he could not be seriously interested in her. He was quite sure of this and while the plane came around in a final bank and suddenly leveled off, he reflected that they, he and Ann, had nothing in common but youth and love of life and that most unusual meeting in Mollie Winslow's living room . . . She was fun because she was different; but it was not a distinction that carried beyond the moment. In a few days he would fly back to the coast and little Ann Rogers would be an episode—a rather pleasant but quite unimportant episode—of the past. He was glad she was not the sort who would misinterpret his intentions . . .

"Lee—look! The whole town's turning out. You'd think they never saw a plane before." She laughed delightedly.

Lee bent a little forward, eyes searching the field ahead.

"Watch it now," he warned, quietly; "this may be a bit rough . . ." And while Ann sat rigid, too startled to speak, the plane nosed down, came up level and a moment later was bouncing along on two wheels. Then the tail skid struck and Lee kicked the brake pedal.

Having turned off the switch, the flyer leaned across Ann and unfastened the door. "All right," he said, "let's get out and see what the place looks like . . ."

But Ann neither moved nor spoke. She was gazing out at the gathering crowd, struggling with the sense of unreality that came over her as she understood that these people were not the strangers she had expected, but men, women and children she had known all her life.

Ann told her mother in the kitchen after dinner. "I thought we were flying in a circle around Washington and I hadn't any idea that clock in the plane was right . . . I'm afraid I'll never be able to convince myself this isn't a dream."

Ann's mother was only slightly larger than her daughter, a frail little woman whose hair was as dark as it had been 20 years ago, but there were tiny lines under her eyes which, unfortunately, were magnified by the lenses of her rimless glasses. She smiled now, but there was a suggestion of fear in the uncertain movement of her lips. She said, hesitantly, "I'm glad you came, Ann, but—do you have to go back in that airplane?"

"Silly!" Ann gave her mother a quick little kiss and held her off, laughing. "It's as safe and comfortable as riding in father's car. Really it is, mother . . . And think—two hours after we leave here we'll be in Washington."

Her mother nodded, unconvinced but knowing the futility of pressing the point. "Will you send me a wire as soon as you get there? I won't sleep until I know you're on the ground again."

"Of course—" Ann lifted a hand, grinning. "Listen—Father's letting more come in. They must be piled up three deep by now."

But her mother's alert ears had caught the sound of familiar voices. "It's Mr. and Mrs. Manley," she whispered. "They've come to ask about Rita."

Ann's father came to the kitchen. "Rita's folks are here," he said. "You two can't stick back here by yourselves. The whole town's in the front room."

Ann smiled up at her father, thinking how much he and Bill Hudson were alike in height and build. "We're coming, Dad. But can't we have just a tiny little family reunion before it's too late?" She held out a hand to him and in a moment he had stepped forward and caught both Ann and her mother in his arms.

"My, but it's nice to see you," Ann said, softly. "I feel as if I'd been away for years. "She ran her finger down her father's vest buttons. It was an old trick and he grinned. "Mother's uneasy about my going back in Lee's plane, Dad," she told him. "It's perfectly safe, itsn't it?"

"Of course it's safe." He put a finger under his wife's chin and made her look at him. "Tell you what I'll do. You keep Ann here and I'll go back with Lee Monday. How's that?"

Ann's question was out before she knew it. "Do you like him, Dad?"

"Lee Monday?" . . . "Say, he's my idea—" He was suddenly silent, staring into Ann's eyes. "Look here, Ann—"

But Ann checked him. "Don't get silly notions in your head. He's simply being nice and I'm letting him." They heard Lee's voice raised in laughter in the front room. "We've simply got to rescue him from that mob," she said, quickly. "He said he wanted to leave by seven."

It was almost 8 o'clock before the plane roared down the narrow lane marked by three lanterns on either side and suddenly zoomed into the night. . . . Once that first sharp surprise of almost vertical climbing had passed, Ann settled back comfortably. She was happy—incredibly happy. Only her mother's parting whisper had marred the moment of good-byes. . . . "Tell Mr. Monday to be careful, Ann. I'm so terribly afraid something will happen." . . . "As if," Ann thought now, smiling, "anything could possibly happen with Lee Monday at the controls. . . ."

The rising wind they faced as they made their way to the plane had meant nothing to Ann.

While they were driving back from Great Falls, Bill had tried again and again to draw Rita into a discussion of Carl and Selma. Once he had said:

"Must be great to have your emotional machinery running on the same belt the way Carl and the Runbrecker female manage it. Funny, too, when you think about it. Carl's intelligent and practical and ambitious, while Selma's mental equipment is about on a par with a two-day-old kitten. . . ."

To which Rita had replied, "Would not it be amusing if we ran into Ann and Lee out here somewhere?"

And again, later:

WHEN COUSINS MARRY THEY NEED NOT HAVE DEFECTIVE CHILDREN
BILL VENN

Professor E. M. East, of Harvard University, in his book, "Heredity and Human Affairs," shows that when cousins are healthy and have had ancestors of good mental and physical health, there is no danger whatever of their producing inferior offspring, in case they should marry. Inbreeding never creates defects—it can only keep them in the family. In the same way, genius can be retained in the family. There were several cousin-marriages in the Bach family and in five generations there were 28 distinguished musicians.

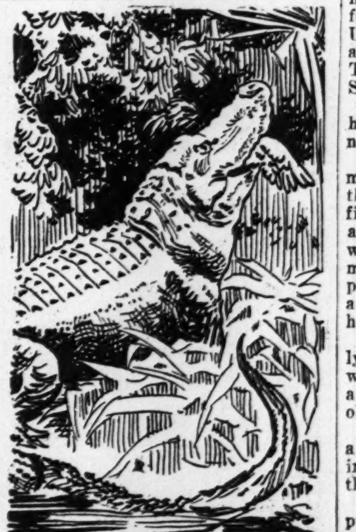
How fast does an alligator grow?

In an effort to answer that question, keepers of the New York zoo made tests over a period of years on captive alligators.



Al Alligator Taking a Bite to Eat On Land.

One animal was eight inches long when hatched, and grew to a length of 18 inches at the end of a year. After two and a half years, it was close to four feet long.

Other tests show that a captive alligator, during the first 10 years of life, grew about one foot and two inches on the average each year; but later it added only about two inches per year to its length.

Wild alligators seem to grow somewhat faster during the early years of their lives, and may reach a length of from 10 to 12 feet by the end of five or six years.

In all cases there comes a time when alligators add little or nothing to their size. Even though they live to be 200 years old, they seldom measure more than 13 or 14 feet. In a few cases, alligators have grown to be from 15 to 20 feet long; but such size is rare.

Except for a branch of the alligator family in China (with members about six feet long), all known alligators are native to the New World. They are found in the southwestern part of the United States, chiefly in Florida, but also in Georgia and the Carolinas. They also live in tropical parts of South America.

Africa, India and the East Indies have more than enough crocodiles, but no alligators.

Alligator nests are built of mud, moss and grass and are placed near the edge of the water. From two to five dozen eggs are laid in each nest, as a rule. The sun's heat provides warmth for the hatching, but the female stays near the nest in order to protect it from attack. Alligator eggs are a little larger than those laid by hens.

Newly hatched alligators are usually from seven to nine inches long, but weigh hardly two ounces. By the time an animal is two and a half years old, it weighs about 15 pounds.

Full-grown male alligators bellow a great deal at night when they are in their native swamp lands. In zoos they sometimes bellow at meal time.

Alligator hides supply leather for purses, hand bags, women's shoes and other purposes. The market value of a hide has ranged from $1 to $6 and this has led many hunters to kill the animals.

Alligator farms or ranches exist in Florida and California. On some of them thousands of the animals are kept. The hides are sent to market.

Miss Kilpatrick and Mr. Stubblebine Wed at Grace Methodist Church

A marriage marked by beauty and dignity was that of Miss Roberta Kilpatrick to Charles Stubblebine, which was solemnized Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the Grace Methodist church. Dr. W. A. Shelton, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. The church was tastefully decorated with an effective arrangement of palms and ferns. Pedestal baskets filled with white dahlias were placed amid the foliage and on either side were seven-branched cathedral candelabra. Pews reserved for members of the families were marked by white satin ribbons.

Prior to and during the ceremony a program of nuptial music was presented by Gordon Moore, organist, including "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life," "Oh Promise Me," and "To a Wild Rose," by McDowell. Immediately preceding the ceremony two solos, "Because," by Guy d'Hardelot, and "At Dawning," by Camden, were rendered by Garnett Trotter.

The Bridal Party.

Ushers were Kenneth Cooper, Philip Dunlap, Joe Dekle and Brooks McCrorey. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Hudmon, of Sylvania, Ga., and Miss Dorothy Manget, of Atlanta, Ga. Their gowns of soft lace over taffeta were fashioned along similar lines. Miss Hudmon wearing peach and Miss Manget wearing blue. The dresses were made along princess style, the yoke crushed high across the throat making a graceful collar over the shoulder and shirred below a deep back decolletage ornamented with a rhinestone clip. The flowing skirt trailed into a train and matching bandeaux and sandals completed their costumes. They carried bouquets of rubrum lilies tied with American beauty ribbon.

Miss Marlyn Tate, of Banner Elk, N. C., was maid of honor. Her yellow lace gown was fashioned along the same lines as those of the bridesmaids. The matron of honor, Mrs. T. C. Scarbrough, sister of the bride, wore green lace fashioned similar to the bridesmaids' gowns, and they carried bouquets similar to those of the bridesmaids. The flower girl, little Miss Beverly Bechtel, cousin of the bridegroom, wore pink point d'esprit. The tiers of ruffles which formed the skirt touched the floor. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of garden flowers.

Beautiful Bride.

Entering with her father, Walter S. Kilpatrick, by whom she was given in marriage, the bride was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his brother, Clarence Stubblebine, serving as best man. Her petite brunet beauty was accentuated by her exquisite wedding gown of white satin. It was fashioned along princess style, with an Alencon lace collar rounded in front and terminating in a point in the back. Lace, which extended from above the elbow to a point over the hand, was appliqued on the closely fitting sleeves. The graceful skirt had a built-in train at the back and she wore a tulle veil. The Alencon lace bandeau which the bride wore was attached to the veil with a cluster of orange blossoms, and she carried a sheaf of Easter lilies.

Mrs. W. S. Kilpatrick, mother of the bride, was gowned in powder blue chiffon. Her flowers were a shoulder bouquet of Columbia roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. A. E. Stubblebine, mother of the bridegroom, was gowned in navy blue chiffon with touches of pink at the neck. Her shoulder bouquet was of Columbia roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. C. L. Printup, of Memphis, Tenn., sister of the bride, was gowned in pale pink net. Her flowers were sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Stubblebine left for a motor trip to Florida. For traveling the bride wore blue crepe with matching accessories and her shoulder spray was of orchids.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. C. L. Printup, of Memphis, Tenn.; Misses Sara and Dixie Printup, of Memphis, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cox, of Griffin, Ga.; Mrs. J. A. Kelly and Mrs. W. B. Miss Neva Jones Weds Mr. Saunders.

ROME, Ga., Aug. 19.—Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Neva Jones, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jones, of Miami, Fla., and Claud Saunders Jr., son of Mrs. Lois Daniel Saunders, and Claud Saunders, of Orlando, Fla. The marriage was solemnized at high noon on August 15 at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Wiliam F. Barron, at Jacksonville Beach, Fla. The Rev. Ivan Trussler, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Gadsden, officiated in the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Barron, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lee Barron and other Rome friends. Jack Rogers, of Rome, served as best man.

The bride wore a shell pink waffle weave crepe ensemble with a large pink hat of rough straw. She carried roses and lilies of the valley. Mr. and Mrs. Saunders left on a motor trip and will reside with the bridegroom's mother, on Maple street, when they return to Rome.

Mrs. Saunders last autumn transferred from Miami University to Shorter College. She was extremely popular at Shorter and took an active part in the social and literary clubs. Mr. Saunders was graduated from Darlington school and attended Mercer University. He is a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity. He is on the governing board of Nine O'clock Cotillion Club. He is associated with Dan Hanks in the supply business here. His sister is Mrs. Robert Kane, of Rome.

Mrs. T. R. Gaines, Misses Gaines Feted.

Mrs. T. R. Gaines and her daughters, Misses Lucile Talmadge Gaines and Miss Gloria Gaines, of Anderson, S. C., have been central figures at a series of delightful social affairs as the guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Horace Clark.

Sunday, Mrs. Frank Brower entertained at an informal dinner at her home in Kirkwood, for the visitors and on Saturday evening Governor and Mrs. Eugene Talmadge honored the visitors at a dinner party at the executive mansion, in Ansley Park. Sharing honors was Mrs. Hilton H. Tyus, of Carrollton, sister of the Governor. Among other affairs honoring the visitors was a family picnic on Thursday at Dogwood Farm.

Miss Redding Honored

Mrs. John William Clifford Smith entertained at a shower-tea at her home on Montclair drive Saturday, complimenting Miss Jennierae Redding, whose marriage to William Wingo McKinney, will be an event of September 8.

An interesting contest was first enjoyed, after which the guests were asked to show their skill with needle, in hemming tea towels, which were later presented to the honor guest.

The daintily appointed table was graced in the center by a beautifully designed three-tiered bride's cake. Covers were laid for 18 guests. Other hostesses to Miss Redding will be Mesdames J. E. Pirkle, Frank Keener, J. B. Hogsed, Ross L. Bowers and H. C. Patillo.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Failing To Cash.

There are times when the defending side must grab tricks while it may, but every so often the inscrutable gods of chance distribute the cards so that it is the best defense for a player to refuse to win a trick, even though it may conceivably mean he may never be able to cash it.

In today's hand East recognized such a situation and by restraining the natural urge to win one trick eventually enabled his side to gain two.

North, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

North	East	South	West
1♠(1)	Pass	1NT	Pass
2NT	Pass	3NT(2)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—North might have opened with one no-trump on his 4-3-3-3 distribution. With five honor-tricks, however, he gave the preference to the spade call.

2—Having made a minimum response and received a very encouraging raise to two no-trump, South with an honor in every suit decided to gambled for game.

The Play.

West opened the jack of hearts, which declarer properly ducked in both hands. A low heart was continued and South was faced with the problem of deciding in which hand to win the trick. The extreme scarcity of entries to his hand dictated the play of the king from dummy. Attempting to create a second in-card, declarer led a low spade from the ace-king. East played low and South the jack, which West won with the queen returning a third heart. South won this with the ace and determined that although there was but faint hope of bringing in the suit, the diamonds offered the only possibility of making contract. He therefore led a low diamond, and hope blossomed when West played the queen. North's king forced East's ace. East exited with a spade, which was won by the king in dummy, and the seven of diamonds returned.

Here East made his brilliant play. He realized the play of the nine of diamonds would insure a diamond trick, but he gave South due credit, and knew that that player would allow the nine to hold and later finesse against the ten. He therefore played the four of diamonds, allowing the seven to win in dummy and made certain he could still control the diamond suit, because he had a fourth-round winner and his play effectively blocked declarer out of his hand.

Making only two tricks in diamonds instead of the three for which he had hoped, there was no way for declarer to win more than eight tricks, although he played for the one remaining chance, a squeeze against West if that player had held both the queen and jack of clubs. West had discarded one spade on the second round of diamonds, but on the third round, which declarer won with the jack, he distarded a low club, and South was helpless.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I am not an old woman but I have crowded enough experience into my 45 years to make me old. Of my six children, four are married. My husband is an honest, hard-working man. Yet in spite of these virtues he has managed to take the joy out of life for me. It is not exaggerating to say that he never speaks a kind word to me or to the children, regardless of how hard we try to please him. A plea for money means a fuss, no matter how necessary it is. We don't expect amusements. We only ask money for necessities. I am sure that putting our life on a business basis strictly, I have earned my way, for I keep house, cook and do the housework, look after the garden, chickens and cows. I do all the so-called light farm work. When he comes into the house all we get is reprimands. He complains that I have no respect for him. Then I begin to humor him and pet him on top of all the abuse he heaps on me. I must have relief and don't know how to get it.

OLD-BEFORE-MY-TME.

ANSWER:

When everything about a relationship is wrong it is well-nigh impossible to right it. Yet there are some things you can do that may give you relief from the mental strain you live under. There is nothing you can do to change the disposition of a sour, disagreeable middle-aged man. You can take a new view of matters. In other words, the relief must come from within, from your changed attitude, rather than from change in your husband.

You and the children should have a good talk, outline the new plan and present a solid front to the husband and father, which is in substance a plan to freeze him out. When he complains accept it silently, when he issues his reprimands ignore them. When he issues orders to the children, they should obey; when he issues them to you use your own judgment. In quiet, dispassionate conversation with him, you should tell him that from legal and moral standpoint, as well, you are entitled to money for clothes both for yourself and for the children and that in addition you have earned your right to these things. Then when call for cash brings on a temper, just be cool and take the cash without getting hot and bothered over his ill-humor. The next time he accuses you of having no respect for him, tell him what you have said in this letter, that you respect him for his virtures: namely, his honesty and his industry, but that he has not merited respect o any other score.

You should set him straight on this little matter. A woman's respect for her husband, or his for her, can't be got on demand, it is something earned and merited or it doesn't exist. A person must first of all respect himself before he can make others respect him. He must behave in such a way toward his family that he elicits their admiration and respect. Your husband has fallen down in both ways. For no self-respecting man abuses his loved ones and puts himself in position to be hated by them.

If you can arrange to take the children and go on a short visit to your married children, leaving him with the bag to hold for a few days, he will get a better idea of what you do when you are at home, though this won't make him a sweet, sympathetic companion.

Instead of letting him sour the atmosphere of your home and spoil the children's youth, join with them in manufacturing some fun, always leaving him out of it. You may not be able to have expensive amusements but you can figure on some inexpensive ones, if it is no more than packing your supper in a basket and going to the woods for a picnic. These home tyrants get their biggest kick out of punishing the people they live with. Then let your tyrant see he can no longer punish you with the lash of his tongue or scare you into petting him by abusing you.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I am in my sixties and my wife is somewhat younger Three days after we were married she walked to town with me. When we reached the office I leaned over to kiss her and she drew back saying, "Not in public." About that time the preacher who married us walked up and when I told him what my wife had done he told her she should be ashamed of herself. I have decided that if there can be no kissing in public there can be none in private. Don't you think this is fair enough?

BRIDEGROOM.

ANSWER:

I think you are behaving like a spoiled child instead of like a man of 60. You should be proud of a wife who has such a sense of delicacy that she won't make a show of her affection before strangers. You had better apologize to her and do it quickly or she will suspect that her husband is in his second childhood.

Children's Theater Guild Meets Nov. 9

The Atlanta Children's Theater Guild, under the organization plan of Mrs. Enid Graham Johnston, will present its plays at the Atlanta Woman's Club theater where the organization meeting will be held on November 9. The season starting in November, gives a seven-month course in dramatics with one lesson a week preparatory to presentation of the members in stage and radio plays. This training and presentation at the Woman's Club theater and on the radio, accompanied by a ticket for a reserved seat to plays, is given a child on payment of the small membership fee. Membership is open to children between the ages of 5 and through 15 years.

A new feature of the second season will be the sale of associate membership tickets for a very small fee, and this ticket will entitled a child to a reserved seat for the season. The object of this feature is the awakening and development of an appreciation of the spoken drama in children who do not care to act.

A children's theater, producing children's plays through the use of child actors and actresses for children audiences, is the plan of the organization in spired by its slogan. Reservations may be made at a small cost for adults and children.

A box will be reserved for the following patrons: Mayor James L. Key, Judge John D. Humphries, Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Melton, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Wager, Dr. and Mrs. James E. Routh, Dr. and Mrs. Willis A. Sutton, Mrs. Harry G. Poole, Mrs. Max Land, Miss Mabelle Wall, Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Scott, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Osborn, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Treadwell, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Grabbe, Miss Cora-Paxton Stewart, Miss Mary Frances Cox, Mrs. C. Decker Tebo. For information call Hemlock 5650-J.

Frost and Mrs. Robert Flournoy are in charge of the event.

URGES SESSION

Key Asks Action on National Security Act.

Mayor Key yesterday advocated a special session of the Georgia legislature to enact measures to permit Georgians to participate in the new national security act, which has been approved by congress.

The assembly at its last session approved a constitutional amendment which would have enabled Georgians to benefit through enactment of the national social reform act, but Governor Talmadge vetoed it.

Key asserted he did not believe the Governor had the right to veto any constitutional measure and prevent it going to the people after it had been passed by the constitutional majorities necessary in both branches of the legislature.

He praised the move as sound, and as one from which Georgians should "benefit instead of being forced to pay their share of the national tax to be distributed to other more progressive states."

Mrs. Moreland Speer Is Appointed Special Gift Director for Stratford Hall

Mrs. Moreland Speer has been appointed director of special gifts for the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation, Inc., by Mrs. Walter D. Lamar, director for Georgia. The object of the memorial foundation which was organized in 1929, is to purchase, restore and preserve Stratford Hall, the ancestral home of the Lees, as a national shrine in perpetual memory of Robert E. Lee, Stratford Hall, built over 200 years ago by Thomas Lee, colonial governor of Virginia, is the birthplace of five patriots in the Revolutionary War, Richard Henry Lee, Francis Lightfoot Lee, both signers of the Declaration of Independence; of William Lee, Arthur Lee and Thomas Ludwell Lee. It was the home of "Light Horse Harry" Lee and the birthplace of his illustrious son, Robert E. Lee.

Georgia's apportionment of the total of $50,000, the sum to be raised, is $3,000. The money needed from the United Daughters of the Confederacy for the completion of this work is now in sight, except Georgia's allotment. Individual gifts in this district can be made through Mrs. Speer. All gifts of $100 or more will entitle the donor or honoree named by the donor to be enrolled in the memorial book, a handsomely bound vellum volume which is to be kept for inspection in Stratford Hall. The executive board of Georgia division, U. D. C., will honor their president, Mrs. Thomas W. Reed, by placing her name in the memorial book. Mrs. Speer, chairman of this feature, is receiving hearty cooperation from the board.

Miss Helen Smith Weds Mr. Bellhouse.

DEMOREST, Ga., Aug. 19.—An announcement of interest is the marriage of Miss Helen Cornelia Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Smith, of Atlanta, to Tom Wynyard Bellhouse Jr., of Alto, Ga., which was solemnized Saturday at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Flor, in Demorest, Ga. Dr. Paul W. Ellis, of Ocala, Fla., an uncle of the bride, read the impressive Episcopal marriage service.

Prior to the ceremony Mrs. Charles Neal sang "Still Wie Die Nacht" by Bohm, accompanied by her husband, and Miss Louise Ellis sang "Ich Liebe Dich" by Grieg, accompanied by Mrs. Clyde Wilson, of Sarasota, Fla., who also played the wedding music from "Lohengrin."

Mrs. Alfred G. Smith Jr., of Wauchula, Fla., only sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a gown of pink lace with matching accessories, and carried an arm bouquet of orchid dahlias. Miss Amelia Flor, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Her gown was of blue lace and her flowers were pink dahlias.

The bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage, and they were met at the altar by the bridegroom and his father, who acted as his son's best man. An attractive brunette, she wore a smart model of white crepe, with white accessories, and carried a white prayer-book. Her flowers were a corsage of sweetheart roses and sweet peas, and her only ornament was a gold bracelet of antique design, the gift of the bridegroom. Following the ceremony an informal reception was held.

Mrs. Bellhouse is a graduate of Emory University, and studied music at the Atlanta Conservatory, where she was a member of Mu Phi Epsilon, honorary musical sorority. Mr. Bellhouse received his education at the Georgia Military Acadamy and the University of Cincinnati, and is a member of the Triangle Club. He now holds a position with the Cotton Belt railroad, and the couple will make their home in Texarkana, Texas.

Live Wire Club Meets This Evening.

The Live Wire Club, organized by Dan Yarbrough, meets with Billy Foster this evening at 7:30 o'clock at his home on Campbell street. This club is composed of boys and girls between 13-15 years of age and meets weekly at the home of different members, who play games and sing and the mother of host furnishes refreshments for party. The membership is limited to 20 members and applicants are voted on as to ability to get along with the crowd. The standards are congeniality, dependability, honesty service. The group also meet for tennis, ball, movies, etc., and members must attend their Sunday school or church.

Honoring Miss Greene.

Miss Jeanne Fuller and Miss Ethelynde Greene entertained at a dance and prom party at the Venetian Club last Thursday in honor of Miss Fonlee Greene, visiting here from Chattanooga, Tenn.

Invited were Misses Fonlee Greene, Ethelynde Greene, Connie Van Nosttrand, Mary Jane Baker, Belle Hale, Frances White, Helen Boone, Nelle Broadnax, Frances Ansley, Jeannette Stanton, Virginia Gleason, Miriam Hubbard, Bobbie Dell Stockton, Miriam Greene, Betty Lester, Jeanne Fuller and Earl Epperson, Joe Morrison, Bill McWaters, Joe Jones, Bobby Byran, Curtis Cooper, Charles Wolff, James Fisher, Charles Bullock, Byron Couch, Joe Hendesey, Andy King, Ben Perry, John Rogers, George Hines and Bobby Moore.

Steiner Clinic Auxiliary Meets on Wednesday.

An important meeting of the Steiner Clinic Auxiliary will be held Wednesday at 10:30 o'clock in the library of the clinic. Mrs. Claude C. Smith, president of the auxiliary, announces that there is much important business to come before the meeting and urges all who are interested to attend.

A great amount of work has been accomplished during the past mouth, some of which has received favorable attention throughout the south. Mr. and Mrs. James Bellflower, who have worked so hard and so well in the garden, have taken on further work. They have superintended the transforming of one of the out buildings into an attractive sewing room, which will add to the convenience of the very efficient sewing committee. For months the Pioneer Women have worked every Thursday at the sewing and have not missed one week. They have made several hundred garments.

The latest project of the auxiliary is to raise the money to transform the shop behind Steiner clinic into a colored ward. It is very necessary since there is no place in the clinic and colored patients have to be taken back and forth across the street for treatment. The ward will accommodate 20 beds, and plans will be pushed for its completion. The August meeting is the one at which the nominating committee is elected, which is very important, and Mrs. Smith hopes that members will attend.

Agnes Scott Club.

The social meeting of the Atlanta Agnes Scott Club will be held today at the home of Mrs. Charles J. Currie on Wesley avenue. Acting as co-hostesses for the occasion will be Mrs. Donald Hastings, chairman, and Mesdames Currie, Dan Sage, Charles Loridans, W. W. Anderson, Stillwell Robinson, Foote Browley, Fonville McWhorter and Hinton Longino. Mrs. Ruth Hinman Carter will speak on new books.

By FRANK MacMILLEN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The stock market today was rocked back on its heels under a shower of profit-taking blows and nervous selling.

Stout resistance of a few special groups was unable to stem the downward course, which ran 1 to 3 points or so in many pivotal issues. Turnover increased sharply in late trading when stocks were at their weakest, and the ticker tape fell several minutes behind dealings on the floor of the exchange.

The day's decline in the Associated Press average of 60 stocks, off 1.1 points at 42.0, was the largest for a single session since March 5. Rails and utilities were the most freely offered, but industrials also gave ground readily. Volume in the stock exchange was 2,062,560 shares.

Bonds gave a steadier performance than equities. Rails and utilities, especially the second-grade classifications, sold down moderately, but most losses were fractional. United States government obligations moved narrowly in either direction.

Wheat Declines.

Commodities added to the general raggedness of the market picture, but were not under the same vigorous pressure as were stocks.

Copper Advances.

Aircraft shares were taken at rising prices as nervousness over the European political crisis turned the thoughts of traders to the so-called "war babies." An advance of 1-2 cent in the domestic price of copper to 8 1-2 cents, to the best level since the collapse of 9-cent "Blue Eagle" price about two months ago, kept the non-ferrous metal shares resistant to the market trend. Zinc prices also were advanced during the day.

DuPont was up around 2 points for a time and closed 1 1-2 lower at 111, following the action of directors in raising the regular quarterly dividend rate on the common stock to 90 cents from 65 cents, and declaring an extra of 35 cents.

Some of the shares which moved against the trend to register small gains or hold about steady included American Smelting at 42 1-2. Anaconda at 18 3-8, Kennecott at 21 7-8, Boeing at 11 3-8, United Aircraft at 17 5-8, Douglas at 29 5-8, Phelps-Dodge at 20 1-4, Curtiss Wright at 7 3-4, Youngstown Sheet & Tube at 26 3-4, Colorado Fuel & Iron at 2 1-2 and United States Pipe at 19 5-8.

Union Pacific was off 4 points at 99 1-2, while others down 2 points or a little more included Allied Chemical at 162 1-8, Santa Fe at 51 1-2, Chrysler at 58 5-8 and Montgomery Ward at 34. Losses of around 1 to 2 points occurred in American Telephone at 140. Baltimore & Ohio at 15 3-4. Consolidated Gas at 32, General Electric at 30 5-8, Standard Oil of N. J. at 46. Southern Pacific at 19 5-8 and a number of others.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—It's our opinion that whether short or extended as to time, and further recession will be moderate in term of prices.

COURTS & CO.—While the selling which came into the market late Monday may carry prices somewhat lower, we do not anticipate any change in the longer pull upward trend.

DOBBS & CO.—There was not much to stimulate new trade and the market proved largely a local affair with professional sentiment bearish.

BEER & CO.—We do not view Monday's decline as being serious enough to warrant the disturbing of commitments, nor do we anticipate any extended weakness at the present time.

COTTON OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—The immediate future of the market is dependent upon the loan announcement with most authorities expecting 12-cent.

COURTS & CO.—Crop has started deterioration and we continue bullish, but do not look for any important price movement until Washington clears up the loan question.

BEER & CO.—We continue to advise a trading position in the market pending announcement of the loan policy.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO. TO DOBBS & CO.—We can hardly expect anything like a normal market until nervousness over the loan situation has subsided or there has been definite announcement of loan policies. October Liverpool due 6.06.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—We look for a falling off in receipts of winter wheat and with any lessened pressure of hedging would look for more confident and broader buying. Prices are off about 10 cents from the recent high which should discount the crop movement substantially.

COURTS & CO.—We believe the decline in wheat of approximately 10 cents from the recent top had about discounted the heavy movement of wheat and that accumulation will be in order.

DOBBS & CO.—A lower opening in wheat would seem likely today.

BEER & CO.—Monday's market had to take to two-way hedges. The buying power in wheat is small and market affected by hedging sales, more than normally.

Earninggs.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—American Locomotive Company and subsidiaries report for the six months ended June, net loss of $772,-225 after depreciation, federal capital stock taxes, etc., compared with net loss of $1,-288,966 in the first half of 1934.

American Safety Razor Corporation and subsidiaries for the six months ended June 30 had net profit of $532,866, equal to $3.04 a share of capital stock against $427,-892 or $2.43 a share in the corresponding period last year.

DU PONT FIRM TO PAY INCREASED DIVIDEND

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 19.—(AP)—The E. I. du Pont De Nemours & Company declared today an extra dividend of 35 cents on the common stock and increased the regular quarterly dividend on the common to 90 cents from the previous rate of 65 cents.

Both dividends are payable September 14 to stockholders of record August 28.

COPPER PRICE HIKED HALF CENT PER POUND

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Sales of copper have been made in the domestic markets at 8 1-2 cents a pound, it was learned today, an advance of 1-2 cent over the price prevailing the past several months.

PROFIT SELLING SENDS ISSUES ON CURB LOWER

Transfers Approximate 515,000 Shares Compared With 484,000 Last Friday.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The curb market staggered under an extra-heavy load of profit-taking today, but despite particular pressure in the utility list, selling was orderly. Transfers approximated 515,000 shares compared with 484,000 last Friday.

Electric Bond & Share yielded 2 3-4 points to 17 1-4, while Aluminum Co. of America was off as much. Other losers of large fractions to more than a point included American Gas & Electric, Niagara Hudson Power, Hiram Walker, International Petroleum, Distillers Corp-Seagrams, American Cyanamid "B," American Superpower, Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Sunshine Mining.

Montgomery Ward "A" and Sherwin-Williams represented isolated firm spots, both finishing 1 1-2 points net higher.

By G. A. PHILLIPS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Corporate bonds were unsettled by weakness in other domestic financial markets today and generally lower prices were posted in the principal divisions.

United States government bonds, however, held remarkably steady up to within 15 minutes of the close when a rush of selling orders in the 2 7-8 per cent Treasury bonds carried that issue down 2-32ds to 100.23, and most of the indirect obligations yielded up to 3-32ds. Several of the shorter term Treasury issues ended small fractions net higher.

One of the principal sources of satisfaction available to those working for higher prices was the comparatively small volume of bonds brought out on the decline. Transfers for the day were $10,386,000, par value, compared with $12,373,000 last Friday when the market was on the mend. The turnover in governments accounted for about $1,550,000 of this amount.

The Associated Press average of 20 rail bonds declined .3 of a point to 82.8 and the average of 10 utilities dipped as much to 98.3. The averages for other groups were unchanged.

Outstanding soft spots were rather frequent among carrier and utility issues, including Baltimore & Ohio 4 1-2s, off 2 points at 58 1-4; Erie 5s, off 1 1-2 at 68 1-4; Nickel Plate 4 1-2s, off 2 1-2 at 61 1-4; Portland General Electric 4 1-2s, off 1 1-4 at 78 3-4; Studebaker 6s, off 1 at 51 1-2, and Utility Power & Light 5s, off 1-2 at 58.

A drop of 2 3-8 points to 106 1-4 in American Water Works 6s was an outstanding exception in high priced bonds, most of which were able to break even and in a few instances, such as American Rolling Mill 4 1-4s and Union Pacific 4 1-2s, small advances were recorded.

New York City Traction bonds came back into favor after several days' rest and gains of 1-2 to more than a point were general among Interboro obligations. Other firm spots included General Cable 5 1-2s, up 2 1-4 points at 94 7-8, and Interlaken Iron 5s, up 1 1-2 at 73 12.

German government 5 1-2s and Cuban Public Works 5 1-2s were prominent foreign bonds selling higher, while Italian issues nose-dived again. Milan 6 1-2s and Rome 6 1-2s were 2 to 3 points lower and the government 7s yielded 2 7-8 to 62 1-4.

By FRANKLIN MULLIN.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Nervous wheat price fluctuations today characterized a market in which a watchful waiting attitude among traders predominated. Closing prices were near the low point of the day with net losses of about a cent a bushel.

Business was light and the market proved to be easily influenced. There was little in the trade situation to stimulate buying. An extremely heavy primary movement and a liberal increase of more than 6,000,000 bushels in the domestic visible supply of wheat were bearish factors.

Wheat closed 1-2 to 1 cent below Saturday's finish, December 87 5-8 to 3-4, and corn was 5-8 to 1 3-8 off, December 55 to 55 1-8. Oats gained 1-4 to 5-8, Rye was 1-4 off and barley unchanged to 1-2 down.

Liverpool wheat's firmness, ignoring the late 2 cents drop in values here Saturday, was reflected momentarily in the higher opening at Chicago, but immediately thereafter buying dwindled. The firm close at Liverpool was followed by a rally here around noon, prices gaining more than a cent at times.

Following announcement of the supply figures, however, pressure increased and the market eased to its close with prices 10 to 17 cents below the recent highs of the season.

The increase in the visible supply was 6,127,000 bushels, bringing the total to 49,244,000, compared with 114,752,000 last year. Primary receipts of wheat today were 2,368,000 bushels against 989,000 a year ago.

Cables said the Liverpool market was influenced by insufficient rains in Argentina, bullish weekly statistics and the tense political situation abroad.

Hedging pressure was in evidence in the Chicago market throughout the day and at times wheat apparently acted in sympathy with corn, which was heavy throughout. Ten, too, bears pointed out that the possibility of continued importation of Canadian wheat acted somewhat as a ceiling on the market.

Selling of new crop corn deliveries was encouraged by reports of showery conditions believed to have given relief at least temporarily to grain suffering from hot, dry weather.

Lard broke the full 50 cents limit permitted for one day. Profit-taking was in evidence.

Sugar and Coffee.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Raw sugar was firm and unchanged today. Refiners were indifferent but holders of remaining quotas were not inclined to offer and there was nothing available in near-by positions below 3.30, as against the last spot price of 3.18. The only sale reported was 20,000 bags of Puerto Ricos for September shipment at 3.30.

In futures a sharp puturn occurred in the September No. 1 delivery which sold at 2.58, on further covering as a result of the report from Washington indicating that less than 13,000 tons remained of the Cuban quota for the United States. Final prices were the best at from 3 to 5 points higher in the No. 3 contract and 3 to 10 higher in the No. 1.

The adjustment in the AAA quota figures announced over the week-end were about in line with expectations, and had little effect. Sales 12,600 tons in the No. 3 and 1,550 in the No. 1.

The range follows:

	High	Low	Last
September	2.43	2.40	2.42b

Market Outlook

By MAX BUCKINGHAM.

(Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(UP)—Tremendous selling, which brought the second largest trading hour this year, frightened Wall Street tonight as congress worked on bills which stock market traders believe are economically unsound.

Passage of the Guffey coal bill by the house caused final hour selling that brought losses to four points as 720,000 shares reeled out. Tickers were four minutes behind the market and for the first time in months quotations were abbreviated. The Dow-Jones industrial average made the widest break since May 28 and the utility and railroad averages made the widest breaks of the year. Trading for the five hours totaled 2,070,000 shares.

"MUST BILLS" VOTE SEEN

The Guffey bill itself was not so important to traders. But they felt the fact that the administration could rally support, when the bill was endangered, proved that the complete list of "must" bills will go through as the administration desires.

These bills include:

"Soak-the-rich" tax legislation which may retard the current business recovery. The Chamber of Commerce of the state of New York called its first August meeting in 25 years, fearing the nation is "headed towards a major crisis" unless government spending is ended.

The Wheeler-Rayburn bill to regulate—and possibly eliminate—holding companies is on the must calendar and in addition there is a chance that the death clause, killed twice in the house, will be restored.

LABOR MEASURE

Congress, too, is discussing the Walsh labor bill which Clinton L. Bardo, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, told the house judiciary committee would bring chaos to industry.

Thus when congress started whipping through these bills—driving to finish the session this week—traders grew wary about their holdings and sold stocks in every classification. Industrials, which had been strong under lead of steel shares, suffered along with the sinking rails and utilities. Heaviest losses came in the latter two classifications.

And there was question whether the selling drive had finished. Professionals have been awaiting a signal to get out of the market with the profits they have piled up since March.

Trade reports meant little. American Iron & Steel Institute reported production at 48.8 per cent of capacity, up 0.7 points and the highest rate since the week of February 18. Copper prices advanced to 8 1-2 cents, the best level since collapse of the NRA and reflecting buying which may trace to improvement in building.

STEWARDS WILL HEAR JUDGE LEON M'CORD

Judge Leon McCord, of Montgomery, Ala., will be the principal speaker at the quarterly meeting of the Atlanta Methodist Stewards' Association, which will be held at St. Mark's church in October, it was announced yesterday.

Judge McCord is a nephew of Joseph A. McCord, president of the association. He served for 18 years on the circuit court of Montgomery, and is teacher of the largest Bible class in the south.

Exact date of the meeting has not been set. About 500 stewards are expected at the meeting, where new officers of the association will be elected, it was said. The association includes 55 Methodist churches in this area.

U. S. TO PROBE CRASH OF TOWNSEND PLANE

PITTSBURG, Cal., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Possibility of sabotage in the crash her yesterday of an airplane bearing Dr. F. E. Townsend, pension plan author, was seen today in a report to Sheriff John A. Miller.

C. A. Ricks, president of the local Townsend Club, told Sheriff Miller a "Mrs. Baker," president of an Oakland branch unit of the organization, informed him she saw a stranger enter the cabin of the plane while Dr. Townsend was speaking. The man. Mrs. Baker said, left hurriedly a few minutes later.

The Department of Commerce removed the wreckage to Oakland today for inspection.

By FRED G. WILLIAMS.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The cotton market was becalmed today, waiting definite word from Washington on the loan to start it in one direction or the other.

Price movements in nearly all cases were confined to narrow proportions and at the close the market was just about where it began, from 3 to 4 points below Saturday's final prices.

A lower opening brought mild recessions in active options as light offerings found a scarcity of buyers, but prices worked up to the previous close during the morning and then held in a narrow range until the end.

The opinion appeared to be fairly general that a loan announcement might appear today, but traders showed no inclination to bid cotton up to the 12-cent level, or to offer it at current prices.

October dipped to 11.25 at the start of trading, recovering to 11.40 and then sold off to close at the same figure as last Saturday, 11.34. January lost 3 points to 11.15, March was down 4 points at 11.10 and December was unchanged at 11.20.

Latest advices from Washington expressed widely divergent views on the course the government would take. Southern senators predicted that a loan would be announced tonight.

Other market factors were disregarded, as has been the case for the past week or more. Weather reports were a little more bullish today, stressing the fact that rains were needed in portions of Oklahoma, while east of the Mississippi some areas were said to be getting too much rain.

Spot markets were said to be getting more demand for cotton for both prompt and future shipments. Goods markets were holding their own.

Liverpool cabled the opinion that there would be no loan on the American crop, but a watchful, waiting policy was being maintained.

Port receipts 18,715; week 30,907; season 166,724; last season 141,410. Exports 15,263; week 20,620; season 124,021; last season 164,671. Port stocks 1,080,758. Stocks on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston were 23,423; last year 35,621. Spot sales at southern markets were 8,064; last year 12,408.

NEW YORK FUTURES IRREGULAR AT CLOSE

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Continued nervousness over the question of government crop loans, was reflected in irregular fluctuations in cotton today. The market closed barely steady net 2 points higher to 4 lower.

The market was under considerable pressure at the start, relatively easy Liverpool cables being followed by some foreign selling, hedging and liquidation by recent buyers.

After showing net losses of 13 to 16 points prices rallied with near months relatively firm. The recovery carried the market 13 to 21 points up from the lowest of the day, but closing quotations were a shade off from the best on most positions.

Exports today 15,363 making 127,568 so far this season. Port receipts 18,815. United States port stocks 1,081,133.

George Stevens Taylor, bridegroom at Kinston, N. C., was cranking up his car which was gaily bedecked with signs of "Just Married," when he broke his arm and delayed his honeymoon.

PAUL W. DUFFEE DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Prominent Businessman Passes After Career of Success Here.

Paul W. Duffee, widely known Atlanta businessman and president of the Duffee-Freeman Furniture Company, died yesterday morning at a private hospital after a short illness. He was 50 years old and had been associated with the furniture business here for 20 years.

A native of Campbell county, Mr. Duffee, who lived at the Atlanta Athletic Club, started with the old Keely Company and later became associated with Charles S. Robinson. In 1919 he joined the firm of Mather brothers as general manager and opened their first store here.

In 1922 he formed a partnership with George T. Freeman, the firm being known as the Duffee-Freeman Company, and became president of this organization. He served in that capacity until his death.

In addition to his business affiliations, Mr. Duffee was active in club and fraternal organizations. He is a member of the Atlanta Athletic Club, the Yaarab Temple and the Trinity Methodist church.

Surviving are his wife; a stepson, Baxter Raines; a sister, Mrs. George C. Looney, and two brothers, Grady Duffee, of Atlanta, and Ernest Duffee, of Fayetteville.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Spring Hill chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son and burial will be in West View cemetery.

BATTLE HILL DRIVE WILL OPEN TONIGHT

Pilot Club Dinner Will Hear Speeches by Sutton, Wells, Others.

Campaign to raise $10,000 to purchase a sound-picture machine and to add a white children's ward at Battle Hill Sanitorium will be launched by the Atlanta Pilot Club at 7 o'clock tonight in the Ansley hotel, it was announced yesterday.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of city schools; Jere A. Wells, superintendent of county schools; Dr. C. W. Childs, fifth ward councilman and chairman of the Battle Hill committee, and Dr. J. C. Burch, assistant superintendent of the sanitorium, will be the principal speakers, following a dinner.

Miss Juliet Dowling, civic chairman of the club, will preside, and the Rev. Robert Burns, of the Peachtree Christian church, will give the invocation. Several other members of the club also will speak, it was announced.

Construction of a children's ward is expected to begin soon as a part of the local PWA program, it was said. Total cost will be approximately $95,000, with the city furnishing about $10,000.

AMATEUR WINNER

Atlanta Girl Takes First Place on Program.

First place in Ray Perkins' hour for amateurs Sunday evening over the Columbia network went to Ruth Lockhart, 17-year-old Atlanta blues singer. Friends here heard her over station WGST.

Singing "What's the Reason?" she stepped right into a week's engagement at the French Casino in New York. She also will sing daily at a New York hotel, and soon will be given an audition by NBC, it was said.

Miss Lockhart has been singing with Perry Bechtel's orchestra, and often has appeared on radio programs here. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar L. Lockhart, of 685 Rosalie street, S. E. In June she graduated from Girls' High school. Ruth never has had a lesson in singing, according to her sister.

DAVISON'S TO DISPLAY AGNES SCOTT FASHIONS

Fashions for Agnes Scott will be the major subject at Davison's today. The College Shop is spotlighting a group of "old girls" from Agnes Scott, who know all about the clothes needed and where and how to wear them. They'll be modeling all day, all over the store, and from 12 to 2 o'clock in the restaurant. The Agnes Scott Fashion Board is composed of Misses Laura Whitner, Mary Garland, Lucile Dennison, Louise MacIntyre, Mary Collier, Dorothea Blackshear, Eloisa Alexander, Betty Roache, Mary Hutchinson, Sarah Brosnau.

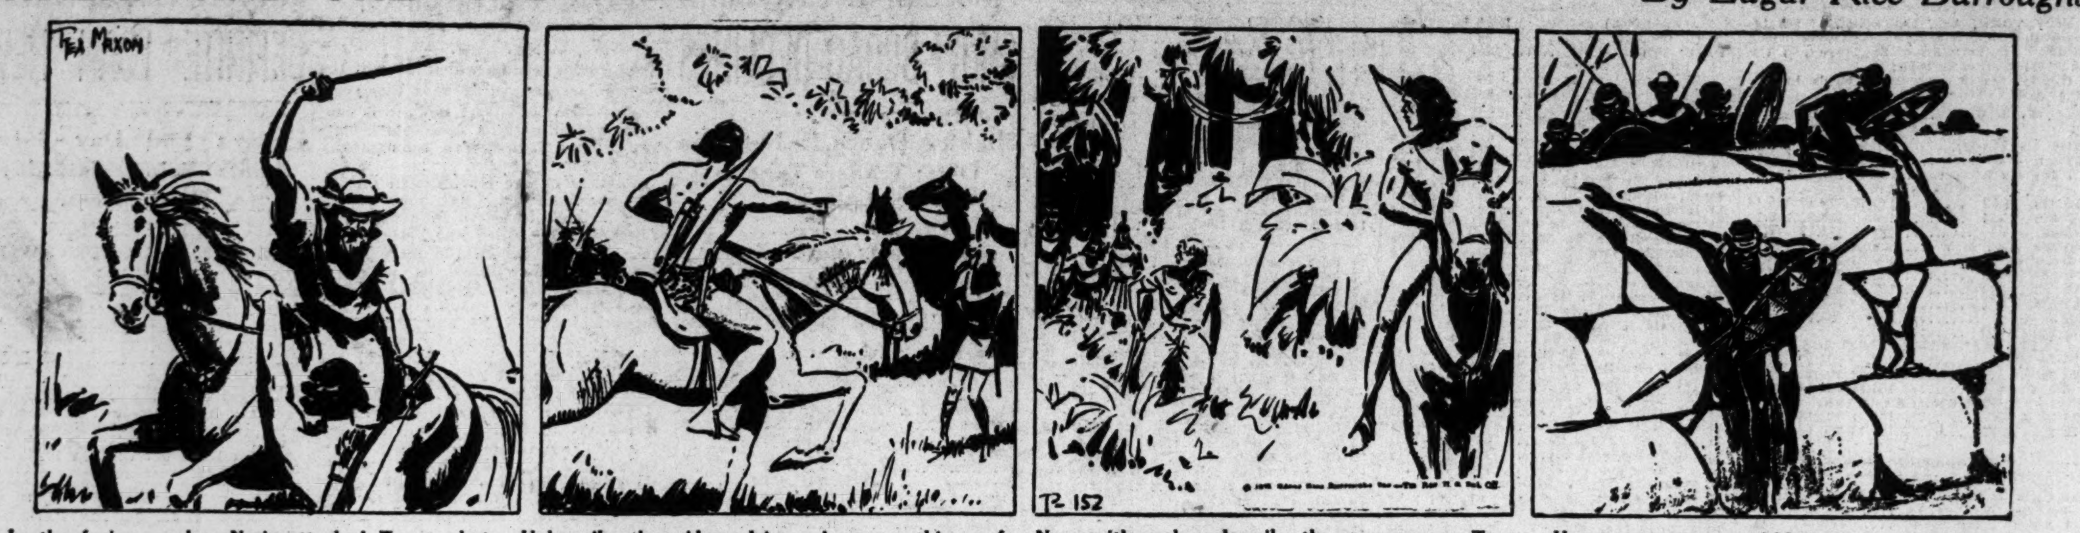
TARZAN AND THE FIRE GODS No. 152

By Edgar Rice Burroughs



In the furious melee, Nazir attacked Tarzan, but the ape-man conquered the brutal Arab and mounted his spirited charger. From this vantage point he saw the black army rushing to attack him. By now, fortunately, his Alexandrians had destroyed the mounted fighters.

Unhappily the Alexandrians knew nothing of horsemanship, so the ape-man ordered the horses freed. The frightened steeds galloped away northward while Tarzan commanded his men to re-form their phalanx to engage the black army, which far outnumbered his forces.

Now, with a pleased smile, the ape-man saw Tommy Welsh emerge from the forest at the head of his second division. By a rapid flank movement, he and Tommy could catch the foe between them. But suddenly wild shouts arose behind him. Tarzan turned quickly.

He saw a new wave of black warriors flowing over the rampart of the enemy fort. Boris Garetto, in his safe refuge, was hurling his reserves into the fray. Now an army of two thousand savages was pitted against Tarzan's meager five hundred Alexandrians!

Mr. McCollum
"Listen, Folks"

YOU that have Financial Worries:

My new loan plan enables me to finance families or individuals at an unusually low cost, for my interest rates have been greatly reduced. I can now loan any amount you need. So let's quit worrying. At least, come in and let me show how easy it is to obtain the money you need and how easy it is to pay it back. I am located at my new quarters, 12 Pryor St., S. W., just off Edgewood. LIE DETECTOR USED AGAINST CLAIMANT

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 19.—(AP)—A lie detector was used as a mechanical alienist in a federal compensation case here today and Dr. Orlando F. Scott, Chicago criminologist, testified it showed the compensation claimant lied.

John Mowak, a stevedore, claims he was totally and permanently disabled when sacks of sugar fell on him while he was helping unload cargo on the Buffalo waterfront two years ago.

DAILY SHORT STORY

DREAM COME TRUE

This Was the Meeting Martha Had Hoped for During the Long Months of Loneliness.

BY G. C. COLER.

Martha was surprised to see Andy standing on the corner, and it was raining, too. When she came up to him he looked altogether dejected, though he tried to look as though he were happy. Tried to look happy for her.

"What's the matter?" Martha asked, because she knew it wasn't natural. Andy hadn't waited for her at that place for over a year. And when she chanced to meet him, because she purposely walked by his house, he didn't look happy or try to seem so. In fact, his seeing her appeared to make him rather unhappy for some reason or other.

"Whazzat?" Andy asked as he valiantly tried to smile.

"Oh, I just thought something was the matter and—"

"No, nothin' is the matter. Why should there be, huh?" Andy said and he did smile—a sort of worn smile. "I just thought I'd walk you home. I just thought I would if you don't mind."

"I don't mind," Martha said, and she knew Andy was not telling the truth. She knew something was bothering him.

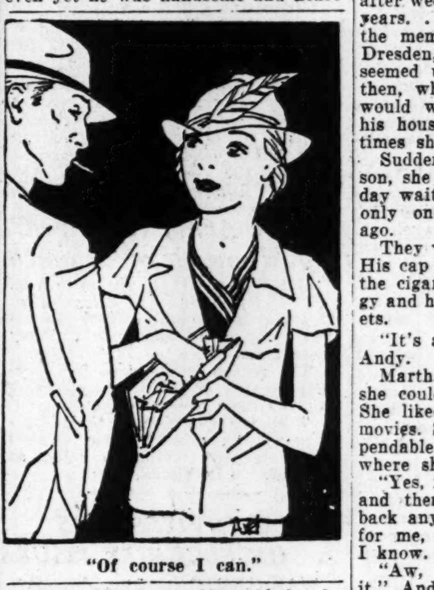
Even bothered, even needing a shave and with his suit needing a press—even yet he was handsome and heartbreaking. Martha could not help, despite all her trying, that flutter of bewildering excitement from coming upon her.



"Of course I can."

A long time before, two and a half years ago, or maybe three, Martha had met Andy at a dance and that night Andy had kissed her.

It had been two and a half years ago, or maybe three, but Martha had never forgotten that kiss. It had been part of her life ever since. He had only given her one present, a bit of Dresden, a figure of a boy with blue coat and red trousers. It stood on her dressing table like a kind of unfading flower.

But after Andy had taken her out three or four times he didn't call her up any more; he didn't come to see her. Foolishly, she had called him—and it had been terrible; he actually laughed. She learned that he hung out in a poolroom. She didn't think he could possibly be that kind of fellow but she had gone four blocks farther on her way home from work one night and she saw him in there.

Martha couldn't help it; she waited in a doorway until he came out. She tried to walk up to him nonchalantly, but she knew she was blushing, and she knew her lips were trembling.

"Listen, sister," Andy had said through his teeth while a cigaret hung from his lips, "you're just making a sap out of yourself. For your own good, I'm tellin' ya, forget all about me."

She had said a few miserable words. Andy had ever too politely tipped his hat, and then had walked away. She was left standing there. . . . When she got home she made up a story for being so late to her mother and father.

Time passed, day after day, week after week . . . and months and even years. . . . There was nothing but the memory of the kiss, a piece of Dresden, and pain that sometimes seemed unbearable. . . . Now and then, when no one was looking, she would walk by the poolroom, or by his house, hoping to see him. Sometimes she did see him.

Suddenly now, for no apparent reason, she had found him on this rainy day waiting for her as he had waited only once or twice before so long ago.

They walked along now in the rain. His cap was at an angle on his head, the cigaret between his lips was soggy and his hands were dug in his pockets.

"It's an awful day, ain't it?" said Andy.

Martha had studied piano once and she could still play decently enough. She liked good books and the better movies. She was one of the most dependable stenographers in the office where she worked.

"Yes, it is a bad day," said Martha and then she couldn't hold herself back any longer. "Why did you wait for me, Andy? There is something, I know. What is the matter?"

"Aw, nothin'. Let's forget about it," Andy returned.

"Well, if you waited for me in the rain, there must be something important. I know you didn't just want to see me."

"Sure, I just wanted to see you. What makes ya think I didn't? I know I ain't treated you right, maybe, but I know you're a swell girl. I really like ya, Martha."

Even though she knew all along there was something he wanted, she couldn't help the surge of excitement from passing through her.

"But you do want something, don't you?" she asked.

"Well, I was going to ask you a favor. Gee, you don't even give me a chance to get started. Anyway, here goes. I need five bucks. I just can't get a break. I've been out of a job fer so long I don't know what work is. I think I got something now that will pan out. If you think you can let me have the fiver—" Andy looked at Martha.

"Of course, I can," Martha said quickly and opened her purse. She fished out five single dollar bills for him.

"You are a real sport, Martha. You're O. K. I could go fer a girl like you."

They were standing in her doorway now. As Martha saw Andy counting the money she was filled with repulsion. This was the man she thought she loved, this was the man she had dreamt about, this . . .

Andy stuck the money in his pocket and suddenly he bent over and kissed her. Then, smiling, he turned to go.

"Don't go!" Martha caught his arm. "Don't go," she repeated. "If you ever need more money let me know. Oh, Andy—I'm working. Andy, I just thought. Why not let us get married. I'm working and that will be enough for us until you get a job. I'm making $30 a week."

Andy looked at Martha. He rubbed his nose, obviously carefully considering what she had said.

"Say, that might be an idea," Andy remarked and, bending over, gave Martha another kiss.

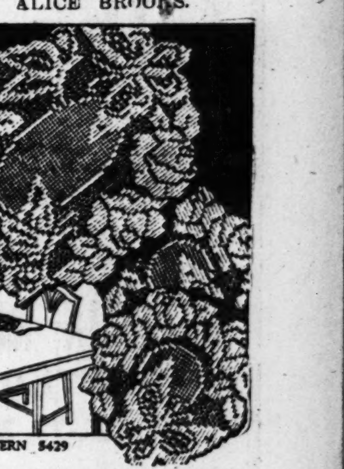
Household Arts

BY ALICE BROOKS.



PATTERN 5429

FILET CROCHET MAKES HANDSOME ACCESSORIES.

A handsome table centerpiece—a choice luncheon set—a striking buffet set—all of these and other accessories, too, are in your reach in this filet crochet design. The richness of the design will make the work fascinating as well as assure you of a piece of needlework that will be one of your proud possessions. The roses and butterflies are effectively set off by the lace stitch. The round doilies have many uses; one alone would make an acceptable gift.

In pattern 5429 you will find complete instructions and charts for making the doilies shown; an illustration of them and of the stitches needed; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Household Arts Dept., The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

DR. EPHRIAM MORGAN, CONFEDERATE VET, DIES

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Dr. Ephriam Weston Morgan, 88, a Confederate veteran and a practicing physician in Memphis for many years, died yesterday after a prolonged illness. A native of Columbus, Miss., he later resided at Water Valley, Miss., before moving to Memphis.

ANOTHER DELAY SEEN OVER TEXTILE REPORT

Chairman of Cabinet Subcommittee Says Findings Expected This Week.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Doubt developed today that a special cabinet committee studying problems of the textile industry would present its long-awaited report to President Roosevelt tomorrow when it became known revisions were being made.

However, John Dickinson, chairman of a cabinet textile subcommittee, who has been meeting with the cabinet group, said if the report were not submitted tomorrow, as anticipated last week, it probably will go to the chief executive sometime later this week.

The nature of the revisions were not disclosed, but it was understood they related to the committee's recommendations.

While uncertainty surrounded the cabinet report, the cotton situation stirred activity in another quarter as Senator George, democrat, Georgia, said he would seek action tomorrow on a resolution introduced by him calling for presidential appointment of two cotton investigative committees.

The committees would study best ways to dispose of this year's anticipated 10,000,000-bale cotton crop and new uses for lint.

They would be required to report to congress before next January 3.

After a White House visit, Governor James M. Curley, of Massachusetts, expressed belief the cabinet report would be released soon.

Possible further delay in submission of the report recalled republican charges among the congressional textile bloc that it was being held up pending adjournment of congress.

The committee, which held hearings earlier in the summer, is studying the effect of the processing tax, north-south wage differentials, exports and imports on the distressed industry.

Recommendations, it has been revealed, will touch upon these problems.

When the report or parts of it will be made public after it reaches the White House remained problematical. The committee has taken the attitude that any publicity relative to it naturally must come from the President, who ordered the study of the industry's problems.

The committee is composed of Secretary Roper of commerce, as chairman, and Secretaries Hull of state, Perkins of labor, and Wallace of agriculture.

The committee's recommendations will be based upon a fact-finding report submitted to it by the subcommittee. This report, more than 200 pages in length, was prepared from evidence submitted by representatives of the industry at the hearings before the cabinet group.

The fact-finding report is not expected to be made public.

Marie Laval Weds Chambrun, Becomes Citizen of United States

Groom, a Nephew of Late Speaker Nicholas Longworth, Holds Right of Franchise Both in His Native France and in America.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Mlle. Marie Laval, daughter of the premier, was married to Count Rene Adelbert De Chambrun in a civil ceremony today, and by that action became a citizen of the United States.

Count De Chambrun, a nephew of the late Speaker Nicholas Longworth, holds not only French but American citizenship under an old United States law which confers that honor upon all descendants of General LaFayette, of whom he is one.

Under the French law, a wife follows her husband's citizenship so that, consequently, both now are citizens of two countries.

Premier Laval was smiling as he came to the city hall, although he had just left his office where the Franco-British-Italian negotiations for peace in Ethiopia had broken up. He and Madame Laval brought the bride to the hall in a closed automobile. Count De Chambrun arrived in a taxi. He was dressed in a blue serge suit. His bride wore a bottle-green velvet dress with a matching toque trimmed with a brilliant feather.

The bride and groom answered the legal phrases read by the mayor, who wore the sash and gleaming metal chains of his office. A religious ceremony will be conducted tomorrow.

Among the guests were Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth. The two families of the 28-year-old bridegroom and the 23-year-old bride, the witnesses and a few of their closest friends afterward went to a wedding luncheon in the premier's apartment in the foreign office.

Hailed throughout France as a love match, the marriage today followed a long friendship between Mlle. Laval and Count Chambrun. A comely brunette, the bride had been wooed by many young Frenchmen, all of whom she had previously refused because she suspected their attentions were inspired partly by political ambitions.

Count Chambrun, a member of the New York and Paris bars, is just starting his law practice in the French capital. His mother is the former Clara Longworth, of Cincinnati, and his father won distinction as commander of colonial troops in North Africa prior to his retirement a year ago.

Mlle. Laval, familiarly called "Josette," has interested herself in her father's officoal affairs, often accompanying him on diplomatic journeys as his secretary. She visited the United States in 1931 when the premier conferred with former President Hoover.

The French federation for large families expressed the hope the marriage would result in many children when its members adopted a resolution to that effect.

Entire Army Is "Fired" By Monarch of Monaco

MONTE CARLO, Monaco, Aug. 19.—(UP)—Prince Louis, ruler of this tiny principality, fired his entire army of 76 men today. They were given three months' notice.

The reason is the need for economy because of diminished gambling returns from the casino.

With the abolition of the picturesque military body, some officers were reported trying to enlist as generals in Ethiopia.

R. F. C. INVITES BIDS ON SECURITY ISSUES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation today called for bids August 29 on 56 security issues from 28 towns and cities in 20 states.

The securities have a face value of $15,208,500 and include 27 issues of New York city bonds aggregating $6,431,000.

The bond issues were given to the Public Works Administration to secure loans made to the municipalities and were sold by PWA to the Reconstruction Corporation.

The bonds bearing 4 per cent interest include:

One hundred sixty thousand dollars Augusta sub-district, Greenville county, South Carolina, water and sewer; $131,000 Greenwood, S. C., water works; and $800,000 Arlington county, Virginia, sewer bonds.

WPA MAY 'BREAK' NAVY YARD STRIKE

Workers Will Replace Men Who Walked Out Out 2 Weeks Ago.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Attorney-General Charles J. Margiotti, of Pennsylvania, expressed the opinion today that the 1915 statute forbidding the State Employment Bureau to supply workers to a job where a strike is in progress does not apply in the case of the Philadelphia navy yard.

As a result, Franklin G. Connor, head of the federal-state employment service in Philadelphia, said he would immediately begin supplying the navy yard with WPA workers at the rate of about 100 a day until 2,500 are employed there. There are 360 at work now on a general rehabilitation project at the yard.

The strike was called about two weeks ago and yard officials said it was not effective.

The 1915 law, in the attorney-general's opinion, "could not be made to apply in the case of a sovereign state."

NAVY MORALE HIT

Admiral Sims Says Command 'Incompetent.'

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Charges that naval morale was "continuously declining," and high ranking officers in the fleet and Navy Department have been "notoriously inefficient" were made today by Rear Admiral William A. Sims in the Atlantic Monthly.

This condition, he asserted, resulted from the present system of promotion under which "injustice" was "inevitable."

Declaring "a fleet that is not ready for war is of no use, and one that is under a commander known to the whole service as incompetent is a positive danger, the wartime commander asserted "It is enough to make one's hair stand on end to contemplate the results of an unexpected outbreak of war at a time when the fleet and the Navy Department happened to be in the hands of officers who lacked the essential confidence of the service."

The remedy, he sugested, lay in placing the issue of promotions before competent authorities for study, criticism and constructive proposals, with, if a revision was indicated, congressional action to follow.

AIR "SEDAN" READY

"Flivver Plane" To Be Built by Fairchild Corp.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(UP)—The "sedan" of the air was announced by Fairchild Aircraft Corporation today following its recent delivery of a government-sponsored "flivver plane."

The "sedan" follows streamlined effects of automobiles and its interior closely resembles that to which people have become accustomed in modern cars. The divan type seats, accommodating two in front and three in the rear, replace the customary single chairs.

It is the flying counterpart of an automobile sedan and will cruise at 147 miles an hour.

Fairchild built the Weick "rudderless' plane for the Department of Commerce in its research to develop a "flying flivver" that can be purchased in the price range of cheaper automobiles.

SIX PERSONS KILLED IN BESSARABIAN 'WAR'

LONDON Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Bucharest reported today that six persons were killed and 12 seriously injured in a riot near Cetetea-Alba Bessarabia.

H reported that the riot was the culmination of the "calendar war" waged for some time in Rumania between adherents of the Julian system and the authorities who are enforcing the adoption of the Gregorian.

The riot was reported to have resulted when 1,000 adherents of the Julian calendar stormed a jail seeking the release of several agitators arrested yesterday.

Those killed were four peasants and two police.

RICHETTI MUST DIE ON GALLOWS OCT. 4

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 19.—(UP)—Adam Richetti must die on the gallows October 4 for his part in the Union Station massacre.

The swarthy confederate of the late Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd was sentenced formally today by Judge Ray G. Cowan after he overruled a motion by the gangster's lawyers for a new trial.

Richetti, attired in striped overalls of county jail garb, merely blinked his eyes and made a hopeless gesture as the death sentence was pronounced.

CROSS SECTIONS

Petitions for receivership for the Atlanta Laundries, Inc., were filed in Fulton superior and the district federal courts yesterday, charging fraud against the trustees and demanding an immediate accounting of the properties. Judge John D. Humphries, of the superior court, set the date of hearing on August 24. Mrs. E. M. Brandon, owner of a bond in the company, filed the superior court petition, while she and Mrs. Helene S. Varner and Mrs. Ida Chamberlain started the action in the federal court.

Dr. S. C. Outlaw will be in charge of a meeting of the extension program of the Georgia Association of Optometrists, Zone 4, at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night. The session will be held at his office at 67 Whitehall street. The latest research work in optometric technique will be discussed.

Strike difficulties of the Rome Stove and Range Company will be aired before the Regional Labor Board at an early hearing, Frank Coffee, director of the board, said yesterday. The case of the Hanks Stove and Range Company will come up at the same time. Employers and workers of the two companies will be heard.

Condition of Victor Moon, 49, of Adamsville, who was struck on the head Sunday with an ax after his auto had skidded into a negro's front yard on Cascade road, continued serious yesterday at Grady hospital. County police were seeking the negro who is alleged to have assaulted Moon.

Ralph Johnson, 18, a dairy farm employe near Carrollton, is in Grady hospital in a serious condition as the result of having been gored by a cow Sunday at the farm. Surgeons fear that the youth will lose the sight of his left eye.

More favorable attitudes from Georgia's cotton ginners toward the AAA farm program, were reported yesterday by W. E. Page, state collector of internal revenue. Last year, ginners were fighting bale tagging and bonding under the AAA. Today almost all approve it, he said, as they are now being paid by the farmers for the ginning.

Atlanta Wesley Federation will hold its monthly cabinet meeting in Wesley Memorial tea room at 6:15 o'clock tonight, Miss Ruth Blackwood, publicity chairman, announced yesterday.

Arthur H. Scott, sixth ward school commissioner, yesterday tendered his resignation in a letter addressed to the mayor and general council. A successor probably will be elected at council's meeting September 3.

Atlanta swimming pools will close for the summer Monday, September 2, it was announced yesterday by George I. Simons, general manager of parks.

Civitans will hear "The City Bond Issue From the Government's Point of View" discussed by R. L. MacDougall, chief PWA engineer, at their luncheon at 12:30 o'clock today in the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Kiwanis Club today will hold a picnic at the Brookhaven Golf Club, with dancing, bridge and golf, the dinner being served at 7 o'clock. A luncheon will be held in the Ansley hotel at 12:30 o'clock today for members unable to attend the picnic. Cedartown Kiwanis Club will be host at the next interclub meeting on August 28, it was announced. Fred Cooledge is acting chairman of the interclub relations committee.

"The Three Greatest Georgians" will be the subject of Paul Donehoo, coroner, before Lions at their luncheon in the Henry Grady hotel today.

Walton family will hold its fifth reunion next Sunday at the water works in Macon, O. P. Walton, of Atlanta, president, announced yesterday. A program, which will start at 11 o'clock (eastern standard time) is being prepared and barbecue will be served. All members and friends of the family are invited and asked to bring a basket lunch.

Groover family will hold its third annual reunion next Sunday from 11 until 4 o'clock at Grant park, Mrs. J. C. Groover, secretary, announced yesterday. All are asked to bring a basket lunch.

Fish story told by Tom Joynes, Halifax river boat captain, to the Daytona Beach (Fla.) Rotary Club yesterday: An Atlanta woman fished unsuccessfully all day. Finally it was discovered she had baited her hook with a sweet pickle. "Surely the fish ought to like that better than a smelly old shrimp," she said.

Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, director of the Georgia Department of Public Health, has been named to a federal advisory committee on maternal and child health, he was advised yesterday by Frances Perkins, secretary of labor. Members of the committee have been appointed to serve two years. The first meeting probably will be held early in October.

87 ALIENS IN GOTHAM AWAIT DEPORTATION

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Eighty-seven aliens from all sections of the country arrived at Ellis Island today, ready to begin trips back to their native lands.

Of the contingent, 61 are being shipped home under compulsion while the rest are returning voluntarily, their expenses paid by midwestern communities which cut the aliens from relief rolls.

The aliens arrived on a special deportation train which picked up its passengers during a 3,000-mile journey from San Francisco to New York city.

BOB NESBITT, 54, DIES AT MEMPHIS OF HEAT

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 19.—(AP)—The death of Bob Nesbitt, 54, special officer with the Tennessee Emergency Relief Administration offices here, was attributed today to an attack caused by the heat.

Mr. Nesbitt died yesterday afternoon shortly after his return from a fishing trip. A native of Atlanta, he had lived here 30 years.

Survivors include his widow and two sons; his father, W. T. Nesbitt, Atlanta, and three sisters, Mrs. Mattie Jackson, Atlanta; Mrs. Bob Nash and Mrs. Julian Warren, Norcross, Ga.

$1,800 in Cash Prizes for Book Titles!

(C) 1935, By Associated Publishers, Inc.

By THE BOOK GAME EDITOR.

The final day of the $1,800 Book Game is nearing. Soon readers who have been most adroit in matching story titles with Mr. Carter's series of beautifully drawn pictures will be richly rewarded for their efforts.

As the Book Game appoaches its end, this advice is not amiss: Every contestant should reconsider his or her solution with the greatest care, before the deadline is reached. Solutions that do not seem altogether fitting should be discarded and more apt ones found. The contest is destined to be close, we feel, so it will be well for every aspirant for a prize to turn in a set or sets with titles that are truly appropriate for the scene portrayed.

"What To Read," Richmond Knight's interesting compilation of book titles, that includes all of the contest solutions, is in high favor. It can be consulted at most libraries. Those who desire may obtain a copy for their personal use for 50 cents—54 cents by mail.

Question Box

Either Way.

Q. Is it absolutely necessary that Atlanta contestants bring their sets in, or may they mail them, just as can people living out of town?—Miss C. S., Atlanta.

A. Any set may be submitted in person or by mail, just as the entrant pleases.

We Couldn't!

Q. I believe I've gotten pretty good solutions for most of the pictures, but No. 49 has me stumped. Can you give me any help with this one?—I. W. T., Macon, Ga.

A. This department can give no hints. You'll have to try to find this for yourself.

Ample Time.

Q. How much time will we have to get our sets in after all the pictures have been in the paper?—Mrs. B. A., Columbus, Ga.

A. Twelve days. No. 80, the last of the series, will appear on Monday, September 2. The deadline for submitting sets is midnight, Saturday, September 14.

Thank You!

I think the Book game interesting as well as educational.—Mrs. K. L., Newell, Ala.

Thank You!

I think the contest is fine.—Miss M. J., Rockmart, Ga.

Thank You!

I have been an entrant in the last four contests you have put on, and must say this is by far the most enjoyable of the bunch, although they have all been good.—Mrs. E. J. M., Cornelia, Ga.

Thank You!

I am enjoying the contest very much—Mrs. L. C. E., Tampa, Fla.

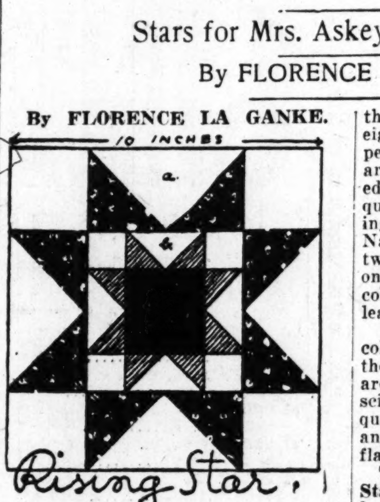
NANCY PAGE

Stars for Mrs. Askey and for You.

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

By FLORENCE LA GANKE.



"I had a letter the other day from Mrs. Askey. She wanted to know when I could give her a star pattern for a quilt. It happens that we have had a number of stars which she may have missed. But stars are easy to work out because they are basically the shapes that lend themselves best to pieced quilt making. I designed one which I am calling "Rising Star." It may have a familiar look to many of you experienced quilt makers, for there have been many rising stars worked into quilts. Sometimes I think that any star design would be pretty, but you must admit that this is an attractive one.

For it I suggest using a rather dark grounded print, a plain shade fairly light, and white.

The Nancy Page quilt club members clipped the picture and directions from the paper. They followed the instructions given at the bottom of the column today. When they received the sheet they looked at the pattern. No allowane for seams has been made. It is best to trace the patterns onto lightweight cardboard and then to trace the outline of these pieces on the cloth after they have been laid carefully in place. Then in cutting the seam allowance is made one eighth or one-quarter inch beyond the pencil line. In piecing the pencil lines are laid together and the seam is sewed on the line. In this way there is no question about the finished pieces being the exact size. For a double bed Nancy advises seven yards of white, two and one half of dark print and one and one-half yards of the medium color, labelled "print" in the direction leaflet

Be sure the materials selected are color fast. Be sure they are of about the same quality. Be sure the pieces are cut true. Use a sharp pointed scissors. Start the end seams in one-quarter or one-eighth inch from ends and edges. Press all seams open and flat.

The actual pattern for "Rising Star" quilt design may be obtained by sending three cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Nancy Page in care of The Atlanta Constitution. Back patterns may be secured by sending an additional three cents for each pattern requested.

LOAN POLICY WIDENED BY TUGWELL AGENCY

Farmers Turned Down by FCA, Deliquent, Are Now Eligible.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today issued an executive order setting up machinery for Undersecretary Tugwell's Resettlement Administration to make loans to farmers.

Advances would be permitted to finance "the purchase of farm lands and necessary equipment by farmers, farm tenants, croppers or farm laborers" and for any other purposes.

Under a new ruling farmers who have applied unsuccessfully for loans from the Farm Credit Administration and farmers who have been delinquent in payments to the Federal Land banks and are in danger of foreclosure proceedings are allowed to apply to the Resettlement Administration.

Prior to the ruling only farmers on relief were eligible.

The loans may be made either to individuals, agencies or associations. The associations must impose no inequitable membership restrictions and permit supervision by the administration.

Interest rates will not be more than 5 per cent or less than 3. Loans cannot exceed a 40-year period.

The President's order said all loans for two-year or longer periods shall provide for repayment in equal annual installments which may include interest. But on loans for five years or more there need be no principal repayment for the first three.

SAVANNAHPOLICE BAND STOPS OVERNIGHT HERE

The Savannah police department band arrived in Atlanta last night at 8 o'clock from Chicago, Ill., where the organization had placed fourth in the national police band competition staged there at Soldiers' Field Sunday in connection with the National Music Festival.

The organization, led by Captain John Clancy and comprising 31 members, was met by members of the Atlanta department, Councilman Howard Haire and A. W. (Smokey) Jones and escorted to the Robert Fulton hotel where the unit played a concert.

Dinner was served at Harvey's restaurant and Jones introduced Councilman Haire, who made a brief address.

Lieutenant Walter Holley and Sergeant Brower of the Augusta department invited the Atlanta police band to participate in the opening of the new police headquarters at Augusta on September 4.

August 16, 1935.

TO FRED L. SMITH:

Please take notice that on Tuesday, September 3, at 10:00 o'clock A. M., at the office of Haverty Furniture Company, 22 Edgewood Avenue, N. E., Atlanta, Georgia, the Haverty Realty & Investment Company will sell to the highest and best bidder for cash one hundred (100) shares of the common stock of Haverty Furniture Company, Inc., purchased by you and for which you gave a note dated November 11, 1929, payable to Haverty Realty & Investment Company in the amount of $1,350, payable $50 per month. Said note provided that in the event of a default extending for more than thirty-one days said stock, title to which was retained by Haverty Realty & Investment Company to secure the payment of said note, might be sold and the proceeds credited to the balance due and all costs incident thereto, the balance, if any, to be held for your benefit. A default having occurred as provided in said note, and the balance of said note being due, the stock will be sold as above set out.

25 MILLION OUTLAY IS SEEN FOR CANAL

Florida Hears Approval for Preliminary Survey.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Gulf-Atlantic ship canal advocates placed their hopes on a $25,000,000 allotment for preliminary work on the project today as Washington reports reached here that definite announcement might be made by the Works Allotment Board tomorrow.

The Jacksonville Journal published a dispatch saying work schedules for the proposed waterway, approximately $25,000,000, had been completed. Harry L. Hopkins and President Roosevelt must approve the schedules before an allotment is made.

Quoting an informant, the Journal said about $8,000,000 would be applied to deeping St. John's, Oklawaha and Withlacoochee rivers.

"The remainder, if approved in whole or part," the story continued, "would be expended in clearing the right of way and axcavating the topsoil in certain sections of the route."
